Youth Parley Drafts Its Blueprint For Future

World Affairs, A-Bomb Schooling Are Listed Among Critical Needs Today

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

A 10-year prospectus to guide Americans in their work with children and youth began to take shape at the Midcentury White House Conference yesterday.

Nearly 6000 delegates spent the busiest working day of the conference drafting recommendations, screening them and preparing for the final proposals which will be made at the concluding sessions today.

The committee on conference recommendations met far into this morning to pick out of the thousands of recommendations by the work groups those which will come up for the full conference vote today.

In themselves, the recommendations were important to conferees because they showed what some of America's top citizens, parents and experts think are the most important problems the country needs to tackle right now, and in the 10 years until the next conference, to insure for "each child a healthy personality."

Here are some of the tentative findings and recommendations on major problems made by work groups, and sent for screening to the conference committee:

World Situation: Government authorities must immediately inform the public on the seriousness of the present crisis. Plans must be prepared immediately for community action. Because American adults and youth do not understand the meaning of democracy, United States foreign policy, or our U. N. role, there must be a positive, simple, affirmative clarification of the principles of democracy through every means of communication.

Atom Bomb: We must admit to our children the existence of the atomic bomb and explain that it does not mean total destruction. Parents must keep their children free from fear and turn existing fear into a positive plan for action should atomic attack come.

Mobilization: Community agencies, public and private, should begin now to assess their present facilities and programs and prepare to redirect them to meet the emergency children and youth needs. Studies should be made of the potentialities of 'teenage girls and older women for community service. Mothers with infants and toddlers should be the last source of emergency manpower. Permissive laws to adjust schools to emergency operation should be passed at once.

Segregation: No further conference under Federal auspices should be held in Washington until it provides nonsegregated facilities for conference participants. Religious organizations should take leadership in abolition of segregation. Indian tribes in the

Says He Quit Party

Union President Testifies Reds Ruled Laborers' Local

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A half-dozen Communists captured control of a large AFL local here and ran it for the benefit of the party line, the House Un-American Affairs Committee was told yesterday.

Henry Thomas, president of Local 74, AFL Building Laborers Union, testified that he and fellow members of a Red cell here managed to get themselves elected or appointed to the key offices in the 3000-member union, and ran it according to the dictates of Communist Party "superiors."

The slim, tweed-suited war veteran declared that he and other Communist officers of the union quit the Communist Party in 1949, to be free to sign the non-Communist oath as required of union officials under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Thomas admitted to continuing having discussions with Communist Party leaders in this area after he had quit the party, but he emphasized that he considered himself a free agent after quitting the party.

In later testimony, however, Thomas indicated that the Communist Party wielded considerable influence in the affairs of Local 74 as recently as the spring of 1950.

At that time a bitter fight broke out between Thomas, president of the local, and Tom Sampler, secretary treasurer of the union. They had been members of the same Red cell, Thomas said, and together had run the union.

The issue was over the firing or retaining of a bookkeeper named Robert Paul. The bitter dispute was settled, last February or March, Thomas said, only after a certain Philip Frankfeld visited Washington and made a decision on how to resolve the dispute.

Group Votes Extension of D. C. Rent Law

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A 28-day District rent control extension bill was unanimously approved by the Senate District Committee in a 4-minute meeting yesterday.

The action was followed by announcement by House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), that he would call another meeting of his committee for early next week to consider the proposal.

At the same time, a 90-day Federal rent control extension bill, snagged overnight in the House Rules Committee, was given a green light for House action today. The Senate had already agreed to vote today on a two-month extension bill.

The District rent measure, forwarded to the Senate by the committee indorsement, calls only for extending the existing law from January 31 through February 28 next year.

The subcommittee acted in accordance with a recommendation by District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell favoring the 28-day extension, but advising against provisions of Neely's bill to put controls back on "conversion housing" and some hotel accommodations.

The rent administrator advised that consideration be given to a complete review of the act next year.

The Rules Committee voted to program an hour of House debate on the 90-day control extension sought by President Truman. The committee vote to do so was re-

Mt. Etna Pours River of Lava Into Village; 600 Make Escape

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 6 (AP).—Mount Etna poured a half-mile wide river of red-hot lava into the mountainside village of Renazzo tonight, only a few hours after the 600 villagers had been removed.

The lava, in some places 16 feet high, streamed through the village's chestnut groves, apple orchards and vineyards. Trees turned to flaming torches.

Then the first arms of the molten rock began crushing their way into the village itself. A brickworks burst into flame and was smashed. Slowly, other houses caught fire.

Over the flat land on which the village is built, the lava advanced at 40 feet an hour.

Firemen stood by. There was little they could do. Soldiers evacuated the population, livestock and household goods.

The threatened town of Milo, population 1500, also was evacuated. Lava is expected to reach that village by dawn.

Truman Asks Quick Action On Dispersal

Writes Congress For Authority to Build on 8 Sites, Scatter Agencies

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to approve "without delay" a 190-million-dollar dispersal program to move part of the Government into nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The plan is essentially the same one for which Mr. Truman last August 30 asked Congress to vote $139,800,000. This time Mr. Truman is asking only legislative sanction.

The dispersal program calls for one building housing 5000 Government workers on each of the eight as yet unselected sites. The sites would be provided with sufficient roads and utilities to take a second building.

In letters to Chairman Dennis Chavez (D., N. M.) of the Senate Public Works Committee and Chairman William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) of the House Public Works Committee, President Truman said the program was to "permit continuity of important Government functions in case of an attack on the Nation's capital."

"It is my strong belief that such a program, including the authority to decentralize functions of government, should be adopted without delay," he wrote.

Whittington dropped the bill in the hopper late yesterday and announced hearings for 10 a. m. Friday. General Services Administration chief Jess Larson, Public Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds, representatives of the Budget Bureau, and National Securities Resources Board Chairman W. Stuart Symington have been asked to testify, Whittington said.

The Administration bill would "authorize a program to provide for the construction of Federal buildings outside of, but in the vicinity of and accessible to, the District." It declares the intent of Congress to be "to provide for the continuance at all times of the conduct of the vital business of the Nation and for the sound development of the District of Columbia and its adjacent areas."

The measure does not spell out just how far out in the adjoining counties the Government building sites would be. But Larson has said from 15 to 20 miles from the White House, perhaps a bit farther. Each site would be about 200 acres.

The 190-million-dollar cost figure represents in part the inflation since the $139,800,000 request only slightly more than three months ago. The rest of the addition would cover acquisition and development of eight rather than four sites, although the same number of buildings — eight — is contemplated.

Rout Peril Gone

Hope Pierces Deep Gloom Over Korea

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Relative optimism yesterday replaced the deep gloom of two days ago at the Pentagon over the tactical military situation in Korea.

It is based on the fact that the danger of a disastrous rout of the United Nations forces largely has passed. Over the weekend and as late as Monday there were very real fears that the Chinese Red hordes might envelop and destroy large portions of General MacArthur's army.

Now the Eighth Army has successfully withdrawn to the south and formed a new defensive position in the western part of the peninsula, reportedly near the thirty-eighth parallel. And across the mountains to the northwest, the Tenth Corps is fighting its way out of a dangerous predicament.

The Marines, Seventh Infantrymen and ROKs still have a stiff battle on their hands to break through strong Chinese forces standing between them and the sea, but most Pentagon officials are confident they can do it.

Not only is the Leatherneck division that forms the backbone of the force still powerful, but it has powerful air support and the aid of Third Infantry Division troops on the coast. Almost the entire U. N. air force—both land and carrier based—is helping them blast a way out. Officials here are hopeful their losses will not be great.

Once at Hungnam or other available northeast coast ports, the Tenth Corps undoubtedly will pull out the way it largely came in—by sea. They can go either to Japan or South Korea, depending upon the military situation.

The brighter view taken by Pentagon officials yesterday, however, applies only to the immediate military situation. The broader picture has changed little. Overwhelmingly superior Chinese forces still face the 200,000 or more U. N. troops in Korea.

If the Communist high command chooses to keep coming across the thirty-eighth parallel and is willing to throw into action the forces at its command, holding a line across the peninsula is considered beyond MacArthur's means.

The Eighth Army already is digging into defensive positions and is expected to make a stand. There are several lines that could be held for a time in a defensive campaign, with the U. N. Army dropping gradually back to a perimeter position around Pusan or other ports.

Where the troops could go from there is another question. They might: (1) hold, awaiting a possible political settlement; (2) hold, while mounting a new offensive force to drive back north again; (3) suffer a costly Oriental "Dunkirk" or (4) be pushed off, but in an orderly evacuation. The first alternative is regarded as a possibility, the second as very unlikely, the third as something that should and can be avoided, and the last as the most likely.

Raw Materials Question

The Fourth Session

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, in his talks here with Prime Minister Attlee, has made it clear that any thought of willingly withdrawing United Nations forces from Korea is out of the question.

He wants no shabby deals with Red China. If the U. N. troops have to leave Korea, it will be because they are pushed out, not because of any compromise with the aggressor.

Mr. Truman is determined that the Yanks and their allies will fight on in Korea wherever they can, as long as they can.

Prime Minister Attlee, representing Great Britain, evidently shares the President's feelings. In a speech yesterday at the National Press Club, he said that the United States was bearing the major burden in Korea, and added:

"Our forces are fighting alongside yours. You may be certain that, in fair or foul weather, where the Stars and Stripes fly in Korea, the British flag will fly beside them. We stand by our duty. We stand by our friends."

The President and the Prime Minister, at their fourth session of the Anglo-American conference yesterday, agreed to go forward "with energy" in building up the military strength of the 12 countries in the North Atlantic Pact.

This pledge, contained in a White House communique, was seen as hastening the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as supreme commander of the forces that will be built up to defend Western Europe.

Mr. Truman said last week that he had long been ready to name a supreme commander, but had been waiting for an agreement with America's allies in Europe.

Early Again at White House

Stephen T. Early, called back temporarily to his old job as White House press secretary after the death of Charles G. Ross, called in reporters after yesterday's Truman-Attlee meeting, which lasted from 3:30 p. m. to 4:35 p. m.

He issued the following statement:

"There was a full discussion of problems relating to the defense of the North Atlantic Community.

The Army awarded a 100-million-dollar contract to the American Locomotive Co., Schenectady, N. Y., yesterday for 500 "improved" medium tanks with greater firepower than the Patton medium landcruiser.

The company was asked to begin production "at the earliest possible date." It turned out thousands of medium tanks during World War II.

A spokesman also disclosed that the Cadillac Motor Co. will begin production early next year of a new T-41 light tank "superior to anything we know of in a comparable class."

1300 Jobs Open at Gun Factory, Women Recalled in Expansion

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Washington's largest industrial concern—the Naval Gun Factory—is seriously considering a 6-day work week for its 8000 employes to begin early in January. These are other developments at the factory.

1. It's expanding rapidly because of the Korean war and it now has 1300 jobs to fill;

2. It has begun to recall its Rosies the Riveters of World War II because of the critical shortage of experienced male personnel. It has openings for 482 women workers, and,

3. The per diem workers at the factory—and that's most of them—will be given a pay boost shortly.

The factory is calling women who worked there during World War II with good records, to invite them to accept jobs. Other women with similar experience are urged to apply for the openings. The jobs open to women are for machine shop precision oper-

Will Call Parley

Paris Yields On Germans In Army

PARIS (Thursday), Dec. 7 (AP).—France announced tonight that she will call a meeting of the western European nations in Paris next month to draw up plans for a European army.

Information Minister Albert Gazier confirmed that France had agreed to immediate formation of West German combat teams in Atlantic nations forces that would defend Europe against Communist aggression.

Previously the French had insisted on creation of a unified European defense ministry and the pooling of western Europe's coal and steel resources under the Schuman plan as a condition for German participation.

The change represented a victory for the United States. The Americans want to get the Germans into a European army as soon as possible.

The North Atlantic pact deputies are meeting in London to consider ways of bringing West German troops into the defense forces.

Authoritative sources said behind-the-scenes political maneuvering had averted a threatened collapse of the French cabinet over rearming Germany.

Socialist Guy Mollet, French Minister of State, was reported ready to resign in protest against a Dutch plan for recruiting German troops, which the Atlantic pact deputies are considering.

Peace Appeal Of 13 Nations Appears Lost

Chinese Envoy Assails Move; U. S. Prepares New Korea Resolution

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 6 (AP).—Andrei Y. Vishinsky today attacked a 13-nation appeal to Communist China to stop at the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea. His opposition and reported objections by Red China's envoy here apparently doomed the desperate plea of Asian and Middle East countries for an end to the fighting.

Diplomats said Wu Hsui-chuan, Ambassador of the Chinese Communists, countered the peace appeal last night by asking why it was being sent only to his government. He was said to have insisted it should be sent also to the United States.

There was no word from Peiping on the appeal and the Assembly went ahead in an extraordinary session with plans for a fast airing of the crisis. The Assembly voted 51 to 5 (Soviet bloc) to send to the political committee a six-power demand for U. N. action to stop the Chinese Communists. Burma, Afghanistan, India and Indonesia abstained.

Soon after that vote, the six powers—the United States, Britain, France, Cuba, Ecuador, Norway—circulated the text of a resolution they are putting before the U. N. In the same terms as the six-power resolution vetoed by Russia last Thursday in the Security Council, the proposal called for withdrawal of Red China's troops from Korea and promised that China's borders with Korea would be protected.

Vishinsky took a dig at the 13-nation appeal in these words:

"American armed forces crossed the 38th parallel with the approval of, among others, the authors of a statement published in the press and emanating from certain powers which now appeal for a halt at the 38th parallel. These powers supported

Americans Fleeing Trap; Foe's Losses Are 'Terrific'

Forces at Hagaru And Koto Unite For Drive to Sea Through Snowstorm

TOKYO (Thursday), Dec. 7 (AP).—Trapped United States Marines and infantrymen fought fiercely resisting Chinese Reds in a blinding snowstorm today in northeast Korea — with some Americans breaking through one trap.

It was a savage fight for life by the U. S. forces, launched yesterday at the south tip of Changjin Reservoir—but disclosed only today. Commanding officers did not want to tip off approaching reinforcements of Chinese Reds.

Already some elements have traversed the six blood-stained miles of road from Hagaru at the reservoir's south tip to Koto—but more Reds still bar the way to the main objective, which is the big east coast center of Hamhung, close by the port of Hangnam.

Big Red Air Force Reported in Action

TOKYO, Thursday, Dec. 7 (UP).—Allied headquarters announced today that a formidable Communist air force, including Russian-made jet fighters, had gone into action over North Korea.

Tenth Corps headquarters said all First Marine and Seventh Army Division elements on the reservoir plateau had joined forces and were fighting cohesively. There was no elaboration as to whether this meant the area from Hagaru was cleared all the way to Koto.

The Hagaru force was the Fifth and Seventh Regiments of the First Marine Division and elements of the Army's Seventh Division. The force at Koto included the First Marine Division's First Regiment and other army infantarymen.

There was heavy resistance all the way. Chinese casualties were described as teriffic.

The lone American column included tanks, trucks and other vehicles.

In the Changjin reservoir sector, United States Marines on the west side and Seventh Division infantrymen on the east side earlier had battled through Red traps into the town of Hagarau at the south tip.

There they had halted while Marine, Navy and Air Force planes made dawn-to-dusk attacks on men of six Chinese regiments on mountain ridges. These Reds sought to turn the road

TOKYO (Thursday), Dec. 7 (UP). Nine years ago today a massive oriental onslaught set America on the road to the long and humiliating retreat in the first years of World War II.

Today Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, tackled another military crisis forced upon unprepared America by another totalitarian power in the Far East.

The Japanese attack on December 7, 1941, set off the battle against overwhelming odds and abandonment of America's Asiatic friends to years of enemy occupation.

Nine years ago MacArthur's little army of 35,000 Americans and Filipinos faced the invaders in the Philippines. Now the 70-year-old general's armies were in retreat on all fronts before the Chinese avalanche.

District Asks More For Civilian Defense

Municipal Group Elects New Head

WILLIAM DEVIN, mayor of Seattle, Wash., yesterday was chosen as president of the American Municipal Association at its annual convention here

The District yesterday asked Congress for $337,500, most of it to provide the city with a complete air raid warning and civil defense communications system.

The supplemental appropriation request, cleared by the Budget Bureau, would mean, if approved, a total civil defense outlay this fiscal year of $437,500. The city originally sought $290,000 but Congress granted only $100,000.

The Budget Bureau told Congress the city finances are in good enough shape to provide the extra funds.

For 30 Warning Devices

It was learned the money would be used for these main items:

Thirty air raid warning devices (some type of siren) in addition to the four about to be ordered.

Radio equipment for the civil defense control center in the armory and radio receivers for various defense units. These first two items would cost approximately $200,000.

Uniforms for 400 of the proposed 4000-man auxiliary police force, to cost about $30,000.

A survey of District buildings to determine their possible use as air raid shelters.

Printing of training pamphlets.

Plane From Labrador

It began, according to the Air Force, when American radar stations "in the vicinity of the Maine-Canadian border spotted an unidentified aircraft approaching the United States. Following standard procedure, interceptor planes were dispatched to make visual identification."

The plane turned out to be an American craft returning from Laborador.

The Air Force said it issued no alert. However, someone purporting to speak for the military reportedly called Number 8 Police Precinct Station here, locale of the air raid warning alert system telephone for the District and nearby Maryland. District Civil Defense director John E. Fondahl said he took no action on any alert. He would not comment on the reported call to number 8 from the "military source."

Meanwhile, Fondahl met yesterday with police and fire department officials on an interim public alerting plan which he said could be set up in 48 hours.

On the national level, a Senate Armed Services subcommittee heard conflicting suggestions on how to set up a permanent national civil defense office. Spokesmen for the American Municipal Association, which represents some 10,000 cities, called for such an office, under the Defense Department, on a par with the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The mayors also called for direct relations between the national setup and the cities. A strongly worded resolution on these points was unanimously approved at the association congress, meeting at the Statler Hotel earlier in the day.

But James J. Wadsworth, assistant head of the new Civil Defense Administration, said the military itself was opposed to putting the office in the Pentagon.

U. S. Industry Claimed Ready If Goals Fixed

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (NYHT).—American industry assured the Nation today that it is able and ready to convert to maximum defense production, but said the Government is laggard in revealing what will be needed. The Government has neither set any production goals nor advised industry what goals might be fixed in the future, industry spokesmen asserted.

Industry's position was outlined at the opening session of the American Congress of Industry's three-day meeting here. Nearly 3000 industrial executives applauded speakers who predicted industry will face up to any situation that may come.

Ira Mosher, chairman of the industrial mobilization committee, said industry was handicapped because of the inability to know whether the country is about to engage a full-scale war or whether the crisis represented something less than that.

He said the fundamentally sound relationship between labor and management was a major reason for the Government to refrain from imposing any dispute-settling formulae or agencies on the country in the foreseeable future.

"If we are right about our estimate that we shall live in a garrison state for many years, we may as well recognize that the imposition of compulsory arbitration upon the country may utterly destroy the institution of collective bargaining which our present public policy supports," he warned.

Allies to Draft Reply To Red Proposals

PARIS Dec. 6 (U.P.).—United States, French and British delegates will meet here tomorrow to draft a reply—a rejection—to a Russian note calling for Big Four talks on the future of Germany.

All three countries have made it plain that they will not accept the Russian proposal, which called for discussion of a program set by Russia.

It is believed likely, however, that the Allies in their joint reply may propose a real four-power conference of foreign ministers which would take up not only German but other world problems in dispute.

20,000 Workers Idled

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—Twenty thousand textile workers were idled today when 240 mills suspended operations for lack of raw materials. Labor leaders appealed to the government to guarantee the workers wages until the situation is solved.

13 Die in Tunnel Blast

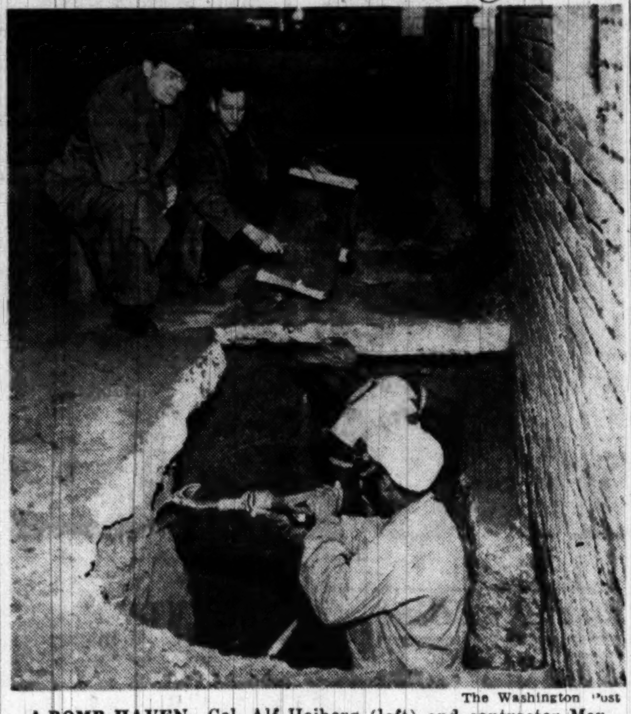
MacArthur's Ex-Wife Builds A-Bomb Shelter in Georgetown



The Washington Post

A-BOMB HAVEN—Col. Alf Heiberg (left) and contractor Marshall Ledford check plans and progress of the Heiberg's atom-bomb shelter at their home in Georgetown

Mrs. Alf Heiberg, who believes in helping both herself and her neighbors where A-bombs are concerned, is turning the sub-basement of her Georgetown home into a shelter against the bomb.

Mrs. Heiberg, former wife of General MacArthur, came to her shelter-building decision while listening to a broadcast on civil defense. The suggestion to "throw yourself in the gutter and put your hand over your face" when the A-things start falling left something to be desired, she figured. So she put a contractor to work this week digging out the basement at 3300 O st. nw.

"We're going to put in lead doors—protection against the rays—and reinforced concrete," Mrs. Heiberg said. "We'll be able to crowd in 100 to 150 persons. There'll be drinking water and medical supplies."

In designing the shelter Mrs. Heiberg heeded advice of persons who went through the London blitz. She also had the help of her husband, Colonel Heiberg, who carefully went over the terrain with her.

The socially-prominent Mrs. Heiberg is the former wife of Actor Lionel Atwill and of Walter B. Brooks of Baltimore, in addition to General MacArthur.

The place at 3300 O st. has seen less up-to-date days than the A-bomb age. The house was built in 1820 and the sub-basement was once used as slave quarters.

Court Voids Delaware Bridge Sale

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 6 (NYHT).—State Superior Court Judge Walter J. Freund ruled today that the sale of two Delaware River toll bridges to the Burlington County Bridge Commission in October 1948 for 12 million dollars was "replete with chicanery" and "cannot be sustained."

He ordered the Taconoy-Palmyra and Burlington-Bristol bridges restored to their private owners and ruled that New Jersey has the right to purchase them. The State, as complainant, had planned to purchase the bridges for about $5,500,000 at the time of their sale.

In a 32-page opinion, Judge Freund referred to the "corrupting influence" of the political power of Clifford R. Powell, former commander of the New Jersey National Guard and Burlington County Republican leader. Powell had testified that he and his family had made more than $500,000 profit on the sale.

One Area Soldier Killed, Another Wounded in Korea

Sergt. John D. Burgess, 624½ 4th st. ne.

WOUNDED IN ACTION
Pfc. Eddie L. Wright, 329 W. Groveton st., Groveton, Va.

One area soldier has been reported killed in Korean fighting and another wounded, the Defense Department announced yesterday.

Sergt. John D. Burgess, 28, of 624½ 4th st. ne., was killed November 2, according to a telegram received by his mother, Mrs. Ida M. Burgess.

Sergt. Burgess, with 39 months in Europe and England in World War II, was in the Eighth Regiment, First Cavalry Division. He had reenlisted in August. A native of Union, S. C., he arrived in Korea in September.

GOP Seeks Senate Consent on Deal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans yesterday opened a two-way foreign policy attack of almost party-line dimensions as bipartisan relations at the Capitol continued to deteriorate.

1. Twenty-four Republicans introduced a resolution calling for Senate "advice and consent" to any binding agreements reached between President Truman and British Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

2. A 9 a. m. meeting of the Senate GOP Policy committee was called for today to consider a resolution by Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) putting Senate Republicans as a party on record in favor of the ouster of Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The "no sceret agreements" resolution, aimed at the Truman-Attlee talks, was introduced by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) for himself and 23 Republican colleagues, a majority of the Senate Republican membership of 43.

Just before the Senate recessed last night, Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) tried to get the resolution referred to the Senate Foreign Relations committee, with instructions to report back to the Senate not later than Friday.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) blocked Wherry's unanimous consent request for the referral.

Lucas asked Wherry to withhold his request until noon today, to gime him (Lucas) time to talk with Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) and other members of his committee.

Lucas and Connally conferred immediately following the Senate recess. Although both declined comment, Connally is understood to have objcted to putting any limit on action by his group.

The Kem resolution reads as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that, after the discussions now being carried on between the President and Prime Minister Attlee have been concluded, the President should forthwith make a full and complete report concerning the same to the Senate; and that the President should not enter into any understandings or agreements with the Prime Minister which might have the effect of committing the United States to any course of action, except by treaty entered into with the advice and consent of the Senate in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

These Senate Republicans signed the resolution: Kem (Mo.), Wherry (Nebr.), Knowland (Calif.), Bricker (Ohio), Cain (Wash.), Williams (Del.), Schoeppel (Kans.), Aiken (Vt.), Thye (Minn.), Hendrickson (N. J.), Mundt (S. Dak.), Donnell (Mo.), Brewster (Me.), Nixon (Calif.), Butler (Nebr.), Malone (Nev.), Young (N. Dak.), Dworshak (Idaho), Capehart (Ind.), Jenner (Ind.), Cordon (Oreg.), McCarthy (Wis.), Ecton (Mont.), and Watkins (Utah).

Some of the signers said they did not consider the resolution very significant, however. "It only asks the President not to violate the Constitution," one said.

As Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) called a meeting of his GOP Policy Committee to consider a party stand on Acheson, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), who has repeatedly demanded the resignation of Acheson, made a Senate speech suggesting the resignation of Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall as well.

McCarthy told the Senate he did not think Marshall "should continue his heavy responsibilities at this advanced age and particularly since he too has been heavily involved in the erroneous China policy."

"I cannot too strongly urge that General Marshall would be much more valuable to the Nation as an elder statesman in Leesburg," McCarthy said.

In proposing that Senate Republicans, by party resolution, call on the President to oust Acheson, Senator Ives told newsmen: "There can be no effective bipartisan foreign policy until we have a new Secretary of State."

Ives, who supported Acheson's confirmation and has generally followed the foreign policy line of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), said he felt the country "has lost confidence in Acheson."

He said the Secretary's continuance in office "will only further aggravate the terribly critical emergency with which we are confronted."

"This (his fire Acheson resolution) is a simple and very direct way of handling the matter," Ives told reporters. "Then we will have done our duty as a party of opposition in a field where we have a definite responsibility."

Ives wants his resolution first submitted to the party policy and later to the full Republican conference of 43 Senators. If adopted it would be sent to President Truman.

Some Republicans questioned the timing and possible effect of the resolution, but reserved judgment on how they would vote.

One of these, Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), told newsmen:

"If I know Harry Truman, the best way to insure the retention of Mr. Acheson is to take just such a party stand."

An Administration official, who asked not to be identified, took a similar view, saying: "If Republicans as a party call for Acheson's resignation, it would probably have just the reverse effect."

Another Democrat, Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), reacted this way:

"It's about time we stopped fighting one another and started fighting the Chinese Communists."

ADA Again Asks Federal Inquiry Of U. S. Security

Americans for Democratic Action yesterday asked President Truman again to appoint a citizens committee to investigate Federal problems of "security and civil liberties."

ADA national chairman Francis Biddle, former Attorney General, suggested in a letter to Mr. Truman that the committee look into:

1. Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's charges against the State Department.
2. The effectiveness of the Government loyalty program and other security measures.
3. Activities of enforcement agencies.
4. The "use of secrecy."

"The country needs reassurance that its public servants are loyal," Biddle said.

Tax Critics Get Warning of Bigger Bite

By the United Press

The Senate's two top tax leaders told businessmen yesterday to stop complaining about an excess profits levy lest the Government taken an even bigger bite out of their earnings.

The warnings were voiced by Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), the committee's top Republican member. It came during a hearing on an excess profits tax bill passed by the House Tuesday night.

The House bill would put a 75 percent tax on the swollen profits of corporations since the start of the Korean war. Sponsors estimated it would raise $3,400,000,000 by next June 30 and more later.

A group of business spokesmen appeared before the Finance Committee yesterday to argue for a boost in regular corporation tax rates instead of an excess profits levy.

Gerhard Mayer, representing the Commerce and Industry Association of New York, was testifying when Millikin and George abruptly warned the business critics to stop complaining.

"You might as well reconcile yourself that you're going to get an excess profits tax," Millikin declared. "If you should beat it, you might get a tax that's a whole lot worse."

Mayer said he wasn't arguing against a tax boost but insisted the excess profits levy is unfair.

George predicted that his committee will approve a bill, possibly next week, to raise between three and four billion dollars to help pay for the Korean war and the expanding defense program.

He said some changes may be made in the House-approved bill but declined to say what they might be.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), a committee member, interrupted the hearing to caution against an excess profits tax which might curb production or expansion.

Taft's warning was in line with business protests that an excess profits levy discriminates against rapidly growing companies.

Tax Experts Group Sees Injury in New Tax

Still another group of tax experts yesterday added its voice to that of business organizations condemning the proposed excess profits tax as hurtful to small firms, inflationary and depressive to production.

The organization is the Committee on Postwar Tax Policy, headed by Rosewell Magill, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, and comprised of four other nationally known fiscal experts.

Like the National Association of Manufacturers, the Committee for Economic Development and private ad hoc groups organized to fight the tax, the Magill committee argued that a better alternative is a "defense tax spread over the whole of business earnings," in other words, higher straight tax rates on corporate profits.

In a lengthy report, the committee contended that the excess profits tax was seen to be a failure in both World War I and II.

Auto Dealers Attack Credit Regulations

By The Associated Press

Automobile dealers complained bitterly to a joint Senate-House "watchdog" committee yesterday about the new credit regulations governing the purchase of automobiles.

Meanwhile, there was no immediate confirmation of reports that the Economic Stabilization Administration had asked the Ford Motor Company and General Motors to rescind their newly announced automobile price increases, averaging about 5 percent.

The Government itself indulged in a little price raising during the day. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in charge of the synthetic rubber program, hoisted the price of GR-S, the type of synthetic rubber used in making tires, from 18.5 cents to 24.5 cents a pound. That's better than 32 percent. Higher production costs, the RFC explained. That was the reason the auto makers cited for their price increase.

Food Prices Up Again

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food prices rose another .7 percent in the first two weeks of November, and the same bureau submitted detailed statistics on prices, wages, rents and other cost of living data to the new Wage Stabilization Board in preparation for the board's first full-dress consideration of the economic situation next week.

The National Automobile Dealers Association declared that the Federal Reserve Board imposed "harsh" auto credit controls in an arbitrary manner.

The association's criticism prompted Representative Patman (D., Tex.) to denounce the board's handling of installment buying terms on autos and to demand that it be stripped of authority to operate the consumer credit control program. Patman said the power should be placed in the hands of President Truman.

Praised by Robertson

The board was praised, however, by Senator Robertson (D., Va.). He said it is the only Government agency "that has done anything to really curb inflation" since Congress enacted the Economic Controls law last September.

That law gave the Reserve Board full jurisdiction over consumer credit.

The matter came up yesterday as the Senate-House "watchdog" committee, set up under the law, started public hearings on dealer and purchaser protests that the board's credit controls on autos are too drastic.

The board's first order, issued last September, called for a down payment of one-third, with no more than 21 months to pay the balance. In October the 21-month feature was changed to 15 months.

William L. Mallon of Newark, N. J., chairman of the public affairs committee of the Automobile Dealers Association, testified that the Reserve Board conferred with industry representatives for only about 15 minutes before the September order was issued. He said there was no consultation before the second order.

Mallon, who said his organization represents about 90 percent of the country's dealers, urged that the committee intervene and arrange a hearing for the dealers before the board.

Commerce Again Tightens Up Export Controls for Red China

The Commerce Department tightened its controls on exports to Red China again yesterday amid angry demands by some U. S. Senators that the U. S. and Britain impose absolute embargoes against such trade.

The department moved to intercept some cargoes for China, Hong Kong and Macao which were loaded under export licenses before exports of all kinds to those places were brought last weekend under licensing controls that previously covered only "strategic" commodities.

It announced that ships so loaded will be stopped and their cargoes held if they put into any U. S. port before clearing the country.

Ships must also off-load affected cargo before they will be permitted to pass through the Panama Canal Zone, the department's order said.

The action was announced shortly after Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) had told the Senate that at least eight American ships are now en route to Red China, loaded with great quantities of drugs used in treating wounded soldiers and other war-useful material.

O'Conor said eight ships flying the American flag sailed from New York between November 2 and November 27 for the British crown colony of Hongkong or for North China.

The Maryland Senator, chairman of a Senate subcommittee which has investigated exports to the Chinese Communists, added:

"None of this material could leave any American port today without a proper export license, and I am sure no such license would be issued."

But O'Conor said that so far as he knew, nothing was yet being done by the executive branch to halt delivery of the materials already enroute from New York.

Raw Goods Control Aim of Talks Here

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

When the Truman-Attlee talks yesterday turned to economic items, the principal topic was the matter of a fair division of strategic raw materials.

Concern over this problem has been snowballing in recent weeks in Europe. The United Kingdom, in particular, has served notice that unless immediate action is taken on a few commodities, the British defense production effort will be seriously damaged.

Among the items on which the British are asking remedial measures at the soonest possible date are cotton, cotton linters, copper, zinc and sulphur.

Both Americans and British are agreed on this point, it was learned, and now are equally convinced—after a period of indecision and vacillation—that action must be taken promptly.

The British Prime Minister and his associates were vehement on these points in yesterday's talks. So much so, in fact, that the technical matters involved—principally the form of the allocations mechanism and the nature of necessary material controls — were handed over to working parties of both governments.

They were instructed to come up with specific recommendations within a day or two, to be considered by President Truman and Mr. Attlee before the latter ends his visit here.

Late yesterday, Treasury Secretary Snyder reported to the Truman-Attlee meetings that the working groups were already on the job and making good progress.

At the meetings yesterday, Mr. Truman and his advisers stressed the problem of fair distribution of scarce raw materials. That implies that, if strategic materials are to be allocated among the Western Allies, and if the United States limits domestic consumption of some of the materials it produces in order to send larger amounts abroad, all the nations must agree to equitable cutbacks and restrictions on non-military use of such items.

It would be unfair, for example, for the United States to cut back civilian consumption of copper, thus allowing more of the world supply to flow to the United Kingdom, if that nation kept on using copper at its peacetime rate for peacetime products.

Or, if the United States forbids the use of scarce metals in a whole series of civilian items—as it has done already—it would be unfair for Britain to keep making those same items.

It was uncertain yesterday whether the British proposed that the international distribution of materials should be engineered by a combined allocations board, similar to the British-Canadian-U. S. agency which handled such matters during World War II, or whether there should be a series of arrangements, commodity by commodity, among the world's principal consuming and producing nations.

Aside from the actual mechanism of making allocation decisions, it is felt that the most difficult problem involved is the matter of uniform controls or restrictions on the use to which the shared materials will be put by the 12 North Atlantic countries.

On the American side, it is conceded that this nation still has a long way to go in imposing orders curtailing the non-military use of certain metals and other products. It is admitted that the purposes of Western defense are not best served if America continues to use zinc, for example, in metal toys when European armament industries are idle for the lack of it.

Also, it is conceded here that America may have to make more of a cutback, proportionately, than its European allies, simply because it has more "fat" to cut back.

On the other hand, United States conferees insist that equitable, if not equal, limitations be imposed among the other nations on the use to which scarce supplies are put.

Europeans have attributed much of the trouble in raw materials—both in prices and availabilities—to what they feel is over-extensive American buying for stockpiling.

After yesterday morning's meeting—the first to take up economic questions—the White House issued the following communique:

"The discussion centered on the economic problems arising from the mutual defense efforts, with particular reference to raw material requirements.

"It was agreed that the problem of raw materials shortages was vitally urgent and that vigorous efforts should be made to increase production and to assure the most effective use of the limited supplies available.

"A wide area of agreement was apparent, and a working party was established to explore the matter further."

Senate, House Groups Vote Yugoslav Aid

By The Associated Press

An additional United States grant of 38 million dollars to feed Yugoslavia was approved by committees of the Senate and House yesterday and apparently had a good chance of congressional passage.

Earlier, 31 million dollars of American help had been provided out of Marshall Plan and military aid funds—not requiring Congressional approval.

Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia, which is a Communist country but bitterly anti-Kremlin, is suffering from a food shortage.

The bill that got approval yesterday would "authorize" the 38-million-dollar gift. Actural appropriation of the money would require another bill.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee providved that Yugoslavia must give "full publicity" to the fact that the United Statts is helping the Yugoslavs. Also that relief supplies must be distributed without discrimination as to race and political or religious beliefs.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee provided that whenever the Yugoslav government sells relief supplies to its people for local currency, it must use an equivalent amount of such currency to provide relief to the needy.

Senator Connally (D., Tex.) said there was no opposition from the eight members present (five were absent) He didn't think the bill would have much trouble passing the Senate.

Cominform Lists Actions Toward Tito 'Overthrow'

VIENNA, Dec. 6 (AP).—The Cominform believes it is progressing toward an internal overthrow of the anti-Russian regime in Yugoslavia.

In its weekly publication, the Cominform claimed Yugoslavs faithful to Stalin were making life hard for Marshal Tito, despite his secret police and his purge of pro-Soviet elements.

The publications claimed organized sabotage is increasing in factories, mines and lumber camps, and illustrated:

"At the Udarnik hosiery factory in Zrenjanin, large quantities of stockings are produced with serious defects.

"Eleven thousand three hundred out of 14,500 kilograms of copper wire manufactured at the Rade Koncar plant had to be discarded.

"At the Ivo Lola Ribar enterprise in Zeleznik, brand new lathes were damaged . . . in assembling the lathes, workers destroyed parts without which the lathes are useless."

Yugoslavs Accept British Loan Offer

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—Yugoslavia formally accepted today a British offer of three million pounds ($8,400,000) loan to help tide her over a winter food crisis.

The Belgrade government some months ago also appealed to Britain for a longer-term capital loan—running to about 20 million pounds (56 million dollars)—to help her develop metal and timber resources.

This request is still under study, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

Ruhr Group Sees French Steel Trust

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—Ruhr industrialists asserted today that French iron and steel interests are trying to create huge new trusts before the Schuman Plan to pool west European steel and coal resources goes into effect.

If the trust plan is carried out, the Germans say, it will give the French an unequally strong status in the Schuman Plan because German industry—by contrast—is being forcibly broken up into small units by the Allied occupation powers.

Ruhr informants said they had reports of the formation of one big new French combine, to be called "Unione Federurgique Lorraine," through the merger of the following three companies: Compagnie des Forges et Acieres de la Marine et de Homecourt; Societe Anonyme des Acieres de Micheville, and Societe Anonyme des Hautes Fourneaux et Fonderies de Pont-a-Mousson.

Ruhr experts estimate the new combine will have a raw steel capacity of 1,500,000 tons a year, plus approximately 400,000 tons of foundry pig-iron.

German steel men said this concentration in Lorraine by the Laurent and homecourt group followed two smiilar moves by the same interests.

Leading Ruhr industrialists complain that the alleged move to concentrate French steel industries is an open effort to create cartel-like combines before the antitrust clauses of the Schuman Plan become effective.

Those clauses would forbid all amalgamation of industries under control of the proposed high authority and would forbid any person who possesses more than a 10-percent interest in any one company to acquire interests in another company within the pool.

Pre-Christmas Peace Prayers Asked by Pope

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 6 (AP).—Pope Pius XII called upon Roman Catholics today to join in pre-Christmas prayers for "a just and sure peace."

The Pontiff declared in a Holy Year encyclical to Catholic bishops that use of mankind's newly discovered weapons of war would bring ruin.

He appealed for "public prayers . . . to obtain from God the peace and concord of peoples, so that under the auspices of religion a sacred crusade be promoted to oppose the unrestrained struggle from which come so many calamities to mankind."

The Pope urged that the prayers for peace be made during the Novena—the church's customary nine prayer days before Christmas. The Pontiff will lead the appeal for divine intercession in a radio broadcast at midnight Thursday (6 p. m. Eastern Standard Time) celebrating the eucharistic sacrifice preceding the feast of the immaculate conception.

Doctors Give Half-Million For Education

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 6.—The American Medical Association today appropriated $500,000 for distribution as unrestricted aid to the Nation's 79 accredited medical schools.

The sum was taken from AMA's national education campain fund, the doctors' so-called war chest against national compulsory health insurance.

Its beneficiaries will include Georgetown, George Washington and Howard universities, in Washington, D. C.; the University of Maryland and Johns Hopkins University in Maryland, and the Universit yof Virginia, Charlottesville, and the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, in Virginia.

Planned as "Nucleus"

The initial sum voted here was described as "only the nucleus" of even greater amounts the AMA hopes to raise for the same purpose through "contributions from many other sources."

Tough AMA trustees stressed that the commitment was for 1951 only, they indicated it might lead to a foundation which would provide like or even greater amounts annually to the hard-pressed medical schools.

"We hope the idea will get going like a snowball down hill, perhaps even starting a chain reaction in American life against Federal subsidies, and Federal control," declared Dr. Louis H. Bauer of Hempstead, N. Y., chairman of the board of trustees.

The board announcement stipulated that the fund allocated will be given to medical schools "for their unrestricted use in their basic training of future physicians."

Answer to Charges

He said he hoped that outside contributions might swell the fund to "several million dollars."

Today's action was interpreted by many as AMA's answer to charges that the doctors are doing little to help out their medical schools, or increase the annual crop of new physicians.

In the latter respect, AMA officials admitted, the money allocated as aid will have little effect, since virtually all the schools are already operating to capacity, "and you can't build very much with only $500,000."

Today's surprise announcement, at the second-day meeting of the four-day, fourth annual clinical session of the AMA, was made before a special meeting of the organization's House of Delegates, AMA's policy-making body. The delegates voted unanimously to "approve and commend" the action of the trustees.

To Continue Advertising

The board of trustees is custodian of the funds, first raised by voluntary, $25 assessment of each physician last year, and since sustained through new annual dues authorized last December.

In October, the AMA spent more than 1 million dollars in an all-out campaign against national compulsory health insurance.

"We'll continue to support that phase of our educational campaign, but so far the indications are that we won't have to be so intense about it," declared Dr. Bauer.

He praised AMA-supporting organizations which independently spent 2 million dollars, almost double what the AMA spent, in the October advertising.

Himalayas Held No Invasion Bar

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 6 (AP). The Indian parliament heard a warning today that an aggressor can surmount the mighty Himalayas as easily as the Germans disposed of the Maginot Line.

J. B. Kirpalani, leader of a rebel group within the ruling Congress Party, said India must not depend upon the mountain chain for her northern defense. He predicted Nepal, a buffer state between India and Tibet, will be the next Communist objective. Invasion there will surely drag India into war, he said.

Prime Minister Nehru warned India will not tolerate infiltration across the border into Nepal, nor conditions in Nepal which weaken India's frontier.

Nehru said only negotiation can settle the Korean crisis and "the fate of the world depends on the big powers."

"I make an earnest appeal that those countries make every effort to solve the present tangle by peaceful methods," he added.

Nehru emphasized India stands on her basic position that the North Koreans were aggressors, denounced the atomic bomb as a symbol of incarnate evil, declared the problem of Korea "can be solved only with the cooperation of China—or at least with its acquiescence." and proposed that any parley over Korea should extend later to include the future of Formosa, the Chinese Nationalist stronghold.

He said India will continue to recognize the exiled King Tribhuvana as ruler of Nepal.

Nehru said his government has insisted that Peiping make a peaceful settlement in the Tibetan invasion, and provide internal autonomy for Tibet, subject to nominal Chinese authority.

He said France and Portugal eventually must give up their possessions in India and, referring to the treatment of Asians in South Africa, declared "we shall not submit to racialism in any part of the world."

He paid tribute to United States forces in Korea:

"They have suffered greatly and I think our sympathies should go out to them in this present predicament."

German Chorus Line Defies New Morals Code

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—A German morals drive today put brassiers on photos of dancers distributed to advertise Frankfurt night clubs, but the girls defied the police and appeared without them in the flesh.

German strip-teasers, called "beauty dancers" in German, said police or no police they would not deprive their public of "the most beautiful thing in culture."

Erich Rausch, Frankfurt morals squad inspector, ordered night clubs to put brassieres on their dancers and even on the throwaways distributed to publicize their charms.

The throwaways appeared today with the same photographs of voluptuous undressed girls with brassieres.

But not in the hotspots themselves

Fatima, B-B Club beauty dancer, said she was campaigning for "freedom from uplifts." She recalled that when she danced in Prague she appeared in well-hidden clubs because the Communists opposed nudity.

"Is this order the opening wedge for Communism in Germany?" she asked.

Jopie Van Laar, a "Spanish dancer" from Amsterdam, said "if a dancer is artistic it doesn't matter if she wears nothing at all. People just look at her for her grace."

"Bunk," said Karl Schroeder, manager of the Bonbonniere. "Men just come to see flesh."

Protect Interests

U. N. Group Asks Chinese To Quit Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—The United Nations Commission on Korea broadcast an appeal to the Chinese Communists today to withdraw their forces from the country and promised to consider "any proposal likely to insure a condition of stability."

Ziaud-din Mian of Pakistan, chairman of the U. N. commission, broadcast the appeal over Radio Seoul. It was translated into both Korean and Chinese for broadcasting to the Chinese and the North Koreans.

"The U. N. Commission for unification and rehabilitation of Korean wishes to restate its aims in Korea, which are to work for the relief and rehabilitation of the country," Mian said.

"The commission's aim is to do this work with the help of Korea and then to leave Korea to the Koreans.

"The task of the U. N. forces was nearing completion, but now untold suffering and destruction are threatened in Korea. The commission appeals for the immediate withdrawal from Korean soil of Chinese forces

Fraud Trial Opens For Ex-Postmaster

French S. Brawner, former Dumfries (Va.) postmaster, went on trial in Alexandria's Federal Court yesterday on a 60-count indictment charging forgery and mail theft.

Brawner, who was acquitted of a single forgery charge in the same court last December, is under indictment for allegedly forging 29 Government checks, passing them, embezzling a letter in which one of the checks was mailed and forging a postal money order. The indictments were returned by a grand jury in Newport News last July.

The 61-year-old former postmaster, who resigned his job shortly after his acquittal in the earlier case, pleaded innocent to all charges.

Most of the opening day of the trial was devoted to introduction of evidence and identification of checks. Government Attorneys John P. Harper and William Ealy put on the stand 25 persons to whom the checks were mailed. They testified they never received the proceeds.

The Government will offer handwriting experts today in its effort to establish that the checks were forged by Brawner.

Defense Counsel T. Brooke Howard, in his opening statement, indicated he will base his defense on a flat denial that the postmaster was responsible for the forgeries. Brawner, he told the 14-man jury, is "being persecuted and not prosecuted by the Government in this case."

All of the checks involved in the case were income tax refunds, and were mailed through the Dumfries postoffice in 1946, 1947, 1948 and 1949, Government attorneys said. The trial resumes today at 10 a. m.

McGrath Letter Renews Demand For Ban on Slots

Attorney General McGrath yesterday renewed an urgent plea that Congress prohibit interstate shipment of slot machines.

He told Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, in a letter which McGrath made public today that "with each passing day" the need for a law banning shipment of the machines "becomes more apparent."

Both the House and Senate have passed such a bill, but in different forms. A compromise measure has been blocked by Senator Malone (D., Nev.), who talked against it for 11 hours just before Congress recessed last September.

The ban was originally proposed by the Attorney General's crime conference here last February.

VA Clerk Charged With Moral Offense

Jerome F. Proctor, 34, a Veterans Administration clerk, charged with soliciting for a lewd and immoral purpose and assault, was released in $1000 bond in Municipal Court yesterday and his case was continued to December 22.

John L. B. Keene, 1821 Belmont st. nw., pleaded guilty to a charge of soliciting for a lewd and immoral purpose, and was fined $75.

Six Buildings Set For 2000 More Defense Workers

Six area buildings are being readied for 2000 additional Defense Department employes by General Services Administration.

Three, now occupied by D. C. Paper Mills at 2351 and 3255 Water st. nw. and 1031 Potomac st. nw., have been leased to accommodate 1200 employes after March 15. Others are 701, 703 and 705 Old Columbia pike, next to the Pentagon south parking lot. Army, Navy and GSA records stored there will be moved to the Federal Records Center in Alexandria. The buildings will accommodate 550 employes at first, 800 ultimately.

Marines and GIs Battling to Escape Red Chinese Trap

south to Koto into a "death valley."

At 6:30 a. m. Wednesday (4:30 p. m. Tuesday, EST) the break out attack began at Hagarau. At 7:25 a. m. today it was disclosed that the first American elements had reached Koto.

Forty-eight miles south of Hungnam across the Gulf of Chosen, the American garrison began pulling out from the port of Wonsan, presumably by sea.

The garrison, believed to be small, was covered by South Korean Marines still holding Wonsan and fighting off Red guerrilas in the area.

United States Eighth Army headquarters, which disclosed the withdrawal, said the South Korean Marines would follow. The American and South Korean forces will be moved to another point on the east coast.

Navy Guns Cover Move

A Navy summary said the Wonsan operation was covered by the guns of three United States destroyers—the Hank, Sperry and Zellars. They fired approximately 600 rounds of 5-inch ammunition at the Reds.

The U. S. Eighth Army, on a new defense line south of Pyongyang in northwest Korea, reported today it still was out of contact with the main Chinese Communist armies.

The only contact of any degree reported by U. N. troops was at two points near the line. One was at Sinchang, 26 miles southeast of Pyongyang, by elements of the U. S. Twenty-fourth Division. The other was by an engineering unit 10 miles southwest of Sariwon. That is more than 40 miles southwest of Pyongyang.

Allied planes maintained their heavy combat support. Pilots reported at least 1700 Red troops were killed Wednesday.

Chinese Reds kept pouring into North Korea from Manchuria, building up to a one million man force. Already the Reds have forced United Nations troops in northwest Korea to retreat more than 120 miles and have turned the U. N. situation in the northeast into a flight for survival.

General MacArthur reported additional Reds in at least divisional strength moving toward the northeastern and possibly the western sector of the battle area.

United States Eighth Army headquarters reported a Chinese Communist force of about 5000 was spotted by aerial observers Wednesday moving south and southeast about 4 miles south of Pyongyang, North Korean Communist capital abandoned by the Allies.

The Reds were moving on trails and secondary roads. They had not yet reached the new defense line, the location of which was not disclosed.

Air strikes killed about 100 Reds 10 miles southwest of Pyongyang and 300 about 3 miles northwest of Pyongyang.

The Eighth Army said civilian and South Korean army reports indicated a large Red force in the Koksan area. The reports did not make clear whether these were fresh Red troops from the north or reassembled guerrillas who were by-passed in the allied march to the north weeks ago.

Allies Thin In That Area

Koksan, however, is in the middle of the Korean peninsula where allied forces previously have been thin.

The Eighth Army Forces of Americans, South Koreans, British and Turks halted their mass withdrawal south from Pyongyang Wednesday and dug in for a new stand against oncoming Reds.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone reported that a column of the U. S. Third Infantry Division struck out Wednesday in an effort to reach U. S. Marines and infantrymen trapped south of the Changjin reservoir but that a Chinese attack stopped it only two miles north of Majon.

100 Miles South of Yanks

Majon is 16 air miles inland from the east coast port of Wonsan and nearly 100 miles south of the encircled Americans.

General MacArthur's war summary said a Red column 30 miles long was sighted and attacked by United States warplanes in the vicinity of the reservoir. He said it apparently was a division of troops, moving to the northeast front with artillery and self-propelled guns.

Other Smaller Groups

Other smaller enemy troop concentrations were sighted moving toward the northeast front.

MacArthur said the Reds can be expected to commit large scale reinforcements with no warning "whenever such a move will further the interests of the Chinese Communists."

The United Nations commander reported few contacts have been made with North Korean Communist units since November 22. He said that "it is logical to assume that these forces have withdrawn to rear areas to regroup and reorganize."

"The probability that many North Koreans are training and regrouping in Manchuria must not be overlooked," he added, "for in that privileged sanctuary they would be safe from United Nations air attacks."

The United Nations warplanes gave Reds in North Korea little rest. They struck hard at Chinese Communists moving into Pyongyang, and bombed and rocketed enemy-held towns, supply trains and other installations behind the lines.

NEW BATTLES—Chinese Red troops moved south and southeast of Pyongyang (A), as Allied units made contact with them at Koksan (B). At Majon other United Nations troops trying to move north to the aid of beleaguered forces in the Changjin Reservoir area (C) were halted by the Reds. A Red column was advancing on United Nations troops cut off in the reservoir area. These Marines and GIs were battling to get out of the trap. Russians Reach Tehran For Debt Claim Parley

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 6 (AP).—A government spokesman today said a Russian delegation has arrived to begin talks on payment of the 20 million dollars Iran claims the Soviet Union owes for use of bases during the war.

At the same time press and propaganda director Bahrum Shahrokh issued a formal denial of a statement last Monday by a high government official that all army leaves had been canceled because of concern over Korean developments. Other army sources still insisted, however, that the leaves had been canceled.

Ad Buying Hits Peak

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (U.P.).—More money was spent for national advertising in October than in any previous month in history, according to Printers' Ink. The advertising magazine revealed today that its index for October showed an increase of 9 percent over September and 19 percent over October 1949.

Officer Burns Self on 'Hot' Vice Evidence

No evidence is too hot to touch, as far as Arlington Detective Russell Runyon is concerned.

When Runyon and three other policemen raided a suspected numbers center yesterday, the detective peered into a pot-bellied stove, looking for evidence. There, he said, was a numbers book, beginning to burn merrily.

The detective grabbed the slightly-singed evidence with his left hand, suffering first degree burns in the process.

He and Detective Walter Kadel filed charges of operating a lottery against Miss Margaret E. Brooks, 42, of 1517 S. 13th st., and John S. Nails, 48, whose house at 1014 S. Queen st. was raided. Nails was freed in $500 bond and Miss Brooks in $300 bond for hearing at 9:30 a. m. today in Arlington County Court.

Graham Calls For Abolition Of U.N. Veto

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—Former United States Senator Frank Graham said here today that the veto in the United Nations should be abolished or subjected to "rigid restriction."

In a plea for a stronger U. N., he also urged that the organization have an international police force and a world court with jurisdiction over crimes of individuals against the U. N.

Doctor Graham, former Senator from North Carolina and ex-president of the University of North Carolina, spoke at the third general session of the fifty-fifth annual convention of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

HENRY THOMAS
. . . Testifies at Red Inquiry

Frankfeld — whom Thomas described as chairman of the D. C.-Maryland Communist Party—ruled that the bookkeeper must be retained, and the decision was accepted, Thomas said.

Thomas, who is in his thirties, was the first witness to appear be-House Un-American Affairs Committee delving into the activities fore a special subcommittee of the of Communists here.

Somewhat sensational revelations were expected to be forthcoming from Thomas yesterday, when it was learned that after he had been subpenaed as a witness last Thursday Thomas had made two voluntary appearances before committee staff aides to "tell all."

In three hours of testimony, before the committee recessed until 10 a. m. today, Thomas' narrative and replies to questions provided little information not already amassed in the committee records.

Among the miscellaneous disclosures made by Thomas, were the following:

During the late '30s and apparently right up until World War II, the Communist Party here maintained a branch or cell for high school students 14 to 17 years of age. Thomas specifically named Central High School as a source for members, but said there were few in all.

The Reds also had a cell at Howard University, and another either at American University or George Washington University of both—Thomas wasn't sure which.

Altogether, Thomas was acquainted with around a dozen cells, but "they never let us know" who was in the White Collar cell, and he couldn't even mention "the super-duper secret branch" of the party operating in the government. Under questioning, Thomas said that he didn't know any Communists who were employed by the Federal government.

Largest of the Communist Party branches, according to Thomas, was Unit No. 1, operating in midtown Washington, which ran a successful campaign for members among the Negroes here by playing up charges of police brutality during 1939-41. Thomas indicated that most of the members signed up during the campaign quit the party almost as fast as they came in, "like a revolving door."

Henry Thomas told the committee he had joined the Communist Party here in the winter of 1937-38. He was flat broke, out of work for months, and walking the streets in dilapidated shoes held together by wire. He asked a stranger for a cigarette. The stranger proved to be Martin Chancy, then the big wheel in the Communist Party, according to Thomas, and Chancy persuaded Thomas to join the party.

Thomas, a natural orator, learned the ropes quickly and in a matter of weeks he was sent out to organize a Southwest Washington cell.

By 1940, Thomas was held in such high regard by the party, that he was sent to an "advanced training school" in New York City, at party expense, to take a six-weeks course in the theories of Marx, Lenin and Stalin.

The school was an important one, Thomas said, and the 20 or so students attending the classes were on their way to becoming "professional revolutionaries," which means — according to Thomas—that the students were prepared to sever their ties with "family, church, and institutions" at the command of the Communist Party.

Thomas, confessed, under questioning, that some of the lectures were pretty heavy and dull, and that he fell asleep every time he tried to read Marx's "Das Kapital."

During the war, Thomas said he served 28 months in the Army—"I love my record in the Army"—carried on no Communist activities while in the Army, and that he rejoined the Communist Party about a month after his discharge on December 6, 1945.

Formed Cell Nucleus

Shortly afterward, Thomas was assigned to create a laborer's cell and work on getting control of Local 74. The nucleus of this cell, Thomas testified, was made up of himself; his wife, Gladys; William Gray and Ernest Chambers.

Thomas said that in 1946 he met up with Tom Sampler, then heading a rank and file committee fighting with racketeers for control of Local 74. They became good friends, and in 1947, with the help of William Taylor, then chairman of the Communist Party in the District, Thomas persuaded Sampler to join the party. By 1948 the cell managed to win the key posts of the union, and they ran the local to fit the needs of the Communist Party line.

The general membership of the union last night approved by more than a two-thirds majority the decision of a union trial board that acquitted Sampler of charges of disrupting the union.

However, not more than 50 members were present when the vote was taken. Other members, including Thomas, who was ill, left earlier during a prolonged argument over auditing of the union's books. There were about 200 members present when the meeting started at 525 New Jersey ave. nw.

After the meeting, Sampler was asked if he would affirm statements today that Thomas made about him yesterday before the House committee. Sampler answered, "I'll tell the truth. That may be contradictory to what Thomas said yesterday."

the campaign of the MacArthur legions beyond the 38th parallel northward to the Manchurian border at the time, but now they make appeals for a halt at the 38th parallel."

The 13 countries are India, the Philippines, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Indonesia, Burma, Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen.

Six of these—Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Yemen and Hashemite Jordan make up the Arab League, whose secretary general put in a plea today for a Stalin-Truman meeting.

Yugoslavia Backs Move

One Communist country—Yugoslavia—backed the 13-nation appeal. Ales Bebler, Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister, said the proposal is the "best way" to prevent the spread of the Korean war. He spoke at a Yugoslav friendship lunch given by the churchman associates at Town Hall Club.

The Secretary General of the seven-nation Arab League, Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, submitted a formal memorandum today to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie, caling for a 30-day truce to lay groundwork for a meeting of President Truman and Prime Minister Stalin.

The league leader told reporters that U. S. and Russian delegates had not yet been sounded out on the idea.

The political committee is expected to be tied up Thursday in a wrangle from the start. Vishinsky is expected to demand that the committee continue discussing his charge that the U. S. committed aggression against China and Formosa, but the majority is ready to vote that to one side and to take up the Korean crisis at once.

Police Seek Motive in Deaths Of Middle-Aged Pair in Car

Police searched for a motive yesterday in the mysterious murder-suicide of a middle-aged couple, evidently by mutual consent, in Montgomery County Tuesday night.

It was apparent that 63-year-old Wilson Delano Clark, of the Alban Towers apartments at 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw., fatally shot his wife, Frances, in the head and then took his own life, police reported.

Their bodies were found in an automobile on Route 28, less than a mile south of Darnestown, Md., Tuesday night. The woman was at the wheel and the man was on her right, a .38 caliber revolver clutched in his right hand. Two bullet holes were found in the car.

A copy of a telegram to Clark's son, found in the dead man's pocket with a letter, another note on the car door and a piece of canvas spread over the front seat led police to conclude the tragedy had been prearranged by agreement between the couple.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County coroner, yesterday signed a certificate of murder and suicide.

Police hoped to get further information from John D. Clark of Berkeley, Calif., the son who was en route here last night.

In the elder Clark's pocket was the following message:

"Telegram—to John D. Clark—40 Ardmore rd., Berkeley, Calif. Both your parents died today. Decedents request cremation but bodies are being held pending your instructions on arrival and identification. Communicate with Attorney Charles L. Widman, 5800 Massachusetts ave. nw."

Another message in his pocket was addressed "to whom it may concern." It asked that the telegram be sent "immediately" and directed that the car be taken to the Alban Towers garage.

Typewritten on a shipping tag attached to the window of the car, a 1942 Chrysler coupe, was a note giving Clark's name and address and bearing instructions that more information would be found in his bureau drawer.

There police found another copy of the telegraph message and a note to the apartment manager asking that Clark's effects be held for his son.

Widman said he had been asked by Clark to draw up a will and handle some "personal papers" several weeks ago. Clark "joked about the will" at the time, Widman told police, and said ne "hoped it would be a long time before he needed it."

He said he understood Clark had been in ill health for about a year and had had a "slight stroke" Mrs. Clark, Widman said.

a month ago. He did not know

Frank Boswell of Rockville reported to police Tuesday night that he had first noticed the car parked beside the highway around 7 p. m. He passed by again some three hours later and saw it had not moved. Noticing a bullet hole in the rear window and a woman's head above the front seat, he called police.

Widman identified Clark's body at the Gartner funeral home in Gaithersburg. Attendants at the Alban Towers said he and Mrs. Clark had been living there since June 20. Police said he was formerly from Seattle, Wash.

Judge Voids $25,316 Verdict Jury Found Against 'Mr. Tash'

Judge James W. Morris yesterday set aside a $25,316 jury verdict against Leon A. Tashof, owner of the New York Jewelry Co., 719 7th st. nw., and ordered a new trial.

The sum has been awarded to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Brown, 312 Rittenhouse st. nw., after the wife charged that Mr. Tashof—commonly known as Mr. Tash—had coerced her into turning over $10,000 to him while she was a cashier at his business. According to the suit, Tashof accused Mrs. Brown of embezzling money and threatened her until she signed admissions and gave him money.

Judge Morris asserted much of Mrs. Brown's testimony was contradicted in depositions and by an auditor's report in the case.

Tashof, who was represented by Attorney Irving Yochelson, denied any wrongdoing, and said Mrs. Brown's actions were entirely voluntary.

Sothoron Is Elected To Democratic Post

L. Harold Sothoron, "lame duck" president of the Maryland State Senate, has been elected a member of the Prince Georges County Democratic State Central Committee, Edward A. Fuller, chairman, announced yesterday.

He replaces Mrs. Mary W. Browning, who died recently. Sothoron, a member of the State Senate since 1942, was defeated in the November 7 election by John Raymond Fletcher of Cheverly.

Lawrence to Head Project To Study Fairfax Changeover

David Lawrence, Washington magazine editor, yesterday was named chairman of a research project designed to help Fairfax County authorities put into effect a governmental change dictated by the voters in referendum last November 7.

Lawrence was appointed to the post by the county's board of supervisors after Lawrence himself offered a resolution providing for development of the research program. The chairman and members of his staff will serve without pay, but the board appropriated $1000 to meet "incidental expenses."

The resolution also provided that a "capable" employe of the county be assigned to the research project as a full-time secretary.

Purpose of the project, Lawrence told the supervisors, would be to "get all the facts and information on paper with respect to administrative duties" under the county executive form of government. The new form of government takes effect January 1, 1952.

He suggested that the study group analyze the experience of counties, "not only inside but outside Virginia," that have set up new administrative departments. He proposed visits to other counties and conferences with their officials to get "first-hand" their experiences in the problems of transition.

Charles G. Ross

There are many in Washington who share the intimate sense of bereavement expressed by the President over the loss of his devoted friend and press secretary, Charles Ross. Newspapermen have particular reason to mourn his death. He dealt with them, in his official relationship, with an even-handedness born of an understanding of their craft and of a high probity. He was one of them—one of the very best. As a Washington correspondent, he won both the affection and the admiration of his colleagues. As a teacher of journalism, he was considered by his students a model and an inspiration. As a man, he deserved the final tribute of his friend, Harry Truman: "In the many roles of life he played his part with exalted honor and an honesty of purpose from which he never deviated."

There are few tasks more trying than to stand between the President and the press. The assignment calls for a constant checking of impetuosity on the one hand and of importunity on the other. Charles Ross was perhaps less alert and tough in the discharge of this function than his predecessor, Stephen Early; it is never easy to restrain a President. And Charles Ross' character was essentially a gentle one. But if he did not invariably manage to keep his boss from imprudence, he contributed much, nevertheless, of courage and candor and conscience. Friendship kept him at a post which must often have seemed uncongenial to his reflective, sensitive nature. He must indeed have been, as the President said of him, "a tower of strength."

Coplon Reversal

It would be, of course, an unfortunate miscarriage of justice if Judith Coplon should escape punishment for the crime of espionage—of which, as the Second Circuit Court of Appeals observed, her "guilt is plain." But it would be a miscarriage and distortion of justice far more serious to the real welfare of the American people if her conviction were brought about by unlawful acts on the part of Government agents.

The unlawful acts which led the Court of Appeals to reverse Miss Coplon's conviction stemmed, no doubt, from excessive zeal rather than from any evil intent on the part of the FBI. Nevertheless they did grave violence to her rights as a citizen and impaired her chances of a fair trial. FBI agents arrested her without a warrant—an unlawful act, according to Judge Learned Hand because "no sudden emergency forced the hand of the agents. They made everything ready except the one condition which would have made the arrest lawful: a warrant." The illegality of the arrest made invalid the seizure of incriminating documents in her possession and their introduction as evidence at her trial.

The FBI also unlawfully tapped Miss Coplon's telephone and failed adequately to show that the evidence against her came from other sources. "The prosecution," said Judge Hand, "may not introduce against an accused evidence which it has obtained by its own violation of law." The Supreme Court ruled a decade ago in the second Nardone case that the provision of the Communications Act of 1934 forbidding the use of evidence obtained by wire tapping "applies not only to the intercepted conversations themselves but also, by implication, to evidence procured through the use of knowledge gained from such conversations." Since wire tapping is itself unlawful and since no lawful use may be made of information obtained by resort to it, there seems no justification whatever for this invasion of the rights of privacy by a Federal police agency—at least in the present state of the law.

The ugliest aspect of the Coplon case was what this newspaper, in an editorial on January 17, 1950, called "a barefaced attempt (on the part of the FBI) to deceive a United States Court about their wire-tapping activities." The attempt succeeded in Miss Coplon's first trial before Judge Reeves in Washington. It was exposed in a hearing prior to her second trial before Judge Ryan in New York. Wire-tap records were deliberately destroyed and false statements were made to the court by FBI agents as means of accomplishing the deception. In an editorial on January 3, we said that this conduct was "by no means consonant with the democratic tradition or with the 'high standards' of law enforcement as Mr. Hoover has so eloquently defined them."

Miss Coplon's appeal from the Washington conviction is now under consideration by the Court of Appeals here. The Department of Justice may, if it wishes, try her again on the indictment against her in New York. To do so successfully, however, it will have to prove conclusively that she was trying to escape when she was arrested without a warrant and that its evidence against her was not derived in any way from wire tapping. These requirements are so formidable that they may result in her going scot free. That will be a pity, to be sure. But it is infinitely preferable to the countenancing of lawless acts by agents of the United States Government.

School For Saboteurs?

That was a rather hair-curling story (was it not?) that we have published by the Messrs. Fendall Yerxa and Ogden Reid of the New York Herald-Tribune about the manuals of sabotage, disguised as books of instruction in manly sports like boxing and football or in useful arts like herbalism. And the most frightening part of all was, of course, that nothing would have been known about them if some anonymous sailor had not taken it into his head, out of either hunger or curiosity, to salvage and open what he supposed to be a can of Russian sardines.

According to Messrs. Yerxa and Reid these little books gave careful and detailed information about the best ways of putting electric power transmission lines and hydroelectric dams out of business, about how to set fire to important buildings, about how to manufacture Molotov cocktails, how to get rid of dangerous political enemies by planting delayed action bombs beneath their hatbands. One can well imagine how useful these little books might be to militants well acquainted with the Spanish language and eager to strike a blow for Comrade Stalin and to hasten the world revolution and the advent of the classless society.

The Communist apologetic, to be sure, repudiates all such acts of violence, but Communist practice shows that the comrades are prepared to swallow their scruples in this matter wherever the cause of the Soviet motherland is to be served. After all, under Communist theory, any war in which we might become engaged with Stalinist Russia or with Red China would be a phase of the international class war and every "developed" comrade would have no hesitation about choosing sides. Indeed, the Stockholm peace pledge, as interpreted by Comrade Sobelov, contains (as was pointed out on this page last July 25) an obligation on the part of the signatory to engage in passive or active sabotage.

All this, however, was well known long before the sardine papers were discovered or the story about them by the Messrs. Yerxa and Reid was written. The fact that the sabotage booklets were written in Spanish seems prima facie evidence that they were not intended for distribution among the American comrades, though it is possible they may have been prepared for the instruction of the Puerto Rican Nationalists with whom the party has been working in close collaboration. Meanwhile, we may be sure that if Moscow has planned an extensive campaign of sabotage in the United States, it has not entrusted execution of its plans to amateurs trained for the work by a home-study course in violence.

The danger of sabotage is both real and imminent, and it is well that the Nation is alert to it. Yet it would be also well to observe certain similarities of our emotional temper today to that of the Parisian populace in the late summer of 1792, when the French republic was threatened from without by the armies of Brunswick. It was also threatened from within by a vast fifth column of royalists who were, as the revolutionary leaders believed, waiting a favorable moment to rise and strike them down. The panic of the moment gave birth to that horrible episode of French history known as the September massacres, when nearly 1400 suspects, previously taken into "protective custody," were butchered in cold blood with the connivance of an hysterical Commune. The victims included not only aristocrats, anticonstitutional priests and nuns, and constitutional monarchists, but also persons arrested for debt, prostitutes, vagrants, and juvenile delinquents. For the evil thing about panic is that it sometimes paralyzes the power of discrimination.

Shielding Racketeers

Senator Lucas crawled out on a very precarious limb in opposing Senate warrants for the arrest of 11 witnesses sought by the Kefauver Committee. The list includes some of the most notorious gangsters in the country who have gone into hiding to escape being questioned. The Kefauver Committee concluded that it could not properly wind up its inquiry into interstate criminal rackets without obtaining the testimony of these men. Every effort to serve subpenas on them has failed. What interest could Majority Leader Scott Lucas possibly have in delaying the necessary issuance of warrants while the question is restudied by the Senate Judiciary Committee?

Yesterday it was agreed that the Judiciary Committee should report back on Friday. That will not give time enough for the sort of careful investigation which has already been made by the Kefauver Committee. Consequently, the insistence of Mr. Lucas on channeling the matter through the Judiciary Committee must be put down as a stalling device. The kindest explanation that can be given is that the Senator is disgruntled because of the part the Kefauver Committee's findings in Cook County, Ill., played in his defeat at the polls. But that scarcely does credit to his sense of public service.

So far as we can determine there is no question as to the Senate's right to use warrants for the detention of reluctant witnesses. The Supreme Court has held that Congress may resort to any kind of process to accomplish its constitutional purposes. There are a number of cases in which witnesses have been detained on warrants and we fail to see that it is material whether subpenas have been previously served in such cases. The whole difficulty in the present instance is that subpenas cannot be served because the witnesses are "taking it on the lam." We do not think that any civil rights will be violated by having them arrested and held until a subpena can be served, and they can be placed under bond for their appearance before the committee. On the other hand, if they are not compelled to testify, the investigation will be thwarted and the possibility of bringing criminal rackets under control will be correspondingly complicated. It is scarcely a worthy end for a Senator to be associated with.

Can't Keep A Secret

It is downright disgraceful that the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff cannot testify in secret before a committee of Congress without having his remarks twisted and blatted to the world. Precisely what Gen. Omar Bradley told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday about possible evacuation of U. N. forces from Korea is considerably less important than the fact that one of the five Senators present broke a trust.

This is the third time that General Bradley has been treated in such cavalier fashion by Senate committees. A little over a year ago his secret testimony on Russian armed strength before the Appropriations Committee was leaked by Senator "X," later identified as Senator Wherry. Last March Senator Elmer Thomas held a press conference and told all—following an explicitly off-the-record explanation of the war outlook before an Appropriations Subcommittee.

Neither of these Senators was present at the Tuesday session. But the breach this time was made worse by the delicate nature of the subject and its intimate relation to present security. General Bradley had been invited to testify in executive session on aid to Yugoslavia. The talk was diverted to Korea and General Bradley was detained for two hours presenting the military picture. The official reporter was sent out of the room and no record was kept of his comments in order to insure their inviolability.

Shortly afterward headlines appeared noting that General Bradley had told Senators that plans were ready for a "Dunkirk" evacuation. Subsequently General Bradley was forced to explain in a public statement that his remarks on evacuation concerned only the Tenth Corps, which is trapped in northeast Korea and apparently must be rescued by sea. Without doubt military planners are considering general evacuation if it should become necessary. But they hope first to stabilize a line in Korea with the Eighth Army, which contains the bulk of the U. N. forces, by bringing to bear air support and artillery which has been disrupted by retreat.

Irrespective of what General Bradley said, the upshot of the sort of blabbing that occurred Tuesday is likely to be that in the future Congress simply will not get frank testimony from military leaders. If the Senate expects to be kept informed, it ought to investigate and discipline its loose-tongued members before they isolate it from the facts it needs.

A Certain Homage

Whatever you may think now of the policy or the strategic and military tactics in Korea, there is one party to this lamentable business who is deserving of your warmest admiration. We refer, of course, to the fighting man. Whatever mistakes have been made, it was not he who made them; but he has been the first to feel their consequences.

From his personal point of view, the situation must seem even worse than it can possibly seem to us. Yet by every account he is behaving with the utmost resourcefulness and valor. He is engaged in one of the most difficult of all military operations, a retreat that can be covered only by desperate rearguard actions against an enemy that is said to outnumber him by at least 20 to 1, and with weapons as good as his own—indeed, if we may trust some reports—the very same weapons. What may await him at the end of the retreat is anybody's conjecture; another grim effort, like that of the late summer to hold a bridgehead, or perhaps an evacuation on a scale as vast and under circumstances more difficult than those of Dunkirk. All this is going on in weather which could hardly have been worse on the terrible road from Vilna to Warsaw in the early winter of 1812.

In other words, the fighting man finds himself in circumstances that might have demoralized the veterans of any of the most celebrated armies of history. But from Korea there has come no slightest hint of demoralization among the troops. The military police are somehow keeping the traffic lines open to the south; equipment that could not be carried has not been abandoned but has been systematically destroyed; the engineers have remained and are remaining to cut bridges after the last columns have poured over them.

All this seems to confound those who in the earlier days of the Korean campaign mistook the absence of political fanaticism among American soldiers for a lack of the military virtues. Nor is it the Americans alone who have done so extraordinarily well; there was, for example, the brigade of Turks trapped at Wawon which cut its way through with bayonets. Those who write the history of the Korean disaster could do worse than paraphrase what was said of a lesser but famous disaster: "It may not have been war, but it was magnificent."

Letters To The Editor

"Bomb Morality"

I was sorry and surprised to find in your issue of December 1 an editorial entitled "Bomb Morality" which was somewhat of a defense of the use of the A-bomb. I know it has been lately considered almost a communistic idea to believe the A-bomb should be banned, but I certainly am very far from being a Communist, having had, some 15 years ago, the occasion of seeing Communists in action in my city and even more recently during the liberation of my country. I am French, in the United States for only five years.

You write that European people consider the A-bomb as an inhumane and immoral weapon, and you imply this is the result of Soviet propaganda. I hope European people are not the only people in the world to have such feelings. I hope the American people share their ideas. I do not believe propaganda has anything to do with it.

You have never felt destruction in your own cities; you have never been submitted to careless and devastating "strategic bombing;" you have never heard the sound of bombs coming down while mothers carry their babies to the precarious shelters; you have never seen the blond hair of a child glued with blood to the bark of a tree.

They have lived all this in France, in England, in Belgium, in Germany, in Holland and all over Europe. They know what bombing is. They know it not from the planes or from pictures or from movies; they know it for having been the helpless and innocent victims.

All the publicity will not convince these people that there could be any excuse for a destruction even more terrible than the one they suffered for more than four years. You may convince their governments—it takes only money and promises—but not the people.

Was it not one of the great American traditions to be humanitarian? Must we, for fighting ruthless enemies, lose all that which made the United States the great country it has become?

No War With China

We must not become involved in a war with China; our enemy is not China, it is Russia. We must not, therefore, drain our military power on China when we should be rearming ourselves and our allies against Russia. Russia would like very much for us to become involved in a long drawn-out war with China, for that would keep us out of the European area.

We must remember also that the mass of Chinese people are our friends who do not wish to fight us, but are forced to by their Moscow-controlled leaders.

We would only create generations of animosity and bitterness toward us and turn the Chinese people toward Russia if we bombed their country. This is exactly what the Russians hope for.

We must withdraw from the war, brand the Chinese puppet leaders as aggressors, stop all U. N. negotiations with them and impose economic sanctions. We should point out that we recognize the Chinese people as our friends whom we do not wish to kill.

We must concentrate on rearming Europe and our own country, build up "areas of strength" in India, Africa, Indonesia, etc., by helping them improve their standard of living under a democratic system that the native peoples themselves would want to defend. Then, when we have proven our desire to help countries and not exploit and strip them as Russia does, the Chinese people will rise and overthrow their leaders.

"Made In Moscow"

Much as I respect your point of view, I must strenuously object to and reject your editorial of December 3, asking for a tolerant view toward The Daily Worker. I believe firmly that you have made a fundamental error, based upon the failure to grasp the obvious fact that Communist Russia is an enemy nation actually waging warfare against us at the present time.

The Daily Worker is an instrument of Communist Russia, which is engaged in war against the United States and is, therefore, an enemy nation. It is preposterous to suggest that freedom of the press and other American rights and privileges must be extended to those who war against us and to those publications, organizations, agencies or individuals who serve the enemy. The Worker's small circulation, which you cite, is completely irrelevant.

Freedom Vs. Slavery

Let's have more like your editorial of November 23, "Grotius Revised," pointing out the fallacies of Communist reasoning. These fallacies need to be thoroughly and repeatedly exposed.

To me, there is one fallacy that needs particularly vigorous attack. It is the Communists' basic excuse for class warfare: the illusion that the interests of capital and labor are in inevitable conflict. Admittedly capital and labor (to the extent they are separate) compete for greater shares of the wealth they produce jointly. Ultimately however, their interests coincide in the need to keep the machinery which feeds them both in efficient operation.

Competition is different from conflict. Competition follows rules and these rules are subject to change by society. Ideally these rules should undergo regular review and revision to insure that society derives the maximum benefit from them, although unfortunately this ideal is not fully realized in practice.

This is elementary, but important. Let us shout, both in slogan and in supporting evidence: The conflict with communism is not capital versus labor, but freedom versus slavery.

Initiative Against Communism

If we can for a moment detach ourselves from our despair over Korea, we may be able to see a larger need. That need is simply that we must take the strategic and tactical initiative against Russian communism, using weapons of our own choosing rather than those which the Russians force on us. Once we take such an offensive, using to the fullest the real military assets which we now have but do not appreciate, the disposition of Korea can fall into its proper place in our over-all pattern.

Livingston Hartley suggests, in his letter printed December 3, what those weapons might be, with reference to the particular situation of China. He points out our traditional army-minded tendency to think of war as a primarily military problem calling automatically for a land offensive aimed at the enemy capital. Apparently the only alternative we can visualize at the moment is the concept of blasting the enemy's capital, and other cities, with atom bombs. May the Lord help the United States if these are all our assets.

Fortunately they are not. What is our situation? We have a cause which we believe is just, and inherently popular if all could hear it. To back it, we have air forces, land-based and carrier-based, long-range and short-range, which are superior to our enemy's in quality if not in numbers. We have that additional priceless asset of military mobility, through control of the sea, around three fourths the long perimeter of the Communist heartland. The 1500-mile China coast is just a minor sector of this perimeter. We can reach other parts of it readily (via sea and air) from the Persian Gulf, the Eastern Mediterranean, Western Germany, and the northern seas.

If we can detach ourselves for a further moment from the semantic notion that guerilla warfare is a private preserve of ground forces, we find that we, too, have a most remarkable ability, today, to carry out a universal guerilla warfare against communism, around the globe, from every quarter. An aerial guerilla warfare, and a guerilla warfare from the sea.

But we need not call it guerilla warfare. Let us call it simply a peace offensive. (We might, if need be, conduct it with "volunteers.") Of what are the Russians most afraid? Of ideas penetrating the minds of their people. Let us then drop ideas, written and pictorial, by the millions, from our B-29s and our carrier bombers and fighters, on Bulgaria, on Romania, on Poland, on China, on the Ukraine, on Murmansk, on every corner of the heartland itself. This should not be hard to do, for in addition to better planes, we have the advantage of being able to enter unexpectedly from many directions, at any time of day and night. If the Russians are to stop such an offensive they will have to disperse their air forces and antiaircraft all along their perimeter, and exert frantic efforts in defense; such efforts alone will reduce their readiness for aggression. Of what avail against such a peace offensive will be their mass armies?

We are at war now. Whether it becomes a total war is already in the hands of the enemy, unless we choose the atomic extreme. With nothing therefore to risk, and all to gain, let us then make it hot in the way which most clearly pits our strength against enemy weakness, and skirts—so far as we may—irretrievable disaster.

Into such a global campaign Livingston Hartley's proposals for dealing with China fit hand in glove. Against any U.N.-declared aggressor we may fittingly supplement leaflets with bombs, while still maintaining a peace offensive. As he so clearly points out, we can through selective air attack and propaganda, with but limited forces, casualties and costs, make it impossible for Mao to stabilize the country. It would likewise be nearly impossible for Mao to defend his entire coast against such attacks, and against Chinese Nationalist operations supported by our Navy, and still engage in effective aggression against Indo-China and elsewhere.

Let us not forget those wars we fought before mass armies and mass bombing became our military criteria. Let us not forget that from 1812 to 1815 a handful of mobile American frigates and privateers drove England to distraction. We didn't defeat the British; we simply worried them to terms. Let us lift up our heads and use the same strategy on the aggressors now.

Last Fling Holiday Mood

By Malvina Lindsay

Shopping Omens

SIGNS BEGIN to point to a good old inflationary madhouse Christmas shopping season. True, John Doe's credit has been curbed, his taxes piled up ahead for him. He's probably short on change from buying ahead in the post-Korean war scramble for goods. His living costs may be pinching. But just the same he's in the mood for making this a big Christmas.

Retailers are cautious, saying the two-and-a-half weeks ahead are the big test of whether consumers are going into a spending or watch-the-pennies trend. But they also say recent upturns in sales, growing crowds, and grabs for certain types of merchandise, hold promise of a record Christmas business in unit purchases if not in volume.

For the last two Christmases buying has tended to be tight and above all practical. It will probably continue to stress the useful. Nothing like the black chiffon nightgowns and hand-painted necktie crazes of the last war are in sight.

But the psychology of inflation is heard on all sides: "What good is your money?" . . . "Everything's going to be a lot higher" (next month or next week). . . . "They won't be making stuff like this much longer." . . . "I can't afford it, but it's that much saved later."

There is also a "Paris in the spring" (of 1939) mood. "You can't tell what's likely to happen by another Christmas." . . . "After all you can't take it with you." . . . "Better enjoy yourself while you can."

And there seems general realization that this is a last respite before the shortages and controls of rearmament really begin to pinch.

THIS EMOTIONAL mood that always accompanies times of national uncertainty and crisis is particularly shown in the Christmas greeting card field where a new sales record, probably topping the peak one of 1947, is expected. Sales have started earlier this year and tend to be heavy.

High employment and income have something to do with this. But dealers credit more to the general mood brought about by war threats, the atom bomb, the Korean fighting. In times of public stress, they point out, people turn for security to the ties of family and friendship. The greeting card and the Christmas gift are outlets for this feeling. Card sales following Pearl Harbor and throughout the last war ran high.

The effect of crisis on human relations was demonstrated in England during the war bombings. Americans there were impressed with the consideration and sympathy that people showed each other. Even class lines were temporarily leveled.

Today's uncertainty and danger are not yet so great as to raise people to heights of consideration for the human being, as witness present political backbiting. But they are likely to bring more parcels under the family tree. Everybody at least will want to do more for "me and mine." And the large child population will give impetus to this feeling.

NO MATTER how grimly hardheaded uncles may warn of the January 15 income tax payment and of the financial shock that will come March 15, it is unlikely this will greatly depress Christmas sales. All the more reason for spending now, many will say. "If we don't get Junior's bicycle this year he may never get it." "It looks now as if taxes on fur coats and pocketbooks will never come down." Let's push 1951 out of mind—for a few more days.

Mingling with the shopping crowds one senses little of the excitement and recklessness of the old wartime shopping sprees. People seem to be buying soberly but not with the critical appraisal of last year. The comforts of civilization, the products of industrialism, have suddenly acquired so much value in a world where they are newly threatened that one cannot be too choosy about them.

As the shopping season goes into high gear, shortages of help are plaguing many stores especially in industrial areas where war production is calling women. This is heightening the pre-Christmas rush and confusion. But in spite of all handicaps we can well count on more trees (a sale of 15 million is predicted), lights, decorations, Santa Clauses, presents, cards, groaning tables, family reunions than we knew in somewhat "safer" years.

"China Firsters"

In your December 2 editorial, "China Firsters", you oppose our accepting the Russian bait of an all-out war with China, which presumably would leave Russia free to pursue an aggressive course in Europe, while we were so engaged.

There is one way in which we can stop Red China's aggression in Korea and at the same time keep our military forces free to oppose Russia in Europe. This is to quickly make peace with Germany and Japan and accept the help of both erstwhile "enemies" against the world aggression which we are facing from Russia.

Neither the Germans nor the Japanese want to be dominated by the Reds. Both people seem to feel the threat of Russian mastery of the world more keenly than our "Russia Firsters" in this country, who decry President Truman's intention of maintaining UN prestige by not abandoning our mission in Korea.

There is nothing the Russians fear more now, if their outcries mean anything, than our rapprochement with Germany and Japan.

Today and Tomorrow

Hard Decisions And Old Wisdom

Lippmann

AMIDST all the talk about Asia or Europe there is the fact that the Western nations have larger forces engaged in the Far East than they have available for the defense of the West. On what Mr. Churchill called recently "the approaches to China"—that is to say in Korea, Japan, Hongkong, and Indo-China — the Western nations have engaged about 20 divisions. They have less than half that number immediately available in western Europe.

There is at the present time no strategic reserve of troops in the Western world from which General MacArthur's armies can be reinforced. On the other hand, the large strategic reserves of the Communist alliance are intact. The proposals to take some of Chiang's troops to Korea, to encourage Chiang to attack the mainland from Formosa, to have the United States Air Force and the Chinese bomb Manchurian cities and the Chinese coastal cities must all be weighed in relation not merely to the Chinese who are now fighting in Korea but to all the Chinese and Russian military forces who would become engaged in a general Far Eastern war.

It has never been considered dishonorable to judge with unfrightened lucidity the issues of life and death. The burden of proof is on anyone who argues that the only way to deal with a little war that has gone badly is to make it a much bigger war.

THE FACT that there are no reserves from which to reinforce General MacArthur means that the U. N. resolution which authorized him to cross the thirty-eighth parallel cannot be carried out. It is now impossible to establish by military action a unified, independent, and democratic government throughout Korea. At the best we shall be able to make a stand somewhere in Korea. At the worst the question might be whether evacuation is necessary in order to avoid entrapment.

In any event we shall now have to consider questions of policy which extend far beyond Korea itself and embrace nothing less than the establishment by war or by diplomacy or both of the military frontiers in the Far East. We have not been able to push forward the frontier past the thirty-eighth parallel up to the Chinese-Soviet boundary. That attempt has brought disaster and the question now is where in the Far East the retreat and the withdrawal can be ended.

FOR THE short run—for the next few months perhaps—the answer to that question will almost certainly depend upon the present Chinese-Russian estimate of General MacArthur's military position. We must count on their exploiting their advantages to obtain the maximum political profit.

Their objective is plain enough. They intend, if they can, to push the United States out of eastern Asia and western Europe. Against our policy of containment they have worked out and are now executing a policy designed to isolate North America. Their method is to bring about a showdown in the Far East where they have military superiority: they have forced the leading Western nations to commit 20 divisions—the flower of their armies—in a theater where these armies can never win a decision and where they are forever in peril of destruction. The diversion of so much of the military power of the West has left the Atlantic alliance in Europe largely a matter of blueprints.

This is the hard framework within which Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee will have to take their decisions.

IT MIGHT help us in our ordeal to read a letter which Mr. Gladstone wrote for the benefit of the Queen in 1869, shortly after he became Prime Minister for the first time. England at that time had entered upon her greatest period but the question had been raised abroad as to whether England was "unfaithful to her great traditions" and "could forswear her interest in the common transactions and the general interests of Europe."

Mr. Gladstone, writing privately and not for instantaneous world-wide publication, said that England would not be unfaithful to her great traditions "but her credit and her power form a fund, which in order that they may be made the most of, should be thriftily used." England, he went on to say, had come through the 20 years of the Napoleonic wars to a "perilous eminence" achieved "at what a cost of internal danger to the union, and to all the institutions of the country" for "there was no ascertained limit either to her means, or to her disposition to dispense them . . ."

MR. GLADSTONE then went on to say: "Is England so uplifted in strength above every other nation that she can with prudence advertise herself as ready to undertake the general redress of wrongs? Would not the consequence of such professions and promises be either the premature exhaustion of her means, or a collapse in the day of performance? Is any Power at this time of today warranted in assuming to itself this comprehensive obligation?"

And so, he said, that "England should keep entire in her own hands the means of estimating her own obligations upon the various states of facts as they arise . . . That it is dangerous for her to assume alone an advanced, and therefore an isolated position, in regard to European controversies, that come what may it is better for her to promise too little than too much; that she should not encourage the weak by giving expectations of aid, to resist the strong, but should rather seek to deter the strong, by firm but moderate language, from oppression on the weak; that she should seek to develop and mature the action of a common or public or European opinion, as the best standing bulwark against worry, but should beware of seeming to lay down the law of that opinion by her own authority, and thus running the risk of setting against her, and against right and justice that general sentiment which ought to be and generally would be amazed in their favor."

Whether in the tiresome jargon of our day this would be called isolationism or appeasement I do not know. But a great empire was governed and a long peace was achieved when it was deemed honorable to be that prudent and that wise.

German Protestants Ask Unity Be Restored

Berlin, Dec. 6 (AP).—German Protestantism, under Communist pressure intended to turn the Soviet zone clergy into political puppits, appealed tonight to the great powers to restore Germany's unity as a step for world peace.

Led by Bishop Otto Dibelius, accused of war-mongering by Soviet-sponsored propagandists, the Evangelical Church Council of Germany declared:

"The splitting of Germany by the Iron Curtain has become a source of danger not only for our people but also for Europe and the entire world, from which unmeasurable mischief can arise."

Dulles' New Role

By Marquis Childs

Realism For Republicans

Childs

THROUGH all the ups and downs of the diplomatic struggle with Red China one American official has kept a determined hold on fundamental realities. He is John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Dulles carefully planned at the United Nations an approach to the Communist delegation for a possible compromise to end the Chinese intervention in Korea. He was aware, however, that the objective of Gen. Wu Hsiu-chuan and his delegation might be solely to make hostile propaganda.

Now Dulles is leaving his U. N. post to return to the State Department for what is likely to prove an even more important assignment. In charge of the Korean issue at Lake Success and delegated to direct the drafting of a Japanese treaty, Dulles has, in effect, been chiefly responsible for formulating Asian policy.

It is significant that before the present change Dulles conferred in Washington first with Acheson and others in the department and then with Senators Taft and Millikin at the Capitol. If they were convinced of the importance of Dulles' role in Asia, these two Republican leaders could hold the bulk of the members of their own party in the Senate for cooperation on Asian policy.

The part played by Dulles in the whole Korean matter is sometimes forgotten. Visiting Seoul three days before the North Korean attack occurred, he told the Korean Parliament that if the Communists launched an invasion, the Republic of Korea would not have to stand alone. In Tokyo at the time of the assault, he stated his belief that both the United States and the United Nations would resist the unwarranted aggression across the thirty-eighth parallel.

THIS was a bold thing to do since, as Dulles well knew, many military men believed Korea to be indefensible in the event of an all-out Communist attack. It has been frequently reported that the National Security Council concluded more than two years ago, with both military and diplomatic members agreeing, that American troops should be withdrawn from Korea since a limited force could not possibly hold the peninsula. Dulles has admitted that in the plane on the way back from Tokyo he had some bad hours wondering whether the decision would be taken to defend the Korean Republic.

Dulles has never minimized the threat of Chinese intervention. He has stressed the need to try to meet the realities of Communist China with its vast military manpower with a corresponding realism in American policy. This stress on realism marks Dulles' book, War or Peace, published three months before the Korean outbreak.

If the outcome of the Truman-Attlee talks makes it possible, Dulles will fly to Japan probably before Christmas. This will be in recognition of the change in the status of Japan in the light of the developing Korean disaster.

Japan is immediately menaced, especially in view of the fact that most of the American forces stationed in Japan were committed in Korea. In view of what is happening, it is in some respects correct to say that Japan now becomes what Korea was before June 25—a major target of Chinese Communist ambition. Foreign Minister Chou En-lai's latest propaganda attack from Peiping was devoted to American intentions with respect to Japan, coupled with the insistence that Japan must remain disarmed.

THIS is one reason why a tentative decision has been taken to defer the conclusion of a peace treaty with Japan. Dulles will resurvey the situation in the light of the devastating changes occurring from hour to hour.

If the Republicans show wisdom at this hour, they will follow Dulles' realistic lead. It is a time for the harshest kind of realism if we are now to save what can be saved and avoid committing our force in a part of the world where it can never buttress the national security.

Senator William Knowland of California, in arguing for what would be in effect all-out war with Communist China, spoke with a stronger logic than the China-Firsters. As he pointed out, Knowland has supported every move for strengthening western Europe and he now asks whether it is less important to defend free peoples in Asia than it is in Europe.

The answer—the hard core of realism—is related directly to American resources to wage a major war of invasion across 10,000 miles of ocean. It is also related, and here it seems to me Knowland was on the weakest ground, to the question of whether Asiatics want to be saved by American power.

To disregard the realities for however noble a motive is to court ultimate and final disaster. Other civilizations have gone down in overweening pride that far outreached their capacity. The warning signs are so clearly marked for our time.

STORY: The head of a defense agency the other day attended a meeting to hear his personnel officials explain the new Civil Service regulations issued because of the Whitten rider. He kept shaking his head as the regulations were read. At the conclusion, the boss was asked if he had any comments or questions.

"I hope the Russians, he commented solemnly, "have the same sort of system." He then walked out of the room, still shaking his head in bewilderment.

SEC: The Securities and Exchange Commission has made these appointments: Jerome S. Katzin to succeed Maurice C. Woodside as assistant director of the corporation finance division, and Alfred Hill to be executive asssitant to Chairman Harry McDonald. Hill was transferred from the general counsel's office.

NACA: The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics is another defense agency that's slated for an expansion. It would hire about 600 new employes, mainly in its laboratories, under the President's request to Congress that it be given $3,250,000 additional for salaries. NACA does much of the research on military planes.

Allies Must Continue Fight, Truman and Attlee Agree

President are in full agreement on the necessity of carying out urgently plans and programs developed by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"They agreed that, along with other nations of NATO, they would go forward with energy in building up the military strength of the Atlantic Community."

Both the President and the Prime Minister were reported to believe that even a temporary defeat in Korea would be better than dishonor for the United Nations and a compromise with aggression.

Their attitude was said to be one of a calm, deliberate and resolute facing up to the grim facts. They have expressed the belief that this is a time requiring steady nerves and determination, without any alarmist or ill-considered talk by leaders of any of the U. N. governments concerned.

This may have been a retort to the speech from Lake Success Tuesday night by Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Minister for External Affairs, calling for negotiations after a cease-fire.

The President is said to feel that if any negotiations start, at the U. N. or elsewhere, the question of Korea itself must be the primary issue, and not Formosa, Indo-China or anything else. And on Korea his attitude is that the United States and the U. N. are firmly and irrevocably committed against aggression, and cannot be deflected from that goal whatever the setbacks may be.

The President and the Prime Minister apparently did not know in advance of the appeal by 13 Asian and Middle Eastern countries to Communist China to stop at the thirty-eighth parallel. When they heard of it they felt the appeal was worth making, and they thought it would be to the U. N.'s advantage if the Chinese armies stopped.

But there is not the slightest knowledge here of any Communist Chinese willingness to stop. And if the Chinese armies should stop, the United States will still take the position that they should never have gone into Korea, and should withdraw.

The President insists, and Attlee apparently agrees with him, that any proposed settlement must not in any way directly or indirectly, condone aggression.

Meanwhile the United States and the U. N. are marking time on condemning Communist China as an aggressor, presumably waiting until the Peiping government has answered the 13-nation appeal.

There has also been talk of a naval blockade and economic sanctions against Communist China if the Red armies push on across the thirty-eighth parallel. But the Americans have not made any formal proposal of this kind; they know only that American public opinion will demand stern action of some sort against the Chinese Communists, even though this action stops short of full-scale war.

After two days of briefings and discussions on Korea, the President and Prime Minister and their advisers got down yesterday to the business of strengthening the economic and military defenses of western Europe.

President Truman opened the afternoon meeting by assuring Attlee of what he knew already—namely, that the United States aimed at security in Europe no less than in the Far East. But, the President added, a certain balance had to be kept between the two areas.

The President felt an urgent necessity in Europe was the appointment of a supreme commander for an integrated North Atlantic forces, and also the contribution of German units to help defend western Europe.

French Held Up Plans

Attlee agreed entirely, but reminded the President that French objections had held up a final agreement. The answer to the Prime Minister was that there had been discussions with the French on the subject of German units, and these talks had gone so well that a supreme commander probably could be named in the near future.

The deputies to the North Atlantic Foreign Ministers are now meeting in London, with all signs indicating agreement on the size of the proposed German units and on the methods of seeking German approval.

The President gave Attlee and his delegates one important reminder before the afternoon session ended. This was that Congress probably would balk at further military help to Europe unless there was clear evidence that the Europeans were doing their full share.

Congress must be shown, the President said, that the North Atlantic nations had a practical, workable plan, with each member of the team doing his full share.

President Truman last night attended a stag party at the British Embassy. He and the Prime Minister plan to get together again this afternoon, with the possibility of still another meeting tomorrow.

D. C. Rent Law Extension Voted

ported as 6 to 5; Tuesday the group voted 6 to 5 to hold up action.

Representative E. E. Cox (D., Ga.) was reported to have accepted the request of Speaker Rayburn (D., Texas) to let the bill go before the House. The day before Cox had voted with two other Democrats and three Republicans to postpone action.

Leaders were confident the House would approve the rent measure. It was supported 17 to 3 by the House Banking Committee.

In the third day of Senate debate on the two-month extension of Federal rent ceilings, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) voiced sharply contrasting views on the plan.

Lehman predicted uncontrolled rents would lead to "extreme difficulties" in obtaining necessary personnel for defense operations.

Lehman, a consistent Administration supporter, also forecast "without a doubt we shall soon see the establishment of price controls and wage controls in one form or another."

Cain, an outspoken foe of rent control declared the proposal to extend Federal ceilings is "contrary to the best interests of our huge national preparedness undertaking." He said rent controls would not cure housing shortages.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.,) in charge of the Senate rent measure, predicted it would be approved by a comfortable margin.

OF BOOKS AND BRENTANO'S

A harried housewife, knee-deep in Christmas shopping, stopped us with a good question in the F Street store. "Why doesn't anyone recommend *un*popular books?" she asked, and went on to tell us that everyone on her list liked what she called "peculiar" books and wouldn't be caught dead with a best-seller. "What do you mean by 'peculiar'?" we inquired. She hesitated, glanced a little wildly along a counter of books and triumphantly pulled out a copy of THE COMPLETE BOOK OF FLOWER ARRANGEMENT ($4.95). It did the trick, too. Seems there was an aunt in Baltimore who liked flower shows, and this new book being the most comprehensive one on the subject . . . At any rate, here are some "peculiar" books for everyone. The English Public House, known as the Poor Man's Club, comes into its own in INSIDE THE PUB ($4.50), a sprightly book on its history, architecture and the drinking habits of its storied clientele. It's handsomely illustrated, and done in England in the charming English tradition . . . TREASURY OF EARLY AMERICAN AUTOMOBILES ($5) is a handsome gift-album of photos, ads, songs, cartoons and text about the American automobile, vintage 1877-1925 . . . James Thurber's THE THIRTEEN CLOCKS ($2.50) is a perfect gift for the young in heart—neither parable, fairy tale, nor poem, but a mixture of all three—its charm is matched by full-color drawings by Marc Simont . . . GALLERY OF GHOSTS ($10) is a beautiful, moody book of ghost stories from eleven far-flung countries, richly illustrated by painter-author James Reynolds. The episodes are comic, tragic, grisly and gay, and all, incidentally, fascinating. An incredibly lovely volume to read and to own.

Appeasement Not His Goal, Attlee Says at Press Club

Prime Minister Clement Attlee assured the American people yesterday that he had not come to Washington to seek appeasement of Communist China or Soviet Russia.

"I am told that there are people who believe that that is what I have come here to do," the Prime Minister told one of the biggest luncheon audiences in the history of the National Press Club.

"That is not true; we all know from our own bitter experience that appeasement does not pay."

The quiet, undramatic Prime Minister won loud applause when he promised that, "in fair or foul weather, where the Stars and Stripes fly in Korea, the British flag will fly beside them."

Attlee did not try to conceal the seriousness of the United Nations "setback" in Korea, but said this was "not the time for criticism."

"Let me say here that the achievement of Gen. MacArthur and his troops will go down in history as most notable," the Prime Minister declared. "With slender forces he defended South Korea obstinately, and then, passing to the offensive in a brilliantly conceived campaign, routed the North Korean armies.

"The fact that, faced with overwhelming odds, the United Nations forces are now in difficulties, should not obscure what was done under General MacArthur's skillful and resolute leadership."

The Prime Minister reminded his hearers that Britain and the United States had different responsibilities and different viewpoints, but shared the same objectives. He also cautioned against "taking short views dictated by our emotions."

"We must always recall that military operations are means to an end, not ends in themselves," he said. "The purpose of military operations by the United Nations in the Far East is to halt aggression, to see the rule of law respected and to establish lasting conditions of peace.

"We must always bear in mind that the peoples of the Far East have to live as neighbors—and we want them as good neighbors."

Recalling historic British relationships with Asia, he explained that Britain had recognized the Communist regime in China only because it controlled all Chinese mainland territory. And he contended that it was useless to shut one's eyes to "stubborn facts."

Toward the end of his 20-minute speech the Prime Minister said his people were convinced of the need to rearm. "There is no difference on this among the parties," he declared, "or even, I would add, within the parties, whatever you may sometimes hear to the contrary."

Railroads' Net Up Five-Fold During Month

By S. Oliver Goodman

The sharp improvement in railroad earnings continued in October, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

October net income was estimated at 108 million dollars, nearly five times the net in the same 1949 month. The AAR said net for October, 1949, was $22 million, reflecting a sharp reduction in freight business as a result of strikes in the coal and steel industries.

For the first 10 months this year, the rails' net income was estimated at $575 million, compared with $302 million in the corresponding period last year.

Yesterday's estimates were based on reports from all of the Class One railroads, those doing a million dollars or more gross business annually.

For the 12 months ended October 31, the AAR said, the rate of return on property investment averaged 3.99 percent against a 2.93 percent return for the previous 12 months.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP).—A lively trade in wheat sent that grain up a couple of cents and boosted the morale of the rest of the market on the Board of Trade today.

Export houses and local traders bought wheat, some of the latter believing that this grain would soon resume its traditional market leadership. In recent months the wheat pit has been comparatively empty while everybody crowded into soybeans.

Wheat closed 1¾ to 2⅛ higher; corn, 1⅜ to 2⅛ higher; oats, ½ to ⅞ higher; rye, ⅛ to 1 cent higher; soybeans, 1½ to 2 cents higher, and lard, 30 to 55 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Rails Strong, Selling Trims General Gains

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP).—Railroad stocks rolled ahead on a clear track today but late selling flagged down the balance of the market.

Carrier issues finished with gains running to an extreme of $4 or so a share. The balance of the list ended well under the best marks of the day in most cases but still up by a few cents to around $1 a share.

Rails, steels and motors were popular right up to the last hour of trading. Only the rails, however, were able to stand firm under a closing flurry of selling.

Today's rise on top of yesterday's substantial recovery just about wiped out the heavy losses taken Monday when thousands of shares of stock were dumped on the market in the first frightened response to ominous news from Korea.

Trading picked up speed as selling expanded in the last hour and volume increased to 2,010,000 shares from 1,940,000 Tuesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 60 cents to $83.50 a share. This compared with Tuesday's jump of $1.40 and Monday's drop of $2.20.

Santa Fe moved up $4.12 a share to $135.50 and Denver & Rio Grande Western $3.37 to $49.75.

Higher by $1 to around $2 each were Atlantic Coast Line at $60.75, Chesapeake & Ohio $31.75, Union Pacific $98, Southern Pacific $59.62, Nickel Plate $169.50, and Illinois Central $59.

Baldwin-Lime, a new company formed by the merger of Baldwin and Lima Locomotive, was the most active issue and gained 62 cents at $11.37. The stock made its debut on the exchange this week.

New Consumer Credit Committee Is Formed

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP).—A national committee for consumer credit has been formed by over 100 manufacturers, distributors, retailers and financiers to combat inflation.

The committee was formed during a two-day conference here and its purpose will be to set up a program in the public interest to develop constructive anti-inflation suggestions.

The sponsors extended invitations to a limited group of firms, including merchandisers of such items as jewelry, clothing, furniture, automobiles, electric appliances and financial agencies, including consumer loan groups.

In the interim, James B. McMahon, jr., of New York, was named treasurer and secretary.

Among its plans are one for a long-range study of consumer credit and its impact and pressures on inflation.

Gen. Time Votes Extra And Stock Dividend

General Time Corp. declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents and year-end extra of 50 cents on common shares, both payable January 2. Directors also ordered a dividend of 10 percent in stock to be paid January 19. All three distributions will be made to holders of record December 19. A similar stock dividend was paid last January.

Today's action brings 1950 cash declarations to $3.50 against $2 last year.

Extra for Viscose

American Viscose Corp. declared an extra dividend of $1 on new common shares, payable December 28 to holders of record December 18. The stock was split 2-for-1 following stockholder approval November 15.

Bank Loans Reach New Peak

Business loans by Federal Reserve member banks in leading cities across the Nation surged above the 17-billion-dollar mark in the week ended November 29 for the first time in history.

The Federal Reserve Board reported today business loans by these banks jumped 109 million dollars in that week to a record high of $17,097,000,000 despite a second plea by the board for banks to combat inflation by holding down on lending.

Real estate loans also racked up a new record high in spite of controls applied to mortgage credit on homes in mid-October. Real estate loans rose 11 million dollars in the week to a $5,202,000,000 total.

Could Buy . . . or Should?
We think there's a big difference between the two—and always have!
Obviously, there are any number of people who could buy stocks, invest in securities—but only at the expense of a home, insurance, or a savings reserve.
We don't think they should!
That's why we're interested primarily in people who can afford to do both—people who have made adequate provision for their primary needs and who have surplus savings on which they prudently should try to get a return of 5% or 6%.
And we do all we can to help.
We'll gladly prepare a sound investment program for anyone who asks. We don't care if you're a customer or not . . . whether the sum involved is large or little. There's no charge, no obligation. Just write—

Business Outlook

Keyserling Muffs Korea Signal; Austerity, Not Boom, Is Ahead

By J. A. Livingston

LEON KEYSERLING, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, goes in for big, round, breath-taking statistics. And sometimes his flair for the dramatic gets him into trouble.

Take his speech before the Investment Bankers Association. He observed that between 1939 and 1944 the total output of goods and services in the United States rose 75%. If, he said, we have the same percentage gain in the next five years, our national output in 1955 would be 500 billion dollars. That IF is a blunder in economics and judgment.

Livingston

Keyserling made no forecast. Yet what he said was mighty close to a prediction and to Aldous Huxley's Brave New World. And it was poorly timed. Right in the middle of retreat in Korea!

True, when Keyserling made his talk, the full implications of the setback to General MacArthur were not known. Keyserling may still have been thinking in terms of a 3 million-man military establishment, of a gradual rise in munitions output. Now the tempo has changed radically.

Under the impact of a greatly increased war output, we'll have to give up butter to get guns. Abstention—stringency—is the new order in America. The standard of living will drop. Fewer radios, autos, washers, etc. Keyserling's error was in giving the impression that we could still wax fat economically while training for combat militarily.

WORSE THAN THAT, his economics were bad. Keyserling chose a near-depression year as the starting point for his statistical projection. In 1939, there was plenty of slack in the economy. Steel mills operated at 65% capacity. Today they're running above 100%. Then we could increase steel output more than 50%, using plants already built. Today we have to build new blast furnaces, open hearths, and rolling mills to get expanded output. All of which takes manpower and materials.

Then we had a pool of unemployed — 9,500,000. Today only 2,240,000 persons are idle. In 1939 the average work week in manufacturing was 37.7 hours. People weren't working overtime. Today the work week is 41.4 hours, and in durable goods industries (the munitions industries) it's 42.2 hours. An increase in the work week to 45.6 hours, the wartime peak, would add 10 percent more working hours. But from 1939, because of the lower starting level, the increase to 45.6 hours meant a gain of 21 percent in manhours.

Furthermore, women can't be counted on to enter the labor force on the same scale as in World War II. Again it's the same story. Not the same slack. Thirty-four percent of women 14 years or over are in the labor force today. A lot got the work habit during the war and stayed on the job. In 1940, only 30 percent were in the labor force. A larger proportion could be drawn in, and at the wartime peak the proportion of eligible women in the labor force rose to 39 percent.

WHETHER WE could reattain that percentage is questionable. The rash of babies during and after the war has increased the domestic responsibilities of the younger women, making them less responsive to job opportunities and high wages.

Thus, the overall labor reserve today is far less resilient than at the beginning of Keyserling's 75 percent five-year-expansion period because of (1) the longer work week prevailing now, (2) the greater proportion of women at work, and (3) the fewer unem-

The important point is that the country today is operating at the highest level in history. In '39, we were still trying to lift ourselves out of the depression of the '30's. There was plenty of elasticity. The Federal Reserve Board index of industrial production then registered 109. Today it's 215. To get a 75 percent increase in real output of goods and services in the next five years means superimposing an expansion boom on top of the boom we're now having.

That's just too much to hope for. And the whole concept is out of place now. We must prepare for longer hours of work, higher productivity, and higher taxes, and less consumption. To get a rapid rise in preparedness—to elevate our armed strength to our diplomatic aims and commitments—will mean austerity at home. Let's not kid ourselves.

Statements implying more butter along with more guns ought to be put in mothballs—if not for the duration—for a long time to come.

President Tried to See Stalin Privately, Without Churchill

'F. D. R.: His Personal Letters'

This is the twenty-fifth of 31 installments of the personal letters of Franklin D. Roosevelt, from the two-volume work, "F.D.R.; His Personal Letters." The books were edited by Elliott Roosevelt.)

Installment Twenty-Five

F.D.R. to Joseph Stalin

THE WHITE HOUSE,
May 5, 1943

My dear Mr. Stalin:

I am sending this personal note to you by the hands of my old friend, Joseph E. Davies. It relates solely to one subject which I think it is easier for us to talk over through a mutual friend. Mr. Litvinov is the only other person with whom I have talked about it.

I want to get away from the difficulties of large Staff conferences or the red tape of diplomatic conversations. Therefore, the simplest and most practical method that I can think of would be an informal and completely simple visit for a few days between you and me.

I fully appreciate the desirability for you to stay in daily touch with your military operations; I also find it inadvisable to be away from Washington more than a short time.

There are two sides to the problem. The first relates to timing. There is always the possibility that the historic Russian defense, followed by taking the offensive, may cause a crack-up in Germany next Winter. In such a case we must be prepared for the many next steps. We are none of us prepared today. Therefore, it is my belief that you and I ought to meet this summer.

The second problem is where to meet. Africa is almost out of the question in summer and Khartum is British territory. Iceland I do not like because for both you and me it involves rather difficult flights and, in addition, would make it, quite frankly, difficult not to invite Prime Minister Churchill at the same time.

Therefore, I suggest that we could meet either on your side or my side of Bering Straits. Such a point would be about three days from Washington and I think about two days from Moscow if the weather is good. That means that you could always get back to Moscow in two days in an emergency.

It is my thought that neither of us would want to bring any staff. I would be accompanied by Harry Hopkins, an interpreter and a stenographer—and that you and I would talk very informally and get what we call "a meeting of the minds." I do not believe that any official agreements or declarations are in the least bit necessary.

You and I would, of course, talk over the military and naval situation, but I think we can both do that without Staffs being present.

Mr. Davies has no knowledge of our military affairs nor of the post-war plans of this Government, and I am sending him to you for the sole purpose of talking over our meeting.

I greatly hope that our forces will be in complete control of Tunisia by the end of May, and Churchill and I next week will be working on the second phase of the offensive.

Our estimates of the situation are that Germany will deliver an all-out attack on you this summer, and my Staff people think it will be directed against the middle of your line.

You are doing a grand job. Good luck!

Always sincerely,

Churchill was about to come to the capital for a two-week conference, and F.D.R., who had long wanted to meet face-to-face with Stalin, was particularly concerned lest the latter feel that the Anglo-Americans were teaming up against him.

British-American relations with the Soviet Union had worsened in this period. Admiral Standley, our Ambassador in Moscow, had told American correspondents there that Russia was deliberately keeping its people in ignorance of United States aid to the U.S.S.R. The Russians, on their side, were displeased with our decision to delay the second front.

F.D.R. to Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Sept. 20, 1943

Memorandum for the Secretary of War, The Secretary of the Navy:

I know that the Army and Navy are doing the best they can with the subject of fatigue and stress in both Services, but I wish that further special consideration be given in all combat services.

(a) Relating to the Army, I wish that further consideration be given to officers and men in tropical commands with the thought that we seek a more definite schedule in relieving units from those combat areas where there has been much fighting and where malaria and other diseases are serious factors.

I would like further study made of commands in out-of-the-way places such as small islands which are not in the active combat zone. This applies to all such islands no matter what the climate. For instance, I think it is just as necessary, this coming winter, to move people out of Attu or Kiska to Alaska for four of five weeks—say one third of the garrison at a time—as it is to relieve personnel in Christmas, Palmyra, Johnston, or even Fiji or New Caledonia or Espiritu Santo, if they have been there much over one year.

(b) On naval vessels, the principal problem is that of the submarines, and I think we should do more than we are doing now, not only to give periods of rest in Honolulu, etc., but to relieve personnel which has been doing submarine work for more than two years.

Consideration should also be given to the personnel of smaller ships like Navy tugs and patrol vessels in distant parts where the officers and men have been away from a well-equipped base for a long time.

(c) In regard to aviation, Army, Navy and Marine Corps, we have not yet reached the point of having enough personnel to provide two crews for every plane. The subject of fatigue and stress in flying is a new one and I think that it should be given further special study, both for the sake of the officers and men themselves and also for the sake of a greater efficiency.

F.D.R.

F.D.R. to Herbert B. Maw in Salt Lake City

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Oct. 8, 1943

My dear Governor:

I would have answered your good letter of July 17th sooner, but its arrival found me engaged with our Chiefs of Staff, preparing for the Quebec Conference.

I appreciate very much your thoughtfulness in writing me and the confidence which you express in the Administration, and, particularly, in the foreign policy.

No man could but be pleased with your expression that I now agree to indicate that I will be a candidate for the Presidency in 1944. I want to give you, in all frankness, my reasons why I think this statement cannot be made o my behalf or by me.

I must ask you to believe me when I tell you that my one consideration now is to win this war. It is a stern and difficult business. My responsibility is great and I feel that I would not be keeping faith with the trust which the people have given me and in my legal responsibilities as Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces if I were to give any consideration whatever to the Presidential election, which is more than a year away.

This nation is also faced with determining its policy and responsibilities for securing a just and enduring peace—a peace in which American interests will be fully protected, and a realistic peace in terms of the mutual responsibilities of all the nations of the earth.

Many preliminary steps must be taken to prepare the way. These pathfinding conferences, too, are a responsibility of the Executive Department. As in the case of the pending conferences with the Foreign Secretaries of Great Britain, Russia and the United States, they require my most careful consideration of the many important questions involved.

Our foreign relations, at this time, are such that any consideration on my part of a 4th term would, I believe, be prejudicial to our own interests.

Very sincerely yours,

In July F. D. R. had received a letter from Governor Maw of Utah urging him to run for reelection in 1944.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WHEN THE CLEVELAND Browns were winning those championships in the All-America Conference, George Marshall was one of the NFL club owners who were beaming suspicious glances down their collective nose and pooh-poohing the whole idea that there could be a good football team outside of their own league.

Marshall was not content merely with ignoring the Browns. He wondered publicly whether the Cleveland club could beat any team in the NFL. His wonderment was resolved with great suddenness after the Browns were merged into Marshall's league this season. One of the first things they did was beat the Chicago Bears in a preseason game.

POVICH

Since then, the Browns have twice bumped off the defending NFL champions, the Philadelphia Eagles, and found time also to clobber Marshall's Redskins. In 10 league games, they've been licked only twice—both times by the N. Y. Giants—and are very apt to wind up as champs of Marshall's league.

Their next immediate obstacle, which should please the Browns, is none other than the Redskins, whom they meet at Griffith Stadium on Sunday.

A FEW YEARS back Mr. Arthur McBride, who owns the Cleveland team, plus most of the taxicabs and much of the real estate in Cleveland and Akron, was quite fed up with the insults being hurled at his club by NFL people. He generously offered to play any team in that league, with the gate receipts going to charity.

Thereupon Marshall brushed him off with the advice that the Browns go get a reputation. McBride steamed and said plainly that the NFL was scared of his team.

Meanwhile, the viewpoints have changed in the Redskins' front office. They were bouncing about in delight a few weeks back at their feat of holding the Browns to a 20-14 score, and pointing out that they were in front until the last few minutes. All the Browns did was to take the ball when they had to and march 80 yards to the winning touchdown, a mark of a pretty good team.

As it is, the Redskins ought to feel pretty grateful to the Browns. In their worst season in history, when the Redskins themselves are no longer a whopping gate attraction, McBride's Clevelands will give them their largest crowd of the year in Griffith Stadium.

"DEAR SIR: HEARD your broadcast tonight (Monday). It was the final straw! Just because Notre Dame had a bad season (thus causing your dislike for Army great trouble), you did not have to go out of your way to display your obvious prejudice against Army.

"I have been ready to boil over several times this year at your cracks against Army, and you can judge how your views rate with men who have more right than I to feel burned up. I refer to graduates of West Point and all regular Army men. Hugh Lenhart."

How to accept criticism like the above leaves me quite baffled, inasmuch as my tour of duty on the radio show of the vacationing Arch McDonald ended three nights before my enraged listener heard what he said he heard. Suggest Mr. Lenhart take it up with my successor on McDonald's show this week. Must reject this criticism for want of proper address.

I FEEL CONSTRAINED to note that Harry Wismer has been doing a grand job on the recent broadcasts of the Redskins' games. It was almost strictly football, with no reference to the shape or content of the hors' d' ouevres served at Stuart Symington's cocktail party, and never once was Bill Dudley tackled right in front of Toots Shor.

I thought he was gloating a bit too happily, though, over Army's defeat by Navy last weekend, although I will not quarrel with the nice things he said about Eddie Erdelatz, the Navy coach, "who came out of the National Football League where he was backfield coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners."

I will not dispute the nice things he said about Erdelatz, but I will maintain forever that San Francisco was in the All-America Conference and that Erdelatz was end coach, not backfield coach.

MY FAVORITE ANNOUNCER, though, continues to be Carnation Jimmy Lake, the Mayor of Ninth Street, who has been emceeing the Turner's Arena fights during all of the years that were marked last Monday by the fifteenth anniversary show at the Arena.

For that one, Promoter Gabe Menendez brought back Phil Furr and Sid Silas, who fought the first bout in the Arena 15 years ago, for a three-round exhibition. Also the original referee, Mr. Dennis Hughes, to work the bout. Mr. Lake eloquently introduced the fighters and then Mr. Hughes as:

"Mr. Hughes, the man who refereed the first fight in this Arena. He has gone on to become one of our leading barristers, and also a member of the bar."

Aggies 'Bruisin' Bob Smith Big Test for Georgia Defense

Ten years ago, it was Jarrin' Jawn Kimbrough. Now it's Bruisin' Bob Smith, their all Southwest Conference star.

Smith, the running star of the offense-mad Aggies, figures to give the rugged Georgia defense its most rugged test of the season when the two teams hook up in Saturday's Presidential Cup Game at Byrd Stadium.

Bruisin' Bob is a 190-pounder—Kimbrough weighed 220—and he's the fastest, busiest and bestest back on Coach Harry Stiteler's Lone Star Staters.

He carried the ball 199 times—almost 20 times a game—in the Aggies' 10 games this season and gained 6½ yards every time he tucked the leather under his arm.

"We're used to big things, down in Texas and Bruisin' Bob gave 'em to us against S. M. U.," reported Kenny Bond, the Aggie publicity man last night.

"'Bruisin' Bob—that's what we all call him down home—gained 297 yards in 29 carries against Kyle Rote & Co. and we licked 'em.

"They tell me Kimbrough considered it a bad day when he didn't bruise up two or three of his own teammates. Smith isn't that brutal, I don't think. He don't hurt anybody 'cause there's very few folks who can lay a hand on him once he gets underway."

Smith averaged 4.79 last year and is clipping along at 6.6 this season. He's already gained 1302 yards this season, 400 yards more than any back ever gained in the Southwest. — MORRIS SIEGEL

Indianapolis Routs Caps, 101 to 79; Jones Gets 34

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

With Wallace (Wah Wah) Jones, leading the charge, Indianapolis' former University of Kentucky aces put Washington to its worst rout of the season, 101-79, last night before 1310 lonely patrons at Uline Arena.

Jones was phenomenal with a 34-point performance which fell just one point short of the arena record held jointly by Bob Feerick, former Cap coach, and Max Zaslofsky, formerly of the Chicago Stags and now with the New York Knicks.

Jones' former Kentucky teammates, Alex Groza and Ralph Beard, completed the mopup with 23 and 22 points, and thus, between them, did Jones, Beard and Groza equal the scoring of the entire Caps' team.

Indianapolis' shooting was incredible in a first half which saw the Olympians take a 61-36 lead. They made 24 out of 37 field goal attempted for an almost unbelievable .649 percentage. In the second half they wound up with 40 out of 100 for a still creditable .400 average.

The Caps were a sorry crew after the first quarter in which they held the Olympians to a 25-21 lead. Dick Schnittker, back after a two-week layoff, tried to keep Washington in the game with his 16 points and fight under the basket. But he had little help.

Groza, 6 feet, 7 inches tall, was outjumping Washington big boys Ed Mikan, 6-8, and Chick Halbert, 6-9.

In the second half, when they did get the ball, Mikan and Halbert couldn't find anyone to pass out to.

At halftime, Indianapolis opened up a 61-36 bulge. With Groza resting in the early moments of the third quarter, Washington pulled up to 48-63, but that was the closest they came. Going into the fourth quarter, they trailed 79-62.

Jones had 26 points going into the last quarter. He put in two field goals and two free throws in the first 6 minutes. With 5 minutes left, he missed two vital free throws, but made a tap-in with 2 minutes left. That left him a point shy of the record but put Indianapolis in front, 97-75.

Penn Defeats Terps, 75-64

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6. — Maryland's basketball team fell short with its second half rally, and lost to Penn, 75-64 in the nightcap of a doubleheader which found Villanova whipping Tampa, 90-63, in the opener here tonight.

The Terps, ahead only in the early moments of the game, trailed by 16 points, 57-41, with a third of the second half gone. Then they went to work and twice rose to within two points of the Red and Blue, but each time the home team staved off the threat.

With seven minutes to go, Dick Koffenberger's foul brought the count to 61-59 in Penn's favor. Bobby Brooks' stab gave Penn a four point edge, but two fouls by Koffenberger narrowed the gap to 63-61. Here two goals by Ernie Beck, Penn's big center, sealed the Terps' doom and they couldn't get closer than four points the rest of the way.

Jim Johnson paced Maryland with 15 points followed by Lee Brawley with 14. Brooks' 20 points led Penn to its second straight win.

"THAT'S MY BOBBY"—Ellen Ward brings her All-American hubby, Guard Bobby Ward, of Maryland, his slippers as Ward sits down to read about one of the many honors that's come his way the past few days. While Ward was reading about his election to Look's All-America team, he was informed yesterday he had also been named on the Associated Press' All-America team. He's 23, a junior and hails from Elizabeth, N. J.

Guard Bob Ward 1st Terp To Make AP All-America

By Frank Eck

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP).—Two-platoon football, the pattern on College gridirons the past three seasons, has caught up with the All-America player. The Associated Press 1950 All-America team, announced today, consists of two units—one for offense and one for defense—for the first time since the selections began 26 years ago.

The 22 players on the first team cover seven sections of the country. The Midwest holds a slight edge with six. Four are from the Southeast, three from the East, three from the Big Seven (Midland and Southwest), two from the Southwest, two from the South and two from the Pacific.

Guard Bobby Ward of Maryland was named to the first offensive team. Ward, 23-year-old junior from Elizabeth, N. J., is the first Maryland football player to make the Associated Press All-America. He was close to a 60-minute performer for the Terps.

This area was represented in home-grown products by Williams, who is from Baltimore, and Ted Daffer, Tennessee defensive guard whose home is in Norfolk.

Ends—Elmer Wingate and Pete Augsberger of Maryland; Vito Ragazzo, William and Mary, and Gene Schroeder, Virginia.

Tackles—Chet Gierula and Ray Krouse, Maryland.

Guards—Robert Conrad, Washington and Lee.

Backs—Rufus Barkley and John Papit, Virgina; Gil Bocetti, Washington and Lee; Andy Davis, George Washington; Walt Michaels, Washington and Lee; Ed

GI Reporter Called Turn On Bob Ward

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

THE SELECTION of Bobby Ward to the Associated Press' All-America football team yesterday bears out the prediction a sport writer on an Army camp paper made four years ago.

Writing in the Fort Benning, Ga., Bayonet in 1947, the anonymous soldier reporter prophesied:

"When Bob Ward gets out of the Army and goes to college, some team will get an All-America football player. He's good enough to play on any top flight college team in the country today."

A copy of the camp paper happened to fall into the hands of Bill Meek, an assistant coach at Maryland who coached at Fort Benning during the war. Meek hot-footed it down to Benning to talk to Ward but learned, upon his arrival, that Ward had been discharged the day before and was at home in Elizabeth, N. J.

MEEK ALSO was told that Ward was headed for the University of Alabama. He relayed the information to Head Coach Jim Tatum who promptly tracked Ward down at Elizabeth and invited him to visit the University of Maryland.

Tatum convinced him the scenery was better at College Park, Md., during the football season than at Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Ward agreed to take up residence at Maryland.

The rest is history.

Ward admitted he was "overwhelmed" by being named on the Associated Press All-America but also confessed it wasn't his biggest thrill in football.

"My biggest kick came last

U.S. Policy For Majors Ruinous, Say Small Loops

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Baseball's minor leagues have taken their radio problem to Washington.

George Trautman, president of the national association of minor leagues, said today he conferred for 30 minutes with the United States Attorney General last week on the matter of baseball broadcasts.

"I was cordially received," said Trautman. He declined to disclose what he had been told.

(Editor's note—The Department of Justice last year forcibly "suggested" that the major league make their baseball broadcasts available to a greater number of stations in both major and minor league territory. Otherwise, it was reported, the majors' restrictive radio programs would be cited as in restraint of trade.

(As a direct result of conferences between Commissioner Chandler and Justice Department officials, the number of stations beaming big league broadcasts into minor league territory was greatly multiplied during the 1950 season.)

Trautman and his executive committee huddled with Commissioner A. B. Chandler and a major league committee on the radio situation.

The minors claim widespread broadcasts of major league games in their cities was an important factor in their 19 percent attendance decline. They are asking the majors, who control the rights, for relief.

Frank Lawrence, president of the Portsmouth, Va., club of the Piedmont League, will introduce an amendment tomorrow that would ban all radio and television broadcasts of baseball except All-Star and World Series games. Lawrence knows he hasn't a chance with some $5,000,000 in contracts involved, but he wants to drag the matter out in public.

The high school rule, under fire for some time, probably will be scrapped when the contract runs, out, December 31, 1951. Many baseball men want the right to talk and negotiate with High School players before they graduate. Under the present rule, no high school boy can be signed until he or his class graduates.

Warren Giles, Cincinnati president, submitted a resolution on behalf of the Reds' Tulsa farm that would set up a committee to draft a new high school rule with the National High School Federation.

Nats Add Saginaw Farm, A's Sell Ortiz

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP).—The Washington Senators have added Saginaw, Mich., to their farm system and named Bert Niehoff as manager. Saginaw is a member of the Class A Central League.

Niehoff managed the Class B Selma, Ala., Cloverleafs of the Southeastern League last season. Niehoff is a veteran player and manager.

Roberto Ortiz, who broke in with Chattanooga and Washington, was sold by the Philadelphia A's to Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Ft. Wayne Ousts Philly From Lead

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 6 (AP). The Fort Wayne Pistons knocked the Philadelphia Warriors out of the lead in the National Basketball Association's eastern division with a 92-73 victory tonight. Philadelphia made 29 of 34 free throws, including 10 for 10 by Paul Arizin, but could not hit from the field.

50 Wins in Row

Saddler Upset by Flanagan

DETROIT, Dec. 6 (AP).—Courageous Del Flanagan of St. Paul scored a stunning upset tonight when he pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler in a non-title fight that was a roughhouse all the way.

Flanagan, a St. Paul lightweight and stablemate of Saddler's arch rival, former featherweight king Willie Pep, stunned a small turnout of 5,186 fans as he took a unanimous decision from Saddler.

It was the fiftieth link in Flanagan's streak of pro fights without a loss and it practically earned him a shot at Lightweight Champion Ike Williams' title in January.

A 2-1 underdog at ringtime, the little known Flanagan won the verdict of all three ring officials in a battle that would have made the Marquis of Queensbury writhe in anguish.

Saddler and Flanagan made up their own version of the rules as they went along and it included everything from butting, to wrestling, hitting on the break and a few other tactics not mentioned in polite circles.

There were no knockdowns in the battle which saw Flanagan punch a bit the harder and he used his 4-pound weight advantage—at 132¾—to good advantage in the innumerable clinches and wrestling holds.

To Play Outside

4 Terps Had Tatum's O. K.

Only 4, and not 15 as reported elsewhere, Maryland varsity football players played in a sandlot game with the Falls Church Hawks against Car Credit Sunday and all had the school's permission to play.

Without permission, all would have been ineligible to play football next year. Southern Conference rules forbid college athletes to play with teams other than their own school while the college is in session. Violators are not allowed to participate in sports for one year.

The four varsity players who played were Fullback Ed Fullerton, Quarterback Bob DeStefano, Center Roy Martine and Tackle Bob Dean.

There were other Maryland players—but they were on the junior varsity. The uniforms they wore were old Redskins uniforms and not Maryland, as was reported.

Dean Geary Eppley of Maryland, who is also president of the Southenr Conference, said the boys had permission of Coach Jim Tatum.

QUANTICO, Va., Dec. 6 (AP).—The Quantico Marines best Geneva College, 59-53, tonight in a tense, action-packed game here.

The Marines stepped ahead in the opening minutes and were never behind. The Marines held a 31-24 lead at the half.

Yogi Has That Cave Man Appeal

Women Artists Vote Berra's Homely Mug One of Ten 'Most Stimulating' Faces in U.S.

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP).—We can't blame Yogi Berra if he isn't sure whether he should feel complimented or insulted in being selected as having one of the 10 most stimulating faces because it stimulates women's subconscious yearning for the neanderthal man.

Yogi will have to study up on that neanderthal business before he makes up his mind, and from the pictures we have seen supposedly depicting a cave man clouting the lady of his choice on the noggin with a big club we doubt he will be favorably impressed. Maybe the baseball bat in Yogi's hands gave the National Association of Women Artists, which made the selection, the idea.

Neanderthal is a valley in the Rhine province where parts of the skeleton of an early type of man were discovered, but Yogi probably will insist his connection with it is all a mistake, as he's never been there. However, the race is believed to have been widespread in paleolithic (two-bit word) Europe, so maybe a lot of us can be connected with the cave men in one way or another.

Yogi can be thankful they didn't associate him with the Piltdown man, an extinct species characterized by a retreating, apelike chin and thick cranial bones. A bonehead, no less.

It was mentioned by the feminine artists that Berra had the most down-to-earth face in America, and after watching him block home plate and take headers into second base we are inclined to agree. Yogi's nose readily has been pushed into the dirt more than a little during his career as a Yankee catcher.

What really should worry him, however, is what he'll hear from the mob, meaning rival players, next season. Those bench jockeys think of plenty of caustic comments, even if they can't pronounce neanderthal. "Back to your cave, Yogi," will be just a sample.

Like Charley Keller, another target for friendly barbs, Yogi is a good-natured and tolerant guy. And like Charley, he can swing a mean bat, which is the best answer to caustic remarks.

Berra's Answer Is 'for Men Only'

New York, Dec. 6.—News of the distinction caught up with Berra in a St. Louis restaurant. He listened carefully to what the women had said, and mused, "I don't know . . ."

He listened again, paused in thoughtful silence, and concluded: "To tell the truth, I don't know what the hell to say."

Night Count, 9-1 Shot, Wins Feature Race

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

CHARLES TOWN, Dec. 6—Cleverly handled by Apprentice Jockey Tommy Kane, B. S. Campbell's Night Count proved one of a parade of surprise winners on the midweek program here.

The 6-year-old finished under urging to win the Halltown Purse by half a length over Jim Arthur's Bir Ackeim, the favorite. Third money in the field of seven went to J. K. Wynkoop's Excel.

Night Count, third in his first appearance here last Monday, paid a $20.20 mutuel today and was clocked in 1:58 for the mile and one eighth over a slow track before 4000 fans.

Favorite players had a dull afternoon. The program began on a longshot downbeat when Henry Faust's Idle Tale, strongly handled by Jockey Patsy Grant, took the event with daylight to spare at a $45.20 win mutuel.

Joe Paoli's By Me, handled by Ray Arduini of Washington stayed in front all the way to win the second race and produced a $25 mutuel. Those who coupled Idle Tale and By Me (6 and 4) collected $291.80, approximately half of a parlay on the winners.

Mild outsiders won the next three races. Louis Boyer's Wagel annexed the third at $14 with Joe Santer up: W. Clark brought M. R. Schneider's Admiral's Tune home at $12 in the fourth while J. Gorman's Ice Cap at $18.80 ran away with the fifth

The shortest mutuel of the day, $9.40 developed in the seventh race but Friar Tuck proved a poor favorite as J. K. Wynkoop's One Only was the winner. The Shutout of the favorite backers was complete when Edward Cooney's Treasure Key, at $18.80 took the eighth race.

Griff Takes Walk, 'Much Better'

Clark Griffith, Nats' president, who was operated on Tuesday for a hernia condition, was permitted to take a short walk yesterday at Georgetown University Hospital.

He was reported feeling "much better." Dr. George Resta, his physician, said that 81-year-old Griffith may be permitted to go home this weekend if he continues to improve.

American U. Will Play At Catholic

George Washington tackles North Carolina State in a Southern Conference basketball game at Uline Arena at 8:45 tonight and there's more than a faint suspicion that the Colonials have bitten off more than they can chew.

It's G. W.'s first game of the year. The Colonials are facing a thoroughly warmed up State team that has won three in a row, and before then gave a good account of itself against the supposedly far superior Rochester and Indianapolis pro teams in an exhibition tour.

State has won the Southern Conference title four years running, and there appears to be no team around to stand in its way again. With All-America Sam Ranzino back, and the addition of one of the best and tallest frosh teams of last year, the Wolfpack may even surpass its No. 4 national ranking of 1949-50.

The invasion of State overshadows another corking good game here tonight, American vs. Catholic University, a Mason-Dixon Conference affair, at C. U., 8:30 o'clock. The Eagles have beaten Quantico and Towson in their first two starts. The Cards dropped their opener to Mount St. Mary's.

Shoemaker Is Thrown in 1st Race, Sidelined

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Dec. 6 (AP). Jockey Willie Shoemaker had a narrow brush with serious injury in a spill in the first race at Hollywood Park today and the fall put him on the sidelines for the remainder of the afternoon.

The youngster, runner-up to Joe Culmone for 1950 national honors, was thrown when Pension Plan bolted in the home stretch while leading.

Shoemaker was tossed to the track and then into the infield. He landed on his hands and face and flipped out of danger just as the horse's hind heels hit the turf where he had been.

Shoemaker was ordered off his six other mounts of the day on the advice of the track physician.

Caps Clinic Big Opportunity for Area Boys and Girls

The Washington Caps will give out with some inside tips on how to play basketball Saturday at 1 p. m., at Uline Arena, and all the boys and girls around town are invited to attend free of charge. . . .

Each of the Caps will give a demonstration of how he makes his favorite shot. Then six of the top area high school teams, McKinley Tech, Eastern, St. Albans, St. John's, Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Gonzaga, will pair off in 10-minute scrimmages. Members of the Caps will point out to the players how they might improve their play.

In addition to getting some valuable inside dope from the big leaguers, each youngster will receive:

An illustrated book on 'How to Play Basketball" by Ozzie Cowles, Coach of the University of Minnesota, a "Junior Caps" button which will entitle him to attend the Caps' games for 25 cents, and autograph pictures of the Caps.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: At Charles Town

In my thirty years of batting around the tracks, I've run into my share of characters. The other day, however, I contacted a new champion. He is a horse owner—one thoroughbred—who doesn't care if his horse wins or not. He's not in the horse business to make money. Just wants to be one of the boys. "When they ship to Cumberland, I ship to Cumberland," he says. "When they talk horses, I talk horses. When they complain about feed bills, I complain about feed bills. I just like to go where they go and do what they do. And besides, I get a free badge to all the tracks." Maybe the guy has something, at least he seems happy. However, it's a rather expensive way to be "just one of the boys." See you on the rail—BILL

Eagle, Stanlee In 'Title' Draw

Don Eagle and Gene Stanlee wrestled to a one-hour draw in their heavyweight "championship" bout before 2785 fans last night at Turner's Arena.

In a semifinal bout, Nell Stewart defeated Elli Waldek when Miss Waldek was disqualified in 11 minutes because of roughness.

Snead, Ferrier Win, Six Favored Teams Upset at Miami

Jim Demaret And Burke Ousted, 5-4

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—Six favored teams fell by the wayside in the opening round of the $10,000 Miami international four-ball golf tournament today but the top-seeded duo of Sam Snead and Jim Ferrier breezed to an easy 4 and 3 victory over Willie Klein and Eldon Briggs.

Biggest upset among the 32 teams of professionals competing in the grueling five-day test was the 5 and 4 triumph by John Barnum, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Jack Shields, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, over Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Jack Burke, Jr., Houston, Tex.

Snead, the top money-winning pro from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., carried the load by carding three birdies on the front nine with an unusually hot putter. Ferrier, his Australian-born partner, now from San Francisco, won the fourth hole for the team when he canned a 14-footer on the thirtenth for a birdie three.

The favored Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach, Fla., and Ed Oliver, Seattle, Wash., easily eliminated Doug Ford, Briarcliff, N. Y., and Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N. C., 5 and 3.

Toney Penna, Cincinnati, and partner, Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass., carded a best ball of 33-31—64 to edge out Wally Ulrich, Austin, Minn., and Herman Scharlau, Boca Raton, Fla., one up. It was the lowest 18-hole score so far in the tournament. Par 36-36—72.

Worsham Advances; Harper Is Ousted

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 6.—Washington's Lew Worsham and Al Brosch, Garden City, N.Y., defeated Henry Ransom, St. Andres, Ill., and Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, 3 and 1, in the first round of the Miami International four-ball golf tournament today.

Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., and E. J. Harrison, St. Andrews, Ill., bowed 1 up to Al Besselink, Royal Oak, Mich. and Earl Christiansen, Miami.

AAU Considers Five World Track Records Today

120 yard high hurdles—13.5 seconds made by Dick Attlesey at Fresno, Calif., last May 13.

110 meter high hurdles—13.6 seconds, made by Dick Attlesey at College Park, June 24.

880 yard run—1:49.2, made by Mal Whitfield at Berea, Ohio, May 19.

Decathlon—8042 points, made by Bob Mathias at Tulare, Calif., June 29.

Hoyas Soften Football Slate

Georgetown announced its 1951 football schedule yesterday and it revealed a definite downgrading.

Gone are Miami and Penn State, who gave Georgetown its worst scoreboard lickings, 42-7 and 34-14, respectively. Also off the schedule are two other victors in 1950—Tulsa, 21-7, and Villanova, 20-14.

Foes not met the past season include Lafayette, Bucknell, Rutgers and, possibly, Richmond. Wake Forest reappears on the Hoyas' slate but hardly can be called a soft touch.

Another departure from custom of the past four years is that George Washington won't be met in the final game. The GW contest is set for Griffith Stadium, Nov. 24. The following week, December 1, the Hoyas close with Maryland at Byrd Stadium.

That Richmond game, tentatively scheduled at Griffith Stadium for November 3, still is pending.

The only brand-new foe for Georgetown is Rutgers. The do-or-die boys who played Princeton in the first intercollegiate football game never have fought it out with the Hoyas.

The schedule:
September 29, at Lafayette.
October 6, at Wake Forest; 13, Bucknell, home; 19, at Boston College; 27, at Rutgers.
November 3, Richmond, home (pending); 10, at Fordham; 17, at Holy Cross; 24, George Washington, Griffith Stadium.
December 1, at Maryland.

Saturday when Coach Tatum let me run with the ball twice against VPI," the perfectly modest 23-year-old said. "I made 46 yards."

TO MANY, PERHAPS, the selection of Ward, who has the merited stamp of a great defensive player, on an offensive All-America team is strange. But it's not to the Maryland coaches.

Ward played some offense his freshman and sophomore years but this season he played as much offense as defense because he was the best blocker we had," Coach Tatum said. "He's fast, pulls out nicely on trap plays and there isn't a better downfield blocker in the country.

"He's all football player, all heart and an All-American if there ever was one."

Ward, the son of an Elizabeth, N. J., detective, comes from a family of football players. An older brother, Jim, an end, co-captained Columbia last year. A younger brother, Al, played end for the Lions this season. He kicked the extra point which gave Columbia its 20-19 victory over Cornell.

AN "AVERAGE" student, Ward is majoring in marketing at Maryland. A shy youngster, Ward had no "regular" girl until last Christmas. Then, at a dance, he met pretty Ellen Louise Zalesak, who lived at Union, N. J., only a first down's distance from Ward's home in Elizabeth. They had never met until that dance at College Park.

Five months after their first date, they were married. And they're expecting a little All-America in two months.

Ward is the third player from a District area school to make the AP All-America. The others, all guards also, were Babe Connaughton (1926) and Augie Lio (1940), both of Georgetown.

Oregon St. Gives Its Losing Coach New 5-Year Pact

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 6 (AP). Oregon State's football coach, Kip Taylor, had a new five-year contract today.

The old one, with still a year to run, was torn up and a new one written, Athletic Director Roy S. Keene told 400 cheering alumni at the annual Portland banquet last night.

'49 Death Toll Topped as Boy Dies in Traffic

DISTRICT TRAFFIC TOLL:

1950 deaths to date	65
1949 deaths to date	64
Total 1949 death toll	71

The District's 1950 traffic death toll yesterday passed the 1949 figure for the same date when a 5-year-old boy was crushed to death beneath two automobiles in the first block of D st. se.

The child, identified as Roosevelt Williams, 41 Ivy st. se., ran into the street while fleeing from a playmate who apparently wanted some peanuts the victim was carrying in a bag, police reported.

Left in the care of neighbors while his parents were at work, the boy was struck in front of 36 D st. se., first by a car driven by Nathaniel Walker, 28, of 716 61st ave., Fairmont Heights, Md., police reported. His body was hurled by Walker's westbound car into the path of another, proceeding east on D st. and operated by Leroy Jensen, 30, of Brandywine, Md.

Jensen told police the boy's body landed between the front and rear wheels of his car. The child was pronounced dead at the scene by a Health Department ambulance doctor. Neither driver was held.

The traffic fatality toll reached 64, to equal that of the same date in 1949, with the death at Gallinger Hospital late Tuesday night of Charles Blackson, 70. Blackson's last address was given as 764 Park rd. nw. Police said Blackson was struck at 5th and Quincy sts. nw. by a car going north on 5th st. and operated by Joseph Williams, 72, of 1336 Locust rd. nw. The victim was not in the crosswalk, police said.

In another accident yesterday, a 24-year-old man being rushed to Emergency Hospital in a Rescue Squad ambulance for second-degree burns was further injured by flying glass when the ambulance collided with a Woodward & Lothrop truck at 15th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Also injured was Sergt. William R. Packett, 36, of 3124 South Dakota ave. ne., who was giving first aid en route to Jack Miller, 25 Kennedy st. nw., who had been severely burned while dumping floor scrapings into an incinerator at his home.

Both were admitted to Emergency Hospital, where they were taken by a Health Department ambulance which replaced the damaged vehicle. Besides his burns, Miller was treated for cuts on his face and shoulders. Packett suffered severe head cuts.

Police said the truck, proceeding west on Massachusetts ave., was operated by Maurice R. Frock, 26, of 1024 I st. ne. He was booked on charges of failing to yield the right of way.

Damage to the ambulance was estimated at $4000. Pvt. Thomas A. Herlihy, 35, of 110 Varnum st. nw., was driving it.

Another replacement for the wrecked ambulance was required about three hours later, when Charles H. Reiter, 44, of 4450 Verplanck pl. nw., was struck by a car while crossing Wisconsin ave. near the Sears-Roebuck store.

Police said Reiter, stepping down from a streetcar platform, was hit by a southbound car driven by Navy Comdr. James B. Cresap, 36, of 3703 Lyon la., Alexandria. A former Navy commander himself, Reiter is a Pepco engineer.

Dr. Luther A. Gilliom, 5017 Allendale rd., Greenacres, Md., who happened by the scene after the crash, rendered what police called "invaluable" first aid to Reiter.

Reiter was treated for a compound fracture of the leg at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

After the accident, Fire Department Rescue Squad No. 2 was asked to send its ambulance. But it had been incapacitated in the wreck at Massachusetts ave. and 15th st. nw. The Rescue Squad responded with a Health Department ambulance.

It developed, however, that the ambulance carried no fracture board for securing Reiter's leg. So the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad was summoned, and he was taken to the hospital.

Bar Group to Honor Judges at Dinner

Associate Judges Tom Clark and Harold Burton, of the Supreme Court, and lower court judges from the area will be honored by a dinner and reception tonight.

The event, given by the Bar Association of the District of Columbia will be in the Statler Hotel at 6:15 with entertainment provided by Evelyn Knight, Peter Donald and the Chordettes.

McSweeney to Retire

Representative John McSweeney (D., Ohio) said yesterday he will retire Saturday as president of the Ohio State Society of Washington.

He said the group will meet at 8:30 p. m. Saturday in the Willard Hotel to hear a talk by Dr. Howard Lowry, president of Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio.

As 'Socialistic'

Lee Attacks Two More School Books

School Board Vice President Adelbert W. Lee yesterday carried his criticism of the administration of local schools into areas of textbooks, football games and the school lunch program.

He also charged school officers intimidated employes who furnished him information.

Lee, who last week described "American Government," a high school text book as "socialistic," added two more to the list of books he wants investigated. They are "Roots of Political Behavior," used in Wilson Teachers College, and "Workers at Home and Away," for third graders. All are on the blacklist of "The Educational Reviewer," a paper sponsored by the Conference of American Small Business Organizations.

THE FEDERAL DIARY appears on Page 1 today.

Corning said all books criticized by "The Educational Reviewer" will be studied.

"No one is more diligent than the superintendent, officers and teachers in preventing undesirable material from reaching children. I am positive you will find no extra-liberal people among them," Corning said.

In the face of a report from Corning that "there is no evidence of drinking or gambling by students at football games," Lee repeated his charge of three weeks ago that "notorious gamblers" attend games and that there is "considerable drinking."

Lee told yesterday's meeting William "Snags" Lewis, indicted District gambler, "rarely misses a game," and that school principals "in confidence" have reported that drinking takes place at games. Lee described the food distribution and school lunch program as "a miserable mess."

Distributes Surplus Food

The school system, as agent for the Agriculture Department, distributes surplus foods to 51 local institutions and 39 public and parochial schools. Lee said Miss Violet R. Cutaiar, clerk-typist, has been administering the program in the absence of a director and in addition lifting cases of canned goods from trucks because of a shortage of laborers.

He said Miss Cutaiar "found it necessary" to resign because she was criticized for going to the FBI to find out if one of the agencies receiving food was eligible as a nonprofit institution. As a result of her efforts the agency was dropped.

Lee said Miss Margaret Pepper, executive assistant to Dr. Corning, took Miss Cutaiar "to task" and questioned her about information she furnished Lee.

"This business of concealing facts has got to stop," Lee declared. "When a school board member gets facts it is incumbent on no one to criticize or ask where the information comes from. Other school officers have gone out and tried to find out where I get information."

Corning Backs Assistant

Corning said Miss Pepper acted with his "full knowledge" and he "certainly would criticize any clerk who went to the FBI" instead of reporting to a superior officer.

In other actions the board:

Extended for another year the services of Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent in charge of Negro schools. Dr. Wilkinson, who will be 72 years old in January, has received two previous extensions.

Granted the Commissioners permission to mount an air raid siren on the Sumner School, 17th and M sts. nw.

Postponed for further study a proposal to transfer two white elementary schools, Maury and Ludlow, to use by Negro children.

A Lighter Moment During the Work at the Youth Conference

Weakley Case Murder Jury Deadlocked

Food Salesman's Fate Still in Doubt After Hours of Deliberation

A District Court jury was deadlocked last night in the first-degree murder trial of Luther R. Weakley, 49-year-old food salesman.

After more than five hours' deliberation, the jury at 6:10 p. m. asked further instructions on the difference between first-degree and second-degree murder.

Judge Edward M. Curran told them first-degree murder necessitated purposefulness and deliberation. Second-degree murder is a malicious killing, he said, that showed the heart of the slayer was bent on mischief or disregarded the life of his fellowman.

The jury received the case at 12:50, and was still deadlocked at 10:30 p. m. when it was sent home for the night.

Weakley is accused of firing four shots and killing his former employer, Thomas G. Carnes, 43, on May 20 at Blue Plate Foods, Inc., 316 F st. ne. He pleads self-defense, but the Government insists it was premeditated murder, which charge, if sustained by the jury, makes death in the electric chair mandatory.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward L. Carney recalled that the day before the killing, Weakley had been fired for inefficiency and had been "brooding" over the discharge. He said Weakley carried a gun when he went to talk to Carnes about it, and fired one shot into Carnes as he sat at a desk, and then three more shots when Carnes fell, moaning and pleading, to the floor.

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin, appointed by the court to represent Weakley, countered that Carnes was belligerent, threatened to cut out the defendant's tongue, and was a "big man with a frog-like voice."

Laughlin said Weakley had threatened to report inefficiency and money shortages in the office to the headquarters of the company, and that that had infuriated Carnes. Weakley maintained the gun was discharged during a struggle. He said he voluntarily surrendered to police.

The jury can return a verdict of guilty of first-degree murder, second-degree murder, manslaughter, or innocent.

FSA Announces $13,176 in Grants For Dental Studies

The Federal Security Agency yesterday announced a total of $13,176 for three dental research grants. One recipient is associated with Howard University here.

Dr. Raymond L. Hayes of Howard's College of Dentistry was awarded $6750 to investigate the way the adrenal gland controls activity of Vitamin C and its relation to dental tissues.

Dr. Paul H. Keyes of the Harvard School of Dental Medicine has been awarded a grant of $2970 to determine a chemical diet most conducive to tooth decay in the hamster, where tooth dacay occurs as it does in man. Dr. Bernard G. Sarnat of the University of Illinois was given $3456 to study how development of cartilage affects the juncture of the jaw bone and the skull.

Parley Advanced Youth-Adult Understanding, Delegates Say

Representatives of American youth looked at themselves yesterday and decided their participation in the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth had been a good idea.

About 500 strong, they met in the central hall of the National Guard Armory to review their contribution to the conference.

"We have learned," said one, "how adults feel about our problems. We have learned how to work and get along with other people."

Another piped up—"We have learned that adults think 53 million of us are important."

One young man put it this way: "We know it's been worthwhile because we are in a better position to do a better job in guiding our children in the next generation. And believe me, that generation is going to be important."

There was some criticism. Some complained they had been ignored in their work groups. Others said adults listened "but didn't hear us."

But generally, the youths thought they had done a good job, and that adults had cooperated in their work with them.

For every one of the nearly 6000 delegates at the conference it was a hectic day. It was a day filled with work for section chiefs, work group heads, panel directors, who are trying in these closing days of the conference to draw together a million ideas and make a formal program for action during the next 10 years for the whole country.

It was certainly not a calm atmosphere. In one work group, Renee Schapiro, 20, representing the New York City Welfare Council, rose to call for the outlawing of the atomic bomb. "It can only mean total destruction," she said.

Other delegates nearly shouted her down. "It's unfair to let that statement go. It's not a statement of fact."

A youth delegate, David Ezekiel, rose to support a resolution which stated: "As a means of strengthening the morale of youth, mobilization should be identified with U. N. forces rather than with the U. S. Army."

The delegates wanted to know: "Does that mean if the majority of the other countries in the world are against us we cannot defend ourselves?"

The resolution was tabled after a Navy lieutenant calmly said, "Let us not take as the interest of all youth the youth of this work group."

Conference Director Melvin A. Glasser said conferees seem to be developing an anxious feeling—they want to make sure something is going to happen as the result of the conference. "They want to see that the things we've produced won't die on someone's library shelf."

Youth Parley Drafts Ideas For Better Nation, World

United States should have the right of self-determination and should be permitted to live where they choose. Segregation should be ended on every level of American life.

Discrimination: Every method should be used to teach youth not to make other people objects of hatred and prejudice because of race, color, nationality, or the political systems of which they may be the victims.

Infancy and Early Childhood: A conference should be called by a voluntary national agency to plan legislation for child day care under six. Minimum standards should be set in each State for day-care centers, nursery schools and kindergartens. Uniform hospital standards for care of mothers and children should be set up. The parents' feelings of satisfaction and self-confidence should be fostered. Child specialists should consider whether their books increase parental anxiety over their adequacy.

Adolescence: Investigation is needed to find out how much of adolescent conflict is inevitable. Young people who are "left out" of clubs, activities and organizations should be studied. Adults, youths and professional workers should be represented on curriculum planning committees. Health services for adults should be broadened to recognize emotional difficulties and give advice on how to relieve them.

Schools: Educational institutions should reexamine their policies to see if they are encouraging cheating and overemphasizing grades in selection of school candidates. There should be immediate protection of the right of children to be taught by teachers who are not menaced by threats to their freedom of speech.

Needs of schools for critical materials should yield priority only to military needs. There should be immediate enactment of Federal aid to enducation.

Religion: Churches and synagogues should give youth more participation in their organizations. Parents in each community should set up a program of religious education on released time from public schools.

Working conditions: States should pass and enforce laws regulating night labor hours for youth. There should be a 14-year-age minimum for after school work and a 16-year minimum for full time work.

Communications: The television industry should develop and extend daily programs to meet intellectual and emotional needs of children and youth. The FCC should act favorably on the request for educational TV channels. A committee of radio, TV, motion picture and publishing industries should be set up to dramatize successful family living.

Police: The police should be included in all levels of community planning for youth service. All police should be trained in work with juveniles and additional, specialized training should be given to those who will work with youth.

Law: An act for uniform support of dependents should be passed by all 48 States and the District of Columbia. Each State should study whether it is better to assign all family cases to a juvenile or other specialized court. Child psychiatrists should be a part of juvenile court staffs.

Housing: A cooperative housing program, specifically geared to the needs and income of middle-income families should be started. There should be continued support of Federal slum clearance and urban development. Sub-standard housing should be eliminated.

Economics: Prices and rent control are needed in the current emergency. Servicemen's family allowances and minimum wages should be increased.

Health: Health service aid should be extended to impoverished and underdeveloped nations and to occupied territories. The school lunch program should be extended. Adequate preventive and remedial health services should be made available on a national scale.

Romulo Urges Free World To Back U. N.

Victory in Korea Would Give Children Future, Parley Told

The United Nations must meet the "total challenge" of communism's threat to "international peace and security" if the free world is to survive, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, foreign secretary of the Philippine Republic, last night told the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

"What is at stake in Korea is the freedom of man, his dignity, his infinite worth as a person, and his inalienable right to live according to his conscience and his nature," the chief Philippine delegate to the U. N. said. "We cannot build the free and peaceful world we desire for our children unless we are prepared to pay the cost."

General Romulo reaffirmed his country's "unflinching loyalty" to the U. N., and said that anything less would be a "disservice to international peace and security." He stated that the "military situation in Korea has caused some to waver in their support of the United Nations and to wish that a course less costly and less risky than the one followed in Korea might be found in dealing with naked and unabashed aggression."

"We of the Philippines do not share these misgivings," he continued. "It is our belief there is nothing in decision of the United Nations to deal firmly with aggression in Korea which should in the least trouble the conscience of the free world."

"No selfish intention moved the member states that responded to the call of the United Nations," Romulo said. "They undertook to resist aggression in Korea in disregard of the promptings of caution and self-interest. And they made doubly sure, by solemn declarations and binding pledges, that they would have nothing to gain by their effort over and above the unity, independence and economic security of the Korean people."

"A cause worth winning is worth upholding even in defeat," the general continued, and insisted that "this and succeeding generations would be saved from the scourge of war if the Charter of the United Nations were faithfully complied with."

"Today's children live in a world of unequaled prospects—and unprecedented danger," Romulo said. "Modern technology has placed within the reach of all mankind the means to a better life. It has also fashioned weapons of destruction that threaten the human race with extinction."

Larger Negro Role In Prince Georges Affairs Is Asked

The newly installed Republican Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday were handed a "blueprint" to guide them in handling Negro affairs in the county.

A letter signed by eight Negro Republicans was sent to each of the new officeholders outlining a seven-point program.

Among the steps recommended by the letter were appointment of Negro deputy sherifs; appointment of at least six Negro police officers; representation on all policy-making boards in the county, and "removal of Jim Crow signs in the courthouse at Marlboro."

Alexander Barnes, general manager of the Capital Times newspaper and one of the signers of the letter, said action on the suggestions could "mean the difference between victory and defeat in the 1952 campaign." Thomas E. Latimer, president of the board, said the letter is under advisement.

School, Church Groups Split on Released Time

2 Recommendations Issued From Panels Studying Religion And Education

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The proposal to release children from school for religious training drew opposite recommendations yesterday from two groups at the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

The church group, after much debate, was for the practice and the school unit was opposed.

What the final recommendation of the conference will be on the controversial issue will be decided at a general session of the 5000 delegates this morning.

In the end, the session of churchmen and religious workers adopted this resolution:

"We recommend that the White House Conference call upon parents to set up in each community, in accord with the law of the state or territory or the District of Columbia, provision for a program of religious education on released time from the public school; each child to be released only upon the request or permission of his parent or guardian."

A strong minority vote was registered on the resolution and the argument is expected to be revived when all the delegates get a chance to discuss the matter.

The view of the school group was that the teaching of specific religions was the job of the family and the religious institution.

The religious session adopted a vigorous program dedicated to bringing the half of the Nation's children now going without religious training back into the influence of the church and the synagogue. The group urged:

Strengthening of bonds of happy family relationships by effective pre-marital, marital and paternal counseling; encouragement of daily family religious experiences; employment of spiritually, morally and professionally qualified personnel to foster healthy personalities.

Statements At Parley Challenged

A George Washington University professor and a building industry executive yesterday challenged statements to the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Dr. Robert W. Bolwell, professor of American literature at George Washington University, took exception to statements that modern colleges engender atheism and disillusion.

He said "You can meet God in many classes in our liberal arts program."

Dr. Bolwell reviewed his course on American literature and pointed out that the study of Puritanism, our concept of Deism which comes from a later period, and the study of Emerson and the Unitarian philosophers all are essentially the study of the relation of God to man in the American way of life.

Dr. Bowell said "the student has a degree of personal responsibility in the matter of religious education which goes beyond what his courses may offer." He said that the student must utilize "the spiritual as well as the factual content of his education" and that a teacher cannot indoctrinate one system of religion into a student body that is intellectually free.

Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, criticized Lee R. Johnson, executive vice president of the National Housing Conference, who accused the Federal Government of "timidity and bureaucracy" in its housing program.

Cortright said that this was a tragic example of the power of left-wing groups in the Federal Government. He said "to pervert such a conference on youth and children into a front for socialized public housing is unfortunate and wrong."

Cortright added that the home building industry was establishing records in construction of homes and apartments every month.

Special Events For Chanukkoh Slated Tonight

Special celebrations of the Jewish holiday of Chanukkoh, the Festival of Lights, have been scheduled for tonight.

Among the programs will be a joint religious service, co-sponsored by the Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle and the National Jewish Welfare Board, for the patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital at 7:30 p. m. Rabbi Chaim Williamowsky, auxiliary hospital chaplain, will conduct the services, assisted by Rabbi Hirsch Z. Glickman and Cantor Simon Weiss. Gifts will be distributed to patients.

Another observance is sponsored by the Center League, the youth-adult organization of the Washington Jewish Community Center, and National Jewish Welfare Board's Washington Armed Services Committee.

The program, at 8:30 p. m. in the Little Auditorium, 1529 16th st. nw., will feature a dramatic presentation, the lighting of the symbolic Menorah—the Chanukkoh candelabra, community singing and dancing.

Brooke Lee Quits State Planning Commission Post

E. Brooke Lee, veteran Democratic leader of Montgomery County, confirmed Annapolis reports last night that he has resigned his post on the Maryland State Planning Commission.

Named to replace him was L. Harold Sothoron, Lee said. Sothoron is the "lame duck" State Senator from Prince Georges County.

Lee, a political figure in the State for 30 years and once an adviser to Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., said he quit the planning body to devote more time to private business. His term on the planning body was to expire in June, 1952.

Sothoron sought reelection to the State Senate in the November 7 election, but was defeated by Republican John Raymond Fletcher of Cheverly.

Red Cross Seeks 35 Workers in Blood Centers

The District Red Cross is calling for about 35 volunteers as day canteen workers and staff aides in blood centers, according to Mrs. David E. Finley, chairman of the Red Cross Volunteer Services.

Additional workers are needed to take care of the large number of donors giving blood for Korean war use, she said.

Canteen workers "prepare and serve refreshments to donors" and staff aides "serve as receptionists and keep records", Mrs. Finley said.

Altizer Urges Combined System In Teaching Deaf

Teachers who force deaf children to learn through speech and lip reading alone are depriving them of complete education and full lives, Gallaudet College students were told yesterday.

Reuben I. Altizer, a vice president of the National Association of the Deaf, in an address to students at the Washington College for the Deaf, advocated the combined system of learning.

The combined system, he stated, utilizes sign language and finger spelling besides lip reading and other means of communication.

Altizer berated theorists who attempt to place the deaf in the hearing world and ban the use of fingers or hands for communication. Deaf persons can be happy and socially integrated, he declared, even though they do not have speech and lip reading ability.

Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, 75, former Surgeon General of the Army, died last night in Walter Reed Army Hospital of pneumonia. He was admitted to the hospital yesterday morning.

He was Surgeon General from 1931 to 1935, when he retired from the Army to become dean of the medical school at Oklahoma University. Since 1942 he has been dean of Maryland University's Medical School.

Born in Montreal in 1877, he received his M. D. degree from McGill University there and in 1902 was an honor graduate of the Army Medical School.

C. J. Stewart Dies; Retired Policeman

Funeral services were held yesterday for Columbus Joseph Stewart, 60, retired Metropolitan policeman, at St. Aloysius Catholic Church, North Capitol and I sts. Burial was in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Stewart retired from the police force as a private in February, 1943 because of physical disability. He died at his home at 317 L st. ne Friday, after a long illness. A lifelong resident of Washington, he was educated at Immaculate Conception Academy.

Mr. Stewart is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary A. Stewart; two sisters, Misses Gertrude A. and Laura Stewart, and a brother, Theodore Stewart, all of Washington. A third sister, Mrs. Georgia Snyder, lives in Frederick, Md.

Private Rites for Charles Ross, President's Aide, Set Today

Private funeral services for White House Secretary Charles G. Ross, 65, who died at his desk Tuesday night, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Ross home, 117 Kennedy dr., Chevy Chase, Md. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The White House said President Truman, his family and three or four other intimates of the Pulitzer-prize winning newspaperman will attend the rites.

Mr. Truman canceled his weekly press and radio conference which was scheduled for 4 p. m. today.

The Ross family has asked that no flowers be sent to the home and suggested that contributions be sent instead to the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, 535 Fifth ave., New York. Ross had suffered many years from arthritis and also had several mild heart attacks. He died Tuesday of a heart attack.

The family continued to receive messages of sympathy yesterday.

Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall said Ross was a "loyal friend" and "a man of great character." His death at this "critical time," Marshall said, is a "keen loss to his associates and his country."

Democratic National Chairman William N. Boyle, jr., said Mr Ross' death "is a real tragedy to all who knew him."

Raymond (Pete) Brandt, chief of the Washington bureau of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—a job Ross held for many years—called his former boss "a model in newspaper work and a public servant of the finest virtues."

Columnist Marquis Childs, another Post-Dispatch alumnus and former colleague, said Ross is "one of the finest persons I have ever known. Sometimes his very human and kindly qualities got in the way of his being hard-boiled in an impossible job," Childs commented.

The National Press Club named a funeral committee, comprised of newspaper editors, bureau chiefs and other prominent newspaper figures. The group includes Bert Andrews, Eben Ayers, Raymond P. Brandt, James William Bryan, Charles Campbell, George W. Combs, Felix Cotten, Peter Edson, Truman T. Felt, Warren B. Francis, William Hassett, Arthur S. Henning, Luther A. Huston, Paul R. Leach.

Girl Met a Young Man a Month Ago Who Seemed Nice; But on Their Second Date, After She Evaded a Kiss, He Cast Her Into a Trance, She Thinks; Wants Help

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am in terrible trouble. I must write this quickly. I sincerely hope you can help me; no one else can. A month ago I met a young man,—I shall call him Dan. I thought he seemed very nice, but to my sorrow I find I was wrong.

The second date we had together, he attempted to kiss me. When I objected he held me so closely that I could not move while he looked into my eyes. I felt myself growing weak and numb; there is no other way to describe my reactions. I strongly suspect I was hypnotized.

I would have refused to see him again, but now when he commands me, it seems I must do as he says. I cannot help myself. He keeps on seeing me, and frankly I am scared. Is there anything you can do to help me? I know if I took this problem to anyone else they wouldn't believe me. They would think I am crazy. Please answer immediately. S. R.

DEAR S. R.: In search of a few pointers to help you regain composure, I have discussed your anxiety with a good analyst whose background includes some experimental knowledge of hypnotism, so that he knows how it is induced, and what the aftereffects on the subject tend to be.

Perhaps I should explain that reputable hypnotism sometimes was used in the early days of analytic practice, not so many years ago, to relax a patient's hysteric resistance to exploration of his fears. But because hypnotism is mostly associated in the public mind with sensational theater, or with furtive foul play, the medical profession generally has a kid-gloved approach to it as a therapeutic aid. Nowadays the psychiatric preference is distinctly towards the use of mild barbiturate drugs, when the patient needs a special "assist" in disclosing his worries. This we may call narcosis, the scientific substitute for hypnosis.

Speaking from past participant experience in hypnotic procedures, and speaking also as a successful senior analyst, my consultant says there is nothing to indicate that you've been hypnotized by Dan. Rather he thinks you are stymied by conflict between desire and fear when confronted by the prospect of lovemaking with a young man who attracts you sexually—as maybe Dan does. Possibly your predominant unconscious reaction to sexual feeling is fear,—lest it lead to your downfall.

Apparently you got a shock of sorts when Dan overruled your objection to a kiss, by holding you so closely that you couldn't move while he looked into your eyes. A disrespectful bully embrace, as a rude display of brute strength, is enough to spark healthy fear in a sincerely resistant maiden. But such fear would soon fade if the incident passed off harmlessly by conventional standards, and if the girl were emotionally healthy. In which case she would get rid of the muscle-flexer too, if his attentions displeased her.

The fact that you are still seeing Dan, and still feel panicky but helplessly drawn to him, suggests that he broke through a defensive habit-pattern of yours when he confidently took you in his arms; and that you are still moved by the experience (as he knows), and hungry for mate-love, but afraid of your impulses. The doctor thinks you've had a strong resistance to psychological closeness to anyone, and especially men, for fear of being hurt or degraded; and that your stiffness kept people at arm's length until you met Dan, who crashed through, probably because he's not very sensitive.

When a person complains that others have undue influence over his actions, obviously he has a deepseated psychological problem, the doctor says. Your conviction that Dan has you hypnotized means, really, that you feel helpless to control the "forbidden" desire he knowingly rouses in you; and, also, that your ego rejects the idea that you could be capable of such inclinations. Subjectively, you are a house divided against itself; and to correct this condition, and prevent an emotional crack-up, you must have psychiatric help.

Possibly Dan is an unwholesome associate for you, in the sense that he might gradually and unscrupulously use his sensualist appeal to seduce you; but as for the idea that he can overpower you with fiery glances, that's "out." The doctor says he must have the disposition to be hypnotized before the condition would "take," at the first attempt—as you fancy it did. And furthermore, hypnotic suggestion is conveyed by the voice, not the eyes; so cheer up, child, and consult a specialist—like I told you. —M. H.

By Charlie Del Vecchio—The Washington Post.

FIRST PERSON SINGULAR—The Mayor of Washington, Va., Mrs. Dorothy Davis (left), yesterday gave the Soroptimist Club of Washington, D. C., a first-hand account of the June election which put a lady mayor and a distaff council into office in the Virginia town. Mrs. Davis tells Mrs. Mary C. Hysong, president of the club, some of her election highlights

'No Longer a Joke'

Her Honor, the Mayor Hailed by Soroptimists

By Nicha Searle

"HER HONOR, THE MAYOR" completely captivated members of the Soroptimist Club.

A capacity number of Soroptimists turned out for the club's weekly luncheon yesterday to hear a first-hand account of how Mrs. Dorothy Davis was elected Mayor of Washington, Va., in June along with a six-strong, all-feminine council.

"It all started as a joke," Mrs. Davis explained, that "kept snowballing." Conditions were a bit bad in the 200-year-old town, the lady mayor said, but there was nothing wrong that "$50 wouldn't correct."

To be more specific, the young (under 30) mayor continued, grass was growing in the streets, stray dogs were all over town and the street lights were always going out and not being replaced. Jokingly, one day, some of the townspeople commented that the women could probably do a better job of running the town.

THE JOKE TOOK FORM and pretty soon a lady council was drawn up and a woman chosen to run for mayor. According to Mrs. Davis, the woman chosen was the perfect type of candidate for office, but four days before election it was discovered that she hadn't paid her poll tax!

"I was the last resort," Mrs. Davis said, "and to our surprise, ALL the women were elected." She paid tribute to Mrs. C. J. Miller, a council woman who was also a guest at yesterday's luncheon. Mrs. Miller pulled in the greatest number of votes.

Mrs. Davis, according to her own story, "squeaked by with just five votes." Today the council ladies and the mayor are getting along better in their duties than even they had anticipated. (To prove the normalcy of Washington's lady government, Mrs. Davis said one of the council women was going to have a baby.)

AS FOR HER PLATFORM, Mrs. Davis has carried it through. The town has been raked to get rid of the weeds in the streets and a letter has been written to Virginia's attorney general to get a ruling on who is responsible for stray dogs—town or county.

As for the street lights, there are no dark spots in Washington now. Anyone who happens to notice that a street light is out may call a council woman and be assured that a new bulb will be put in. As simple as that!

The woman mayor, who believes that a housewife's responsibility goes further than her front gate, was a guest on Elinor Lee's television show following the Soroptimist luncheon.

Mrs. Mary C. Hysong, president of the Soroptimists, said: "You might not know it but the Soroptimists have given you a real ovation today!"

Finland's Flag Heralds a Fete

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

FINLAND'S FLAG—a blue cross on white—flew over the doorway of Sunnyside, the Finnish Legation on Woodland dr. yesterday. It proclaimed an anniversary of Finnish Independence Day and it served as an emblem of the hospitality of the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila who entertained at a reception in celebration of the day.

Diplomats and dignitaries who crowded the pleasant reception rooms were greeted first by the Minister and Mme. Jutila, the latter in a deep blue changeable taffeta gown trimmed with black lace. A bar had been set up in the sunroom and across the hallway the buffet table featured Finnish pastries and Christmas tarts along with the conventional cocktail food.

THE UNITED NATIONS CLUB celebrated its ninth anniversary last evening at a dinner dance at the clubhouse on 19th st. Dr. and Mrs. Walter Willard Boyd, Mrs. Harold S. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Everett G. Walk, Mrs. Avon M. Nevius, Miss Martha Jane Kennedy, Miss Agnes Birney, Franklin C. Salisbury and Hart Cowperthwait were among those dining in the Flag Room and dancing later to Sidney's orchestra in the ballroom.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER Clement Attlee was honored yesterday at a small stag reception given by Secretary of State Dean Acheson at Prospect House. Guests, who were received at 6:30 o'clock, included Government officials, Senators and Congressmen, members of the Prime Minister's party and representatives of the British Embassy. About 95 in all attended.

DOWN THE MIDDLE AISLE

MISS GERY CLIFFORD, pretty daughter of former special counsel to the President and Mrs. Clark Clifford, is Washington's busiest bride-elect. Her marriage to Lieut. William H. Lanigan, jr., USMC, will take place December 20, and the time meanwhile is closely packed with parties.

Yesterday she took a few moment to have tea with a small group of intimate friends. Her two hostesses were Mrs. John Horton and Mrs. George Horkan, jr., whose husbands will serve as ushers in the forthcoming wedding.

Miss Joyce Clifford, her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Jane Lingo, Miss Sophie Mayer and Miss Nancy Anderson, bridesmaids, were guests, as well as Miss Carlota Pardini and Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price.

ON THE CAMPUS

OPEN HOUSE WAS held yesterday by the Board of Trustees and the faculty of The Sidwell Friends School at the Edwin Cornell Zavitz Building from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. The new building is located at 3860 37th st. nw., on the campus of the school.

Just a year ago today, the first campaign dinner was held to open a drive for funds for the building. Alumni, former patrons of the school, and friends and neighbors joined present patrons at yesterday's gala occasion, and campaigners saw concrete evidence of last year's successful drive.

Members of the faculty and board of trustees receiving yesterday were James Austin Stone, chairman of the board; Robert S. Lyle, headmaster, and Mrs. Lyle; Albert W. Atwood, Frank Barger, Mrs. T. Janney Brown, William K. Brown, Thomas L. Eagan, David B. Fell, Edwin P. Heinrich, Nelson T. Johnson, Mrs. Carroll H. Kenworthy, Mrs. Charles G. Lueck, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mrs. Ottis Peterson, Richard D. Stimson and Miss Helen L. Zartman.

THE AMBASSADOR OF AUSTRALIA and Mrs. Makin gave a dinner last evening to say farewell to Wing Comdr. and Mrs. William E. Townsend and Maj. and Mrs. George Gay of the Australian Military Mission. The Townsends are leaving Washington December 16 and the Gays on the 29th.

Even Beer Drinkers Have Their Niche Among Clubs Of the Month, Anne Says

DEAR ANNE:

A friend told me the other day that there is such a thing as a Beer-of-the-Month Club. Subscribers get some unusual beer from a different part of the world each month. Do you know of such an organization and how to reach it?

W. L. K., jr., Washington

The address of this organization is 101 West 31st st., New York, N. Y.

DEAR ANNE:

I have a Victorian chest with a marble top on which ink has been splashed. Washing does not remove the ink stain. Have you any suggestions?

G. W. M., Takoma Park, Md.

Cover the spots with a pad saturated either with ammonia or chlorine bleach. Leave for several hours, then scrub stains.

DEAR ANNE:

Will you please publish a recipe for spiced grape juice?

Winny Adams, Charlottesville, Va.

Is this Mulled Grape Juice the sort of thing you have in mind? It is a hot beverage, good for the wintertime.

MULLED GRAPE JUICE

2 cups water
2 sticks cinnamon
12 whole cloves
1 quart grape juice
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Rind of ½ lemon, sliced

Combine sugar, water and spices in saucepan. Place over low heat and bring to boiling point. Simmer about 10 minutes. Add grape juice, lemon juice, and lemon rind. Return to heat. Bring to boiling point and strain. Serve hot in small cups. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me where I can buy a woven cane seat to be used in repairing a chair?

Bread Has a Place in New Reducing Diet

By Ida Jean Kain

IF BREAD IS THE STAFF of life to you and the toughest part of dieting is giving up good bread and butter, you'll be enthusiastic about the diet that includes four slices of bread a day.... with streamlined results.

A reducing study was carried on at the University of Nebraska by Dr. Ruth M. Leverton, and reported at the recent national meeting of the American Dietetics Association.

The doctor selected 12 young women who were overweight and wanted to reduce. For eight weeks the girls followed a diet which supplied 1200 calories a day, and which was nutritionally adequate in every other respect. In other words, all the protective foods were included in normal amounts. The daily menus offered a variety of foods and regularly included meat, milk, fruits and vegetables, and bread and butter. And what was omitted? Thick gravies and sauces, concentrated sweets and calorie-packed desserts.

SOME OF THE GIRLS worked in offices, some attended college classes and some studied trades. Therefore, lunches were planned that could be easily carried.

I'll give a sample menu, but first take a look at the results. At the end of the eight weeks, the 12 girls had lost a total of 227 pounds! The weight loss averaged about 2.8 pounds per girl per week. That is almost 3 pounds a week, and on a 1200-calorie daily diet. Needless to say the girls were elated — they didn't go hungry but they did lose weight. Their health remained excellent.

Dr. Leverton pointed out that not only did the enriched bread in the diet supply some of the essential nutrients, but it helped to keep the cost of the diet low. Total cost averaged 68 cents per girl per day.

WHEN ASKED HOW she could justify including bread in a reducing diet, the doctor said, "No single food is fattening. What determines whether a person loses or gains weight is the total number of calories in the diet. In a low-calorie diet that is safe, only those foods can be permitted that provide a fair share of nutrients besides calories. Enriched bread is one of these foods, for it furnishes considerable amounts of the B-vitamins thiamine, niacin and riboflavin, as well as iron and some protein.

BREAKFAST

Orange juice or grapefruit juice, one-half cup
Enriched bread, one slice
Butter, one teaspoon
Egg, one (cooked in the shell or poached)
Skim milk, one glass

LUNCH

Enriched bread, two slices
Butter, one teaspoon
Skim milk, one glass
Tomato
Apple, one medium

DINNER

Cube steak, about one-fourth pound
Potato, boiled or baked
Lettuce, with lemon juice or vinegar and seasoning
One enriched roll or one slice of bread
Butter, one teaspoon
Skim milk, one glass
Fruit sherbet, one small dipper

RUTH WITH HER HUSBAND —She has completed her beauty course, achieved her goal

Ruth Reaches Her Goal

The Experiment Is Successful

(Last day of Ruth's beauty program)

By Ann Lawrence

RUTH'S GREATEST FEAR, you may remember, was that she would look older than her husband. On this page today you see the two of them together. Proof, we believe, that this attractive young woman—who knew very little about make-up, hair-styling or dressing to suit her figure when we started the experiment two weeks ago—has achieved her goal.

Today she is a lovely young matron who has learned to fit a program of beauty care into her already-busy life: doing all her own housework, caring for two small boys, establishing some kind of a home life despite her husband's irregular working schedule.

Ruth has learned, from a famous salon, short-order beauty tricks to copy at home. Such as creaming her face while she's ironing—the heat and steam helps open the pores and allows the cream to be absorbed more easily; or polishing her nails while she's waiting for some dish to finish cooking.

She's learned to buy subdued basic colors for her wardrobe—easier on the budget, more kindly to her figure—and brighten them to please her husband with gay ribbons, scarfs and jewelry.

SHE'S FOUND a way to squeeze mental relaxation into her busy day, learned to adjust her schedule to permit bridge lessons, bowling with her husband—activities that keep her mentally up-to-date.

Ruth is not, and never was, in any sense of the word an ugly duckling. She's simply a normal young mother who feared that a crowded household schedule would age her prematurely; that she would settle into a dreaded rut in which her husband would leave her far behind.

Today she has learned that the will to make the most of her physical appearance and the determination to keep mentally alert are the two greatest assets she can have. And she's found a way to accomplish this.

The gray pin-stripe wool dress with crisp attached bib is by Horwitz and Duberman. Jewelry by Coro.

Seasonal Tip

Don't Blame The Tree if It Blazes

Don't blame the Christmas tree!

That's what Arthur Sowder, Department of Agriculture forester, says about Yuletide fires. The cause is usually dangerous trimmings, trash, or carelessness, says Mr. Sowder. A fresh, moist Christmas tree is actually difficult to burn.

For a happy holiday, the Department suggests these safety tips:

1. Be sure when buying Christmas lights or other electric appliances that they have the UL (Underwriters' Laboratory) safety seal.

2. Check last year's lights or electric decorations in advance of Christmas to be sure they are in good working order—no frayed wires, loose connections or broken sockets to cause short circuits. Avoid flammable reflectors on colored lights, colored paper over light bulbs, decorations that will burn on light fixtures, near candles or hearthfire. If a spotlight is used, be sure it isn't near enough to heat the tree.

3. Disconnect tree lights when leaving the house.

4. When buying decorations, choose those that are nonflammable. Some are labelled so. Metal ornaments and the newer plastics are safe choices. Consider flame-proof material for Santa's whiskers and costume.

5. Avoid disorder, confusion and fire danger by emptying trash promptly as gifts are unwrapped. But don't load so much in the fireplace that it results in a dangerous bonfire.

Luncheon Menu

A low-cost menu for lunch is one that includes tomato juice, stuffed egg salad, hot biscuits and jam and milk. Mother, as well as the youngsters in the family, should have a glass of milk at noon.

Barber Issue Pops Up in Jail

The question of who should cut the hair of a suspected slayer in Montgomery County Jail has caused a mixup in Rockville that may be taken to the courts.

The controversy began when Rockville attorney James H. Pugh asked Bill Burrows, a local barber, to cut the hair of Lee Edwards, in the jail awaiting trial Friday for murder.

Burrows has a shop a block and a half from the jail and has been cutting the hair of jail inmates for the past 30 years, Pugh said.

But when Pugh called jail supervisor A. C. Warming to make arrangements for the haircut he was denied permission. Warming, who has been with the Bureau of Prisons for 20 years, said he did not think it was safe to let barbers come into the jail and give haircuts.

Warming said his decision was no reflection on Burrows, either as a barber or as a citizen.

Orchestra Presents Tourel In One of Her Great Moments

By Paul Hume

It would be hard not to just let go and devote this whole column to Jennie Tourel and her singing, except for the fact that it was the National Symphony Orchestra that brought her here last night and played so beautifully for her.

Under Howard Mitchell, the orchestra and Miss Tourel were heard in one of the rarest Mozart arias, and then in Ravel's unique masterpiece, Sheherezade. Here were two great musical pages of totally different impact.

Mozart's aria, "Ah, Non mi scordi di te," was written as his only way of speaking his love for a young soprano he met in his later years. It includes a striking dialogue for singer and piano amid the usual voices of the Mozartean orchestra.

Tourel is one of the few great Mozart singers today. Her style, vocalism, and innate intellectual discipline makes her Mozart thrilling.

But the Ravel! Ah, there's a piece of open extravagance. Its extravagance takes you to the exotic color of Ravel's dream of the Orient. He never made the full orchestra sound more sensuous; it never spoke more clearly of love and, as the poem says, of hate.

Tourel enters into the mood of the music with an abandon of sense and sound that is like strong wine. Her voice glows and melts in silken sounds that surround it. Her whole body shudders as she sings it fervent line. Her conception of the entire set of songs is intense, yet langurous. If, at moments, in the first of the three, she and the orchestra were not quite at one, it was a matter of her anticipation of the next phrase with its continuing fire, when rehearsals had not allowed for that last subtlety of interpretation to be absolutely fixed.

Her ovation was shared by the entire orchestra who deserved it for their sensitive support. Wallace Mann's flute was outstanding in beauty and phrasing.

Mitchell prefaced the Mozart aria with the same composer's Titus overture, his last operatic venture. The G Minor Symphony was read with strength yet suppleness. The strings have yet to achieve that hairline precision Mozart demands when the last beat of a measure is divided into four quick notes, but their spirit was all that was required.

Strauss' Don Juan is usually one of Mitchell's best works. Last night it did not catch fire until the last third or so. The horns lacked the stuff for their first big entrance but made up for it later. It was a good account, but only exciting toward the end. Chabrier's rowdy Joyous March ended things in the right vein.

We cannot express our appreciation to the orchestra for finally presenting Jennie Tourel to Washington in one of her greatest moments.

Youth Admits Third in Series Of Sex Crimes

A 16-year-old Cardozo High School student, who said he had "an uncontrollable urge" to assault women in rainy weather, yesterday confessed to the third of a series of recent sex crimes in northeast Washington, police reported.

The youth admitted attempting to rape a 10-year-old girl at Visitation Convent November 12, police said. He was frightened away by a nun clapping her hands from a nearby window.

Police arrested the stocky, muscular boy Tuesday at a Georgia ave. drug store, where he was a part-time porter. They said he confessed to the rape of a 17-year-old girl November 20 in the 1300 block of Sheridan st. nw., and to the attempted rape of a 20-year-old housewife December 4 in the 6000 block of 13th pl. nw.

A special squad of detectives made a door-to-door canvass of business establishments from the 4000 to the 8000 block of Georgia ave. They had arrested a suspect in the convent case, but released him after the second crime, linking that with the first.

With the third attack, police noted all three occurred between 8 and 9 p. m., in rainy weather and within five blocks of the drug store.

The student came under suspicion when police learned he had given a false home address at the drug store and records revealed he was on probation in two pocketbook snatchings.

The youth, charged with rape and two counts of attempted rape, said he selected his victims as they walked by the drug store. He would then slip out, follow and attack them.

He was committed to District jail with approval of Juvenile Court authorities, who will decide whether he will be tried in District Court.

Fairfax Joins In Regional Sewer Plan

Fairfax County yesterday became a party to a proposed regional study of water and sewer problems in the nearby Virginia area, first suggested by the Arlington County Board two weeks ago.

The county board of supervisors agreed to join Arlington County, Alexandria and Falls Church in formation of an "interim" committee to study the advisability of joint action. John W. Brookfield, chairman of the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Council, asked for the Fairfax indorsement.

The county heads named Supervisor Arthur I. Shaffer and G. Hubbard Massey, Fairfax consulting engineer, as its representatives to the committee.

Under the Arlington proposal, the group will work with a committee of the regional planning commission in the development of a joint water and sewage program.

The board also approved a resolution setting up its own park authority to study means of establishing parks and recreation areas within the county. While the committee will concentrate on development of county areas, it also will cooperate with the newly-formed Northern Virginia Park Authority.

Named to the new county park authority were Brookfield, Elmer Andrews, John Lynch, C. C. Robinson and Robert Wheat.

The supervisors unanimously approved the appointment of Dr. Fred C. Heath as county health officer, confirming his nomination by the State Health Department last week.

Falls Church Seeks Funds

School construction money was sought from two sources by the Falls Church School Board last night.

The board authorized the superintendent of schools to make formal application to the Federal Government for funds authorized for areas in which governmental activities have created crowded conditions because of increased population.

It also authorized application to the Commonwealth of Virginia for the Falls Church share of school construction funds approved by the General Assembly this year. Of the estimated 45 million dollar total, for the State the city's share was set at $38,047.

The board also agreed on the contents of a contract for construction of a junior-senior high school, but postponed signing it until final copies are prepared. The B & J Construction Co. of Washington was low bidder at $680,952 for the job.

One On the Aisle

Realistic Setting For a Stock Plot

By Richard L. Coe

TRUE LOVE and realism hold the fort at Keith's in "Deported," a yarn photographed in Italy but still true to the beloved Hollywood myth that Love Solves All.

Jeff Chandler is back in his Italian hometown after having served a term in the United States for stealing $100,000. Though he's been deported for his misdeeds, the swag was never recovered and officialdom is watching to see how and when he's going to pick up the missing fortune.

And a nifty plan he has, too. He gets a pal in the States to ship that much worth of food into the little town, from which it's Jeff's plan to steal the food, sell it on the black market and turn it into more or less negotiable cash. Having something of a criminal mind of my own, I must say this plan doesn't strike me as especially bright, but, okay, it's only a movie so let's see what happens.

Love Dawns, a widowed countess, willowy, almond-eyed, beautchous, thinks Jeff is Wonderful for spreading what he hoped would be his anonymous charity, and she spills what she feels sure are Unblemished Beans. This has the effect of warning the governmental watchdogs as well as the former partner who's anxious to latch onto his share of loot. The food warehouse becomes a chase scene for the razzle-dazzle, which is restrained razzle-dazzle, and we fade out on a hopeful note with the Countess going to Rome with our misguided Jeff.

Because he told the Countess what he almost did and wound up by trying his best to prevent his former accomplices from carrying out his plan, you can see that Love Has Found a Way: Jeff served his jail term before the picture began, and though the rightful owners never recovered their loss, it was given to people who needed food, so, as Ko-Ko would say, since it was all as good as done, why not say it is done and why not let Love Triumph?

This involved lesson in morality is presented as serious melodrama, the accent on actual setting and native-born subordinate players giving an air of reality to an otherwise bald and unconvincing narrative.

Chandler has become a welcome player, his face of outward stresses and strains suggesting an inner turmoil not usually found in male leads. Marta Toren plays her stock role efficiently and the production details are all the surface-conscious could wish.

"DEPORTED." Universal - International release produced by Robert Buckner. Story by Lionel Shapiro, adapted to the screen by Buckner. Photographed by William Daniels. Music by Walter Schart. Directed by Robert Siodmak. At Keith's.

Kefauver Calls Adonis, Pals To Testify at Crime Hearing

Joe Adonis, kingpin bankroller of gambling operations, has been called to testify next Tuesday before the Senate Crime Investigating Subcommittee.

Committee Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) announced that Adonis, whose real name is Joseph Doto, is one of seven witnesses subpenaed for the Tuesday hearing.

It will be held in Room 457 of the Senate Office Building starting at 10 a. m.

Kefauver said the hearings probably will run two days.

In the list of seven were three alleged Adonis henchmen who, with Adonis, posted $20,000 bond in New York on November 27 on a grand jury information charging a conspiracy to violate New York and New Jersey gambling laws.

The three are Salvatore Moretti, James Lynch and Arthur Longano. They have been charged with operating a lavish gambling casino in Bergen County, N. J.

The other witnesses subpenaed for the hearing are William Moretti, James A. Rutkin and Gerald Catena. All are residents of New Jersey.

Kefauver said that Adonis' record of underworld associations goes back many years and includes arrests for a number of offenses but no prison sentence.

Meanwhile, Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) obtained a 10-day delay in Senate action on the Kefauver committee's demand for the arrest of 11 key witnesses.

McCarran heads the Senate Judiciary Committee which has been ordered by the Senate to review the demand of the crime investigating group for special warrants to arrest witnesses.

The Senate had told the judiciary group to report by Friday but it approved McCarran's proposal that a report be put off until December 18.

Kefauver was presiding over a civilian defense hearing when he got word of McCarran's proposal.

Kefauver said he was disappointed in the action but would not seek to reverse it. He also disclosed that subpenas have been served on two of the 11: Ben Marden, New York restaurant and night-club operator, and John Patton, who was served with his subpena in Chicago.

Md. Tobacco Props Higher Than 1949

Government price supports for Maryland tobacco will be more than 16 percent higher next spring, when the 1950 crop goes on sale, than last spring, the Production and Marketing Administration announced yesterday.

The average loan level for the 1950 crop will be 48.6 cents a pound, compared with 41.8 cents for the 1949 crop, PMA stated.

In other words, Maryland growers will be entitled to borrow on the average 48.6 cents a pound.

In case the bid for each lot at next spring's auction is less than the Government loan level, the grower can turn it over to the Government at the loan figure, with a year to redeem it.

The support level is 90 percent of parity. The increase in the support level this year results in (1) an increase in the parity index and (2) a change in the base period used in computing tobacco parity prices. The Agricultural Act of 1949 fixed the base period for figuring parity as the average for the last 10 years. Formerly it had been the 1909-14 average.

The new loan level for the 1950 crop will be slightly higher than the average selling price of the 1949 crop. Last spring the 1949 crop of 41 million pounds, brought an average of 48.2 cents a pound; the year previous the 1948 crop of 35 million pounds brought 54.5 cents a pound.

This year's crop is estimated at 38 million pounds.

On December 20, Maryland tobacco growers will vote on whether to accept marketing quotas for the 1950 crop.

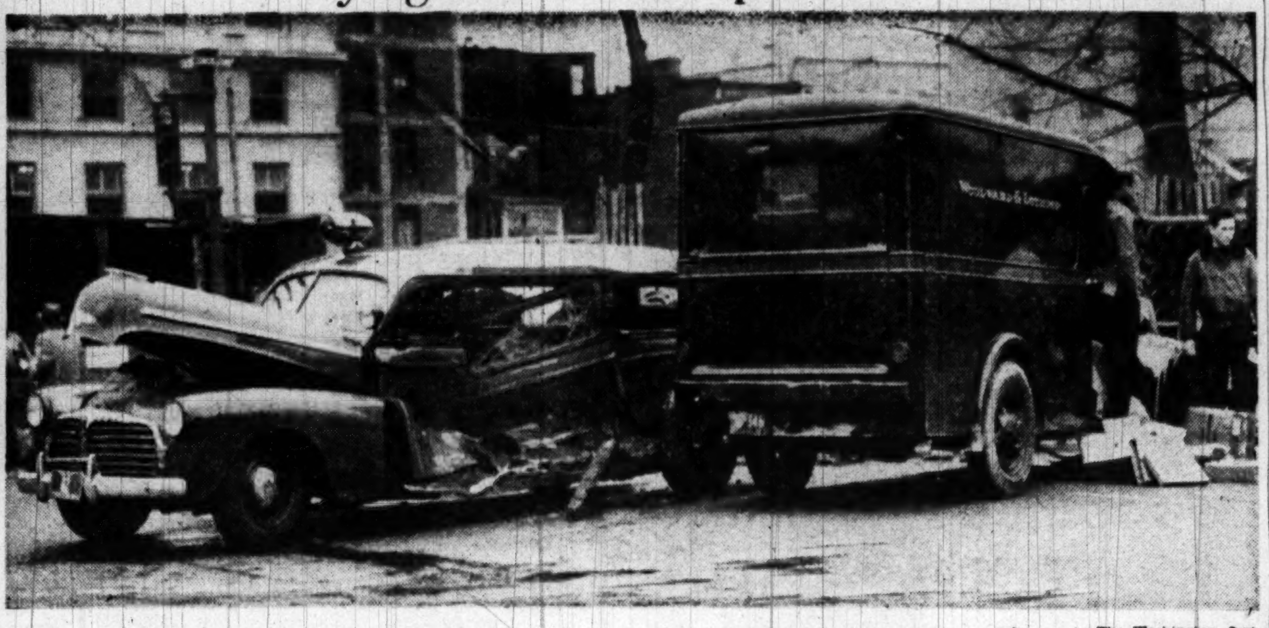
Ambulance Carrying Patient to Hospital Wrecked in Accident



The Washington Post

SIDE SMASHED IN—A Rescue Squad ambulance carrying a patient to Emergency Hospital was wrecked yesterday after it collided with a Woodward & Lothrop delivery truck at 15th st and Massachusetts ave. nw. The patient, Jack Miller, 24, who had been burned in a fire at his home, was cut by flying glass. A fireman, Sergt. William Packett, who was giving Miller first aid en route, also was injured. Another ambulance took both men to the hospital. (Story on Page B-1.)

1148-Acre Site Near Greenbelt Added to Parks

The National Capital Park system was enlarged yesterday by the addition of 1148 acres of undeveloped land near Greenbelt, Md.

The area has been tentatively named Greenbelt Park. Its planned development may include an 18-hole golf course and picnic facilities.

The tract is located in Prince Georges County east of Greenbelt, about 5 miles northeast of the District line. Specifically, it is bounded on the north by Glendale rd., on the west by Edmonston rd. and on the south by Good Luck rd.

The tract came under National Capital Park jurisdiction through transfer from the Public Housing Administration which manages the Greenbelt housing development.

The transfer was made possible by a clause in the recent Baltimore-Washington parkway legislation which authorized one Federal agency to exchange or transfer land to another.

The Baltimore-Washington Parkway will dissect the tract, placing 864 acres west of the roadway and 284 acres on the east side.

Court Backs Montgomery Taxicab Law

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 6 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today upheld Montgomery County's right to regulate taxicabs and impose special license fees on their drivers.

But the court did not pass on the specific ordinance by which Montgomery supervises cab operation.

It reversed a Circuit Court decision ordering the county to reimburse John S. Bigelow of the We Cab Co. for $263 paid in fees, and called for a new trial.

The appeals court unanimously approved a 1945 act that authorized Montgomery to regulate taxicabs. It did not violate the state-wide motor vehicles law, Judge Charles Markell said.

Attorneys for Bigelow contended the state act prohibited local legislation to control taxicabs or to slap extra license fees "for the use of a motor vehicle upon any public highway."

They also attacked a 1949 act sponsored by Montgomery County legislators to protect local regulatory powers. This amended the state-wide act to affirm city and county statutes for supervision of taxicabs.

Local rules have been adopted in other parts of Maryland, and on their face are not invalid because state law does not demand exclusive jurisdiction over taxicab regulation, Markell said.

Green Files Another Suit In Arlington

John Locke Green, Arlington County's treasurer, yesterday labeled the county's new assessment department "illegal" and asked the Circuit Court for a declaratory judgment against it.

In a suit filed yesterday, Green said the county board ordinance setting up the department is based on an unconstitutional act of the Virginia General Assembly.

It was Green's third suit against a county agency in four months. On the two previous occasions he sued the county school board, losing one Circuit Court decision and winning the second.

The new Department of Real Property Assessment, to be set up after January 1, would be headed by an assessment director. It would offer full-time assessment of county real estate . . . between special surveys required every four years by state law.

The General Assembly act of 1942 on which the local ordinance is based, according to Green's suit, is "special legislation" applying only to Arlington and Elizabeth City Counties.

Section 63 of the Virginia constitution, Green said, prohibits enactment of such "special" laws.

Furthermore, the suit stated, the new department will "interfere" with the Commissioner of Revenue's office and duplicate its duties.

The suit said Green "may be put in jeopardy" by collecting taxes assessed by the new department "in violation of the constitution, and in paying departmental expenses.

Merchants' Victory

Cigarette Tax In Alexandria Slated to Go

City Manager W. Guy Ancell announced that he intends to ask City Council to delete the levy from a proposed 1951 budget.

Ancell said he reached the decision after "careful reconsideration" of a request for repeal filed by Alexandria merchants. The merchants contended at a public hearing last week the tax is driving all forms of business away from the city.

"I feel that the prosperity of Alexandria to a large extent depends on the business done by our retail merchants," Ancell commented.

The city manager said he discussed the matter with a "majority" of city council members and has been assured of their cooperation in "living within a reduced budget." To repeal the tax, he pointed out, it will be necessary to delete certain items from the budget and to reduce expenditures for other items.

Councilman Marshall J. Beverley, who proposed the tax last June as an emergency measure to offset a threatened budget deficit, has announced he will move for repeal of the measure. According to Ancell's tentative budget, submitted to council last month, the cigarette tax was expected to yield $150,000 in the next 12 months.

Peace Would Ruin Truman, Says Flynn

Queen to Preside At Cup Grid Game

The Washington Post

MARY CORDER, pretty Arlington secretary, last night was picked as Queen of the Presidential Cup football game to be played Saturday between the University of Georgia and the Texas Aggies at Byrd Stadium. A graduate of Central High School, Miss Corder is 20. She was chosen from seven finalists on the stage of the Capitol Theater

There is no way for Government to spend continuously except on war and rumors of war, and peace would ruin President Truman and his party, John T. Flynn, author and journalist, said last night.

"I do not mean to suggest that the President sits down and deliberately plots a war to keep in office by spending," Flynn told the Washington Board of Trade's annual meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

"I merely suggest," he said, "that it is possible for any politician with the resilient mind of a politician to think himself into a state of luminous grace and to fancy himself a St. George battling some dragon."

The crux of our foreign troubles, Flynn went on, is our new domestic policy borrowed from Europe, of competing with the socialists for the soul of the worker.

When the state guarantees security, the only way it can create jobs is by putting more men in the armed forces, he declared.

The Administration "has made stab after stab to force itself into industry and trade and agriculture," but has come "face to face with the solid fact that government cannot create jobs as a government beyond those needed for political and supervisory action," Flynn said.

"As a matter of fact, the inevitable resort of any free government that attempts to guarantee jobs for all and security for all must be military action and the inevitable result of that must be war."

And so, he said, nothing would be settled very solidly by settling the Korean crisis. It is merely "an incident" in the more terrible crisis involving the erection of "a monstrous government here at home and the ultimate collapse of our civilization."

The board voted to increase its annual dues from $15 to $25 for individuals, from $30 to $50 for firms where two representatives are named, and from $15 to $25 for each additional representative named by member firms.

It voted to change its fiscal year from May 1-April 30 to July 1-June 30, and to drop members whose dues are in arrears three months. Previously, delinquent members were kept a year.

Another feature of the meeting was a student revue entitled "American University Album, 1950."

Citizens Ask Adult Classes At Anacostia

The Washington Highlands Citizens committee voted last night to ask the District Board of Education to institute a program of adult education at Anacostia High School.

The committee also heard Seymour Liss, research director of the Washington Housing Association, speak on the effects and cost of the slums in the District.

Lofton S. Wesley, chairman of the board's education committee, reported on the committee's efforts to encourage "the development of a two-way communication system between the school board, the administration and the teachers, and the members of the business community."

Next Tuesday, Wesley said, the committee will visit several schools to study their needs, curriculum and contribution to the community. He said the committee hopes to make it a two-way program by having teachers visit businessmen.

Board President Thornton W. Owen presided.

The Communists and You

Our armies are fighting with their back to the wall in Korea, not against defeat, but against annihilation. Militarily and diplomatically we are suffering one of the worst disasters in our history . . . The Nation's leaders, reversing their statements of only a few weeks ago, now tell us we are fighting for survival. The situation is far too critical to be solved by finding a scapegoat . . . What the Nation wants is a cold analysis of why we are losing and how we can win.

Before you know where you are going, you must know where you have been . . . In 1945 we thought we were on the brink of a new and peaceful world. FDR staked all on the good faith of his Allies and like his old chief, Woodrow Wilson, he nobly and magnificently failed . . . In the belief that the loss of 15 million of its people was enough to make any nation sick of war, FDR was prepared to give Russia every assurance that it wouldn't happen again. By quieting Russia's fears. FDR thought he was laying the foundation of permanent peace. But FDR and Stalin weren't playing the same game; Stalin was playing power politics; and from a power politics viewpoint he was taking all tricks . . . In his mind, Stalin knew the territories he was acquiring were not defensive areas for Russia but staging areas for future offensives of the Red army.

Stalin's first problem was to neutralize the greatest military force in Europe. That was Russia's ancient foe, Germany. While Germany was half occupied by him, obviously it couldn't fight at all, and if there were a fight with the West, Germany and not the Ukraine would be the battleground . . . That is why he continues to occupy Germany and why there will be no peace treaty reuniting it as a sovereign nation.

His traditional enemy in the East, Japan, was knocked out. Further, he had gotten Manchuria and the Kurile Islands as bases from which to keep Japan flat on her back . . . Thus the only important force he faced was that of the United States . . . His diplomatic objective, therefore, was to get the United States to knock itself out, and he succeeded to an incredible degree. We "brought the boys home"—as he built up more and more divisions to war strength . . . The last five years tell the story: As we receded they advanced.

In power politics the final question is much like a small boy's challenge—"What are you going to do about it?" As we continued our demobilization, and Russia built her armies and air force to an all time strength, we could do less and less—and she could do more and more about it. She took 13 countries and 600 million people under her dominion—and is still going . . . At the same time she got us to remove even the last vestige of resistance in the East—the Nationalist Government of China . . . Power, like water, follows the line of least resistance. Since no Far East nation has nearly the power of any European country, the Soviets are exploiting the vast breakthrough in Asia . . . Power goes until it is stopped, and there is nothing of any major resistance left on the Asiatic mainland.

Thus the real question is: What do we do about it? The first paragraph in any military manual will give you the grim and simple answer: Assume the worst and do the best you can with what you've got. The truth is we can't do very much about it right now. But a man in a raging sea has no choice but to swim. Our program is now dictated by the same inexorable logic of events. Here it is:

We haven't nearly enough arms and until we do we can't do anything. Accordingly we must again turn our country into the Arsenal of Democracy and teach our men how to use the new weapons . . . This means war priorities, price control, rationing and universal military training.

By treaty and policy we have decided to arm the Atlantic Alliance. This is a double gamble . . . The six Red field armies poised on the Iron Curtain are capable of smashing to the Atlantic Coast. It is unreasonable to suppose they are going to sit there indefinitely watching Western Europe forging the weapons to defeat them . . . The Red army will probably blitzkrieg in overwhelming attack to the West, when it moves, so that it can capture Europe's Marshall Plan factories without destroying them and thus use them against us.

Assuming the worst as sound military caution dictates, we must consider that Europe may well be overrun and Great Britain neutralized by rockets, submarines and air raids . . . Thus even as we rearm Europe, an underground should be prepared to function in that emergency and demolition squads trained and ready in case we must yield the territory . . . Thereafter, we and Canada will have to carry the fight, with very little help from South America.

Our choice in Asia is even more limited. Our current Far East policy is changed now to a salvage operation . . . No agreement with Red China will be kept by it; the President has 52 broken Communist treaties on his desk . . . The further fact is that the Korean campaign is only part of a continuing general Asiatic conquest now in progress . . . Tibet we will not defend, and Indo-China we cannot defend against the Red Chinese forces when released from action in Korea. That means, at will, the Communists can sweep down to Singapore as easily as the Japanese did.

In the Communist pattern they are seeking to extend the area of their victory by a proposed peace treaty. If we accept their peace terms, it will give them equal rights with MacArthur in Japan, wipe out Chiang Kai-shek, and permit them to purchase the goods they so sorely need in America.

We have lost a campaign, but by deluding ourselves that they will keep any peace treaties, we can lose the global war. Appeasement in Korea will be more tragic in results than appeasement at Munich. We will cut our own throats if we admit Red China to the United Nations . . . From the moral standpoint, for which we say we are fighting, it would be as disastrous as the acceptance of Mussolini's rape of Ethiopia. A bank robber, though successful, is still shunned by a self-respecting community.

We have now been officially told we are fighting for survival. That means we must use all the help we can get from wherever we can get it . . . It is the first rule of survival that common enemies make natural allies. Our natural allies are the imprisoned countries, and they should be used . . . With almost suicidal blindness, up to this time, our Intelligence has been forbidden to arm the underground resistance movements. That policy should be reversed today.

Our country no longer has the slightest choice. There is only one way. We have gambled that there would be peace—and lost a war. Our last chance is to rush preparation for a global war—and hope to save our country.

Mike Rector Gets 31st Skin Graft Today

His chief concern yesterday was whether he'll get back home for his sixth birthday and Christmas. Mike was burned over 70 percent of his body when his clothing caught fire in 1948.

His physician, Dr. Joseph Rogers Young, said the long, slow replacement of scar tissue has gotten down to taking "a little here and a little there," because Mike's body has few places yet untouched. Today's operation will be on skin between the shoulders and the inner side of the arms.

"I had to guarantee he would be home by Christmas," Dr. Young said.

Mike's birthday is two days before the holiday. Last year it attracted a mountain of cards and many gifts to his home at 613 Elliott st. ne.

After this year's festivities, the grafting will resume and continue periodically for four or five years.

Coy Charges 'Lie' in Dispute On TV Color

By The Associated Press

Communications Commission Chairman Wayne Coy declared yesterday it is a "lie" to say that FCC has refused to look at improvements in RCA's color television system.

Coy accused Radio Corp. of America of "efforts to make the public believe the commission refused to consider improvements in its system before reaching a decision" which gave the color licensing to the rival Columbia Broadcasting System color plan.

RCA has brought suit in Federal Court at Chicago to upset the selection, and Coy asserted that RCA had said in a brief filed with that court that its color has been improved but that FCC "has refused even to look."

The statement was also issued in answer to a lead editorial in yesterday's issue of the Washington Daily News. The News criticized the CBS system and said that an RCA color demonstration for the press and industry leaders here Tuesday made the FCC position "either dishonest or silly."

Coy said he took exception to the editorial's implication of dishonesty and asserted that if the News has "any evidence to support such a charge or inference, it is up to them to come forth with it or to forever hold their own dishonest tongues in making such inferences." He also objected to a statement by the News that it had "discovered FCC had been invited several months ago" to view RCA improvements and had refused. Coy said:

"I make this statement because this lie about the commission refusing to look at improvements in the RCA system is about to become big enough to be believed."

A Tale of Mike Rector and the Photographer

Teen-Age Gang Attacks Cameramen at Trial

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (U.P.)—A gang of teen-aged boys and their bobby-sox girl friends attacked news photographers today in a courthouse corridor a few minutes after one of their buddies was sentenced for a juvenile gang slaying.

Judge Samuel Leibowitz sentenced Anthony Scarpati, 17, to 15 to 30 years in prison for killing James Fortunato, 18, last May. Fellow members of Scarpati's gang and bobby soxers staged a 20-minute melee in the hall when photographers tried to take pictures of Scarpati's mother. They punched and clawed the cameramen.

'Why,' You Might Say

Oh, It's 'Ten Best' Time of Year Again

By John Crosby

THE END of the year is within spitting distance and naturally we must all begin to compose our list of "Ten Best." Ten Best Dressed. Ten Least Offensive. Ten Most Photogenic. And so forth. The most significant of the Ten-Bests this year is being sponsored by "Why," which describes itself as "the magazine of popular psychology." "Why" is delving underneath the bank accounts, the handsome exteriors; "Why" is seeking the "Ten Best-Adjusted Americans."

Crosby

It just goes to show how far the psychiatrists have penetrated into our folklore. The Ten Best lists used to be reserved for handsomely gowned women, best-selling novelists, $3000-a-week screen-writers. Now, the scrolls, the plaques are to be handed out on the basis of our neuroses, which used to be considered a private affair.

"HOW CAN 'best-adjusted' be defined?" asks "Why." "'Why's' definition . . . A man or woman who shows outstanding ability to adjust psychologically to the problems confronting him and who demonstrates a capacity to derive satisfaction and emotional security from his career and personal life."

Considering the fact that 1950 is definitely a year of mass neuroses, the Ten Best-Adjusted ought to be honored in their own country. The trouble with "Why's" list, "suggested," it says here, "by a panel of psychiatrists and psychologists," is that it is composed of those same old names—President Truman, General MacArthur, Jackie Robinson, Grandma Moses, Robert Young, Esther Williams, Arthur Godfrey, Ed Wynn, Albert Einstein, Helen Keller—which have bobbed up on all the other lists.

All of them are famous, all are leaders in their field. But well-adjusted? Adjusted psychologically to the problems confronting them? One of President Truman's chief problems right now is General MacArthur and one of General MacArthur's is President Truman. Neither has shown outstanding ability to adjust himself to the other and it seems to me a mistake to put them back to back on a list of Best-Adjusted.

JACKIE ROBINSON showed increasing maladjustment toward covering hard-hit balls to his right and, in the last third of the season, he had grave difficulty adjusting himself psychologically to hitting the ball at all. Professor Einstein's last public statement contained hardly a hint of emotional or any other form of security. The hydrogen bomb, he declared on Mrs. Roosevelt's television show, threatened, by radioactive poisoning of the atmosphere, to annihilate all life on earth.

That's the trouble with headliners on a list of this sort. The competition is more severe up in the rarefied atmosphere of success; the conflicts increase; the emotional security diminishes.

For your real well-adjusted man, the editors of "Why" should have prowled around First Avenue. Sam, the delicatessen man over there, seems to have everything he wants, psychologically, emotionally, physically. He wishes he had more room in the store for a larger deepfreeze, but that seems a relatively small maladjustment next to those on "Why's" list.

The only one on the "Why" list I'm going to vote for is Esther Williams, a far-sighted girl. She's adjusted herself to living apparently indefinitely under water where all life sprang and where it may all return. Esther is the only one of us who'll feel at home when the time comes.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It's a Lady's Privilege to Change Her Mind

Margaret Truman says she isn't engaged and, what's more, she doesn't intend to be.

What a coincidence! That's exactly what a girl said to me some 17 years ago, just before I married her.

'TIS TRUE, 'TIS PITY

The other morning, the Alsop Brothers wrote in their Washington Post column that our times might be known as "the iron decade," or "the formidable fifties."

Windsor Thompson hopes the Alsops aren't wrong. He's afraid the era might turn out to be the "Fissionable Fifties."

PERSONAL NOTES

Miss M. Woods, RFD 1, Alexandria, Va.: That's right, they either want old radios for their workshops, or they'll repair your set and charge you for the parts used. It's Chamberlain Vocational High School.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

District building regulations provide that new office buildings, hotels, apartment houses and the like must provide off-street parking facilities for their occupants.

Why is it that new buildings of this sort seem to increase parking problems in the area, in spite of these regulations?

L. F. S.

Dear Sir:

I can think of two reasons. The most important is that people are people, and if they find it more convenient to park on the street, they'll do it. The next fellow, perhaps, lives nearby in an establishment which does not have off-street parking facilities, and he finds no vacant spaces on the street. So he's out of luck.

The second reason might be this: The law sets up a ratio of how many off-street parking spaces must be provided for buildings of various sizes. But if the occupants happen to own more cars than the ratio calls for, I suppose the extras have to compete for whatever parking spaces are available out in the street.

I'm told that the second factor isn't nearly as important as the first, and when I ask what can be done to remedy the first I get a shrug and another question in return: "Can you pass a law that'll change human nature?"

Bill.

TRANSIT FINANCES

"I have a complaint about Capital Transit," writes M. B. Brown of 3720 Macomb st. nw.

"On the Friendship Heights line during the morning rush, the cars are too far apart, and are usually full by the time they reach McLean Gardens. When I transfer to an Archives bus, it means another long vigil of waiting, and then we're packed in tight as sardines.

"What is your opinion of a company that raises fares time and time again, and then gives worse service than during the war? I see they've raised their dividend rate, and plan to raise it again."

Not being an expert in Capital Transit finances, I think I'll use the politician's campaign technique and say that I stand foursquare for high dividends, high wages for transit employes, and low fares for patrons.

I am also highly in favor of having somebody explain how this can be accomplished.

Seriously, though, I get the impression that in recent years Capital Transit earned a good bit more than its dividend rate, and ploughed the surplus back into new equipment and better service.

Currently, the management feels that the stockholders are entitled to a better return, so they're trying to economize. And one way to cut costs is to cut the number of empty seats. That means fewer vehicles.

I'm not qualified to express an opinion as to whether the cuts have been too deep, because I drive my own car to work.

But I do have one bright bit of news to pass along to transit riders. It now begins to appear that Transit Radio will some day bring in a sizeable chunk of revenue, to help keep fares down and service up.

Opponents of radio music in Capital Transit vehicles, according to informed sources, have failed to impress the FCC with their complaints. It looks like Transit Radio is here to stay.

Shortly after the first of the year, Capital Transit should be earning almost $3000 a month as its share of Transit Radio commercials. The figure could easily double during 1951, and go on from there. To a firm that needs $60,000 a month to justify its proposed dividend rate, that begins to look like important money.

EXODUS

T. E. Strickler of 18 Sherman Circle informs me that a motorist pulled up to the curb on Capitol Hill the other day and asked a passerby: "What's the best way to get out of Washington?"

"That's easy," counseled the pedestrian philosophically. "Just get less votes than your opponent."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman, Attlee Likeness Cited

By Drew Pearson

Pearson

There is a certain vein of similarity running through the lives of the two men who conferred this week regarding the course to be followed by the British and American governments toward future war or peace.

Prime Minister Attlee and President Truman both are left-of-center liberals, both have spent much of their lives in government, both have tried to work for the less-privileged sector of the British and American people.

Neither is considered a strong man in his own country, neither is a man of much imagination, neither has the force, the flair, the genius of two others who conferred a great deal during the past decade—Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

However, Clement Attlee, in his quiet way and backed by a powerful Labor Party, has put across a schedule of socialist legislation which staid old Britons never dreamed could happen.

And while these reforms were passed in the face of vigorous conservative opposition, nevertheless Attlee today has one important advantage over President Truman. He has the support of his opponent, Winston Churchill, when it comes to foreign policy.

Churchill Advised Trip

Furthermore, he has the support of most of the Conservative Party. On the other hand, Truman of late has had the bitter, sometimes vitriolic opposition of a majority of Republican Senators in regard to almost every foreign policy move he has made.

Attlee not only was careful to get Churchill's support before he left London, but Churchill even advised him on how to force Truman's hand regarding the trip.

What happened was that immediately after the Prime Minister heard of Truman's atom bomb statement, he called on Churchill. Though political opponents, the two men served in the same coalition war cabinet together and are personal friends. At one time Attlee was Churchill's deputy Prime Minister, and handled British domestic affairs while Churchill was busy with the war.

With this background of friendship, it is not hard to understand why Attlee should have consulted Churchill or that Churchill advised him that he should take the trip to Washington. Furthermore, Churchill suggested that inasmuch as Truman might be opposed to the trip, Attlee should make a premature announcement of his plan—thus making it impossible for Truman to decline. This was why news of Attlee's plans prematurely leaked from London.

Churchill also promised Attlee that no effort would be made to overthrow the Labor government while he was away.

Attlee's Background

Though Truman and Attlee have much in common politically, Attlee came from more conservative surroundings. His father was a Tory lawyer and president of the British equivalent to the American Bar Association. After studying at England's ritziest schools and being admitted to the bar, however, young Attlee suddenly became a social worker. At the age of 24 he went to work and lived in Limehouse, one of London's workmen's districts, and he has made his life with labor ever since.

Unlike Mr. Truman, who frequently lapses into Missouri mule-driver's language, Attlee's diction is cultured, sometimes poetic. In fact, he has written some widely quoted poems, one of them regarding his own workingmen's district, which reads:

"I hear the feet of many men who go their way . . .
Through streets that have no pity, and streets where men decay."

Attlee is married to Violet Helen Millar, and for many years they lived with their four children in a modest house in a London suburb where Attlee did a little gardening and repaired his own pipes in his own carpenter's shop.

Unlike Truman, Attlee is a halting, none-too-forceful speaker. When he speaks impromptu, he hesitates and repeats. The President, on the other hand, is at his best when speaking off the cuff. In conferences, Attlee tries to win his point by charm and persuasion. The President sometimes gets impatient and petulant.

In Europe, Attlee and his government are considered among the most vigorous of all opponents to communism, and it is sometimes predicted that, in case the Russians overran Europe, the Attlee cabinet would be the first to be lined up against the wall. This is because the British Labor Party has more to fear from communism than any other ism—and vice versa.

Personally, Attlee has been among the toughest British fighters against both fascism and communism. He refused a post in the Chamberlain government because of Chamberlain's Munich appeasement, and he was among the first to go on record against the Japanese ward lords, Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia, and the Franco revolution in Spain.

Having opposed Chamberlain's appeasement policy toward Germany, he now finds himself in somewhat the same difficult position in regard to any appeasement of Moscow in the Far East.

Washington Notes

Gen. Bedell Smith, able former Ambassador to Russia, told Cabinet and congressional leaders last week that we can never hope to defeat Soviet Russia by manpower. "The only way to subdue the Russians while she continues to snipe at us through her satellites is by continued propaganda to get the truth behind the Iron Curtain—and where that fails, counter-revolutions in the small countries the Soviet has enslaved," declared General Smith . . . There is a move among Democratic Senators to replace General MacArthur with General Marshall on the ground that the Chinese knew Marshall when he was Ambassador to China.
